Larkspur Postal Plea Unheeded

By PAUL CANE

A request by the Larkspur City Council that the Postal Service expand facilities in Larkspur to serve the city and not transfer any services to Corte Madera apparently fell on deaf ears last night.

The city council, in a heated two-hour debate, voted 3-2, with Mayor Joan L. Sestak and Councilman Alfred J. Malvino dissenting, to request entirely local service.

Postmaster Hugh Cassidy, told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that the entire debate was irrelevant because he probably would carry out his plan to move all six Larkspur mail carriers to Corte Madera regardless of any decision by the council.

"They can pass all the resolutions they want," Cassidy said, "but it's not going to add more space to the damned building."

Mayor Joan L. Sestak and Councilman Alfred J. Malvino opposed the resolution.

At issue in the dispute is Cassidy's plan to move six mail carriers from cramped quarters in Larkspur to a more spacious building in Corte Madera. The carriers would cover the same Larkspur routes, but would sort their mail in the larger facility, according to Cassidy.

Other services — such as money orders, insurance, stamp sales, box service, and others — would continue to be provided in Larkspur under Cassidy's plan.

However, representatives of a group called Friends of the Larkspur Post Office argued that mail service would deteriorate if the carriers were moved.

A motion to oppose carrier shifts — similar to the one passed last night — failed 2-2 Nov. 6 with Councilman William G. Fleckles absent. Last night, Fleckles — arriving at the meeting more than an hour late following a business trip to Los Angeles — sided with opponents of the carrier shift.

He said he didn't think any service should leave the Larkspur office, at least until postal officials investigated the feasibility of expanding the current Larkspur office onto neighboring property.

A group of more than 50 — including many mail carriers and clerks — jammed council chambers to hear the debate. A majority of speakers opposed shifting the carriers, saying that it would lead to inferior mail service in the short run, and possibly closing the whole Larkspur office in years to come.

Postal worker Brian Richards — although noting that the current office is so small "you can't swing a dead cat in there" — told councilmen that expansion of the current office was far better than moving carriers around.

Peter N. Hagen, a Larkspur mail clerk, told councilmen that mail delivery to boxes would be cut from twice to once per day; that Sunday box deliveries

Paychecks Shrank Again In October

Food, Auto Prices Mainly The Cause

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for food, cars and housing raised the Consumer Price Index by 0.9 per cent on an adjusted basis in October, the Labor Department said today.

Retail food prices rose two-tenths of a per cent during October in the San Francisco-Oakland area, to stand 11.8 per cent above a year ago.

The increase meant it cost $15.99 to buy the same amount of food that $10 purchased in 1967.

Higher prices for sugar, carbonated fruit drinks, syrup, tea, salad dressing, coffee and margarine, resulted in a 2.7 per cent increase in the other foods at home group between September and October. This category was 26.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Cereals and bakery products increased 2.1 per cent over the month, mainly because of higher prices for cookies, cracker meal and corn flakes. This category was 25.4 per cent above October, 1973.

Dairy products rose nine-tenths of a per cent while fruits and vegetables were up eight-tenths of a per cent and foods away from home rose three-tenths of a per cent.

A sharp 2.8 per cent drop was recorded for meats, poultry and fish as the result of lower prices for beef, pork and poultry. This category was 3.3 per cent below the figure for a year earlier.

Consumer prices have risen 12.2 per cent over the past 12 months, three times faster than the 1970-71 inflation that led to wage price controls.

Spendable income for workers after adjustment for inflation and higher payroll taxes continued to erode in October, the department said.

Real spendable income was down 0.3 per cent from September, despite pay raises and was down 4.9 per cent from October, 1973.

The CPI stood at 153.2 in October, meaning goods and services costing $100 in 1967 cost $153.20 last month.

The Labor Department said the October rise in the CPI was led by an increase in food prices, which traditionally decline in the month. Sharply higher prices for sugar, cereal and bakery products offset declines in meats to send the food segment of the index up 1.3 per cent.

Prices for eggs, soft drinks, convenience foods, peanut butter and other fat and oil products also increased in October, although not so rapidly as sugar and grain products.

Cars also accounted for a major portion of the increase, the department said, because of higher sticker prices for new

New Highway 101 Lanes Reserved For Bus Traffic

I-J Special Report

SAN JOSE — Two new lanes on Highway 101 between Richardson Bay Bridge and Greenbrae will be reserved for buses in peak traffic hours when they open next month, the Department of Transportation announced today.

Only buses will be allowed weekdays in the lanes adjacent to the median barrier, southbound between 9 and 9 a.m., and northbound between 4 and 7 p.m.

The decision was reported by Thomas R. Lammers, district director of the department, at the monthly meeting here of the California Highway Commission.

The plan will be reviewed during its first year of operation. If successful, it will be continued. If not, it will be converted to use by all vehicles, Lammers said.

The new lanes are expected to open sometime next month, at least south of the bridge over the railroad at Corte Madera. Widening of the bridge from six to eight lanes will not be completed until early next year, according to the department.

The decision by the department had been sought for months by the Golden Gate Bridge and Marin County Transit districts, but was stalled for some time by opposition within the department from officials defending the traditional right of all traffic to all freeway lanes.

A department official said the state so far has reserved 27 miles of freeway lanes for exclusive bus use, and plans another 200 miles, mostly in Southern California.

Total length of the exclusive lanes in Marin will be nine miles, the present five between the Golden Gate and Richardson Bay bridges plus four in the new extension to Greenbrae.

Eighty-nine of Golden Gate Transit's 155 commuter buses will use the exclusive lanes, and any vehicle designed to carry 10 or more persons will be permitted to use them as well.

Car pools will not be allowed because of the difficulty of excluding other cars, but may be considered in the future, Lammers has said.

The exclusive bus use plan won overwhelming support at a department hearing Oct. 10 in San Rafael City Hall, with federal agencies, conservation and other citizen organizations and private citizens endorsing it. Some department officials, however, predicted that actual operation of the exclusive bus lanes will arouse widespread opposition from motorists.

Lammers' staff has estimated the plan will save bus riders about six minutes now lost in traffic between the bridge and Greenbrae.

Signs to be posted on the median barrier will show the hours of exclusive use. The lanes will be open to all traffic outside peak congestion hours.

New Storm Brings Heavy Rain, Wind; Little Damage

There was a lot of wind last night and this morning all over Marin as the season's first blustery storm moved into the county with heavy rain falling at times, but little major damage was reported.

Highway 101 was a mess this morning during commute hours, but the California Highway Patrol said tie-ups were mainly due either to stalls or a few minor accidents. Traffic across the Golden Gate Bridge was reported actually considerably lighter than usual with 13,933 vehicles counted during rush hours as compared to 18,000 to 19,000 on a typical morning.

"The problems were all north of here," a bridge district spokesman said. Some commuters complained it took them almost 90 minutes to drive to the bridge from Novato, he said, as the season's first big storm slowed down cars.

The high winds last night — up to "50 knots or more" on Mount Tamalpais — brought branches and leaves down in messy profusion all over the county.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co. reported "quite a few" customers were without power for varying periods of time as tree limbs snapped wires.

Electricity in the seaside community of Bolinas went out about 4 a.m. and was still not restored at 11 a.m. today, a chilly resident said.

But employees in the electrical division of PG&E were too rushed answering phones and directing repairs to list just where the outages were.

In Fairfax, streets superintendent Edward Phillips said that though winds of up to 50 miles per hour whipped through the town during the night, there was surprisinly little damage.

"Usually when the trees start shaking like that, they go down and boulders come down, but we didn't have too much damage," he said.

In Santa Venetia, a downed electric wire started a fire in a tree at 6:30 a.m., at 25 Meadow Drive, but the county fire department put it out.

AT&T Is Indicted In Antitrust Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is moving to break up the Bell System and its centerpiece, American Telephone & Telegraph, for allegedly monopolizing the telecommunications business.

The Justice Department filed civil suit yesterday in federal district court here against AT&T, the world's largest privately held corportation, and two key subsidiaries — Western Electric Co. Inc. and Bell Laboratories Inc.

It was the largest antitrust action ever.

The government is trying to force AT&T to give up Western Electric, its exclusive manufacturing arm, plus some of its interstate telephone network, in order to promote competition and possibly reduce rates.

The corporation promptly served notice it would vigorously fight the case.

"We are confident we are not in violaton of the anti-trust laws and we are astonished that the Justice Department would take its present action with apparent disregard for its impact on the public," AT&T chairman John D. deButts said in a statement from New York.

He said the government action "could lead to fragmentation of responsibility for the nation's telephone network. If that happens, telephone service would deteriorate and cost much, much more."

Attorney General William B. Saxbe replied: "I am fully aware of the service that the Bell System has provided. Nevertheless, I believe the law must be enforced."

The case threatens to be long, complex and costly for all parties involved. A Justice Department lawyer predicted the trial would not begin for at least three years.

If all avenues of appeal are

Big State Banks Drop Prime Rate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Three major California banks today announced lowering of their prime interest rates.

Bank of America dropped the rate it charges corporate borrowers from 10½ per cent to 10¼ per cent.

United California Bank went from 10¾ to 10¼ per cent and Security Pacific Bank lowered its rate from 10¾ to 10½ per cent.

Ban On Wall Is Defied By Kayfetz

Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz yesterday completed construction of a riprap wall on the beach in front of his home, declaring an order to halt the work was "without legal authority."

The order was issued Monday by the staff of the North Central Coast Regional Commission, which claimed the work needed a permit and that Kayfetz never had sought one.

Kayfetz, in a letter yesterday to the commission's executive director, Michael L. Fischer, argued the commission's own law declares that no permit shall be required for "repairs or maintenance activities of any sort, provided that such activities do not result in an addition to, or enlargement or expansion of the object of such repair or maintenance activities."

The attorney rejected an argument by Fischer that the language was "meant to apply to manmade works," not to repair of beach erosion.

Kayfetz's letter said that when he told Fischer of his repair plans, Fischer responded, "You need a permit. It'll be a cold day in hell before I give you one, Kayfetz."

"Because of this attitude of yours," Kayfetz wrote, "I have felt it futile to discuss the matter further with you."

Kayfetz told the Independent-Journal the riprap had been covered over by the natural slide material and could not be seen. "You could stand 10 feet from it and not be able to tell that any work has been done there," he said.

The commission will review the issue at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Sonoma County Planning Commission chambers, 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Marin Housing Authority Votes To Keep Its Autonomous Nature

By JEFF GREER

A divided Marin County Housing Authority board voted last night to seek survival as an autonomous agency with permission from the county supervisors "to seek our own goals at this time." (Another housing authority story, page 6.)

The stand was taken with a 3-to-1 vote. Board Chairman Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. warned that he would speak as an individual against the stand, when the authority position is reported to the supervisors.

"I think you're taking the agency down a path where it will not have a viable function," he told commissioners Dorothy Oczkus, Myrna Bergerson and Rogers Jones. The fifth remaining commissioner, Leatrice Mikkelsen, was absent.

Mrs. Oczkus reluctantly voted with the majority position, after first declaring, "I do not wish to take a stand at this time."

"You shouldn't let it (the authority) stand in a vacuum," Ehrlich warned.

The county supervisors in recent months have been studying the strife-ridden housing authority and the Marin County Redevelopment Agency, with an eye toward deciding whether to merge them into a single agency, absorb both into county government or leave the status quo. The redevelopment agency last week voted to leave the decision up to the supervisors.

"I'm afraid if we combine, our housing authority will get lost," explained Mrs. Oczkus, the newest member of the authority.

She said she had learned there are more than 3,000 autonomous housing authorities in the United States, more than 2,000 redevelopment agencies, and only 600 combined agencies.

"I feel we should concentrate on putting our house in order," she said.

Jones, obviously satisfied with the recent resignations of commissioners Arthur Miller Jr. and Robert E. Eklund Jr., said, "at the present time we've got a pretty nice little

Tour Of Kyoto Winds Up Ford's Japan Visit

KYOTO, Japan (UPI) — President Ford had a "wonderful time" today sightseeing in this ancient imperial capital before heading for a day of official business in South Korea.

Ford ignored scattered demonstrations by anti-American hecklers in Kyoto, and his Korean plans were not deterred by a rash of protests in Seoul designed to call his attention to what dissidents said was the plight of political prisoners there.

The schedule called for a 26-minute helicopter flight to nearby Osaka, where Ford arranged to board Air Force 1 at 6:30 p.m. EST for a 90-minute flight to Seoul.

The President was in apparent high spirits as he completed his historic visit to Japan, and his press secretary, Ron Nessen, told reporters, "He's having a wonderful time." He quoted Ford as saying the entire trip to Japan had been "inspiring as well as productive."

He was the first American president ever to visit Japan, but Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lyndon B. Johnson both visited South Korea during their terms in office.

Ford's visit to Kyoto was unofficial because of the hostility of Gov. Torazo Ninagawa, who refused to greet him. But the streets frequently were lined with cheering Japanese as CHOPSTICK CHOWHOUND — A Japanese geisha girl cast a curious glance at President Ford last night as he dug into a Japanese dinner with chopsticks.

(UPI Telephoto)

SERVED BY GEISHAS

Ford Shows Chopstick Talent Before Ending Stay In Japan

KYOTO, Japan (UPI) — President Ford enjoyed the company of beautiful chalk-faced geisha girls today and, deftly wielding chopsticks, ate the first Japanese-style meal he has had in his visit to the Land of the Rising Sun.

On the eve of his departure for South Korea, Ford and other members of his official party — including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — dined out informally at the Tsuruya Restaurant, which was closed to all other patrons for the evening.

The President and the other guests, all male, sat at a low Japanese-style table on chairs without legs and sipped sake at the start of the meal.

There was a geisha girl between each of the 14 guests.

Ford was flanked by Miss Mameraku and Miss Teruko, who wore pastel-shaded kimonos and had their hair decorated with glittering pins and yarn. As the geishas helped the guests light cigarettes, poured the sake and smiled, the President and Kissinger bantered to each other across the table.

When they entered the restaurant, Ford and the other members of his party took off their shoes and put on sandals.

After they were well launched into their sumptous 10-course meal, reporters and photographers in their stocking feet were allowed to enter the dining room with its tatami-mat floors to take photos and catch a bit of the conversation.

"You're on the wrong side," tte President told Kissinger with a wide grin. "Want to change places?"

"I can't face my wife tomorrow," Kissinger quipped.

"That would be embarrassing," said Ford.

Using his chopsticks for the shrimp tempura, Ford told the other guests: "I want to show off for the press." And when complimented by Japanese officials on his use of chopsticks, the President said: "I'm learning. Look, I can even do it left-handed."

During the dinner, Counsellor Robert Hartmann, also seated at the table, took photographs for the President's private use.

While the news pool was still present, two geisha dancers performed a classical number to a melody about autumn leaves.

The dinner was paid for by the Japanese government. The tab was not disclosed.

FBI's 'Dirty Tricks' Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department says it does not condone the "dirty tricks" used by the late J. Edgar Hoover to harass radical political groups. But FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley refused yesterday to promise they wouldn't happen again.

Hoover

Both Justice Department officials and Kelley testified before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

The activities, officially described as being legitimate, included some that have been described as "dirty tricks": Informing employers and creditors that individuals were "radicals," faking credentials and infiltrating activist organizations and spreading false tips to cause members of the organizations to distrust one another.

Guerrilla Dragnet

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Police in the western Argentine city of Cordoba killed four leftist guerrillas in a shootout and captured 18 others in an eight-day dragnet, Cordoba Police Chief Hector Garcia Rey announced today.

Among the captives were the leader and two key members of the Oct. 17 guerrilla faction that works closely with the People's Revolutionary Army, known as ERP, Garcia Rey said in a communique.

Police sources said the four guerrillas were killed yesterday.

Vote On Israel

PARIS (UPI) — The U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization called a meeting today to vote on new Arab-sponsored sanctions aimed at increasing the international isolation of Israel.

UNESCO's general conference voted yesterday to cut off aid to Israel for allegedly disfiguring Christian and Moslem monuments in the occupied Arab section of Jerusalem.

The conference scheduled a new session today to take up resolutions excluding the Jewish state from UNESCO's regional programs and demanding U.N. control over educational activities in Israeli-occupied territories.

Urges Example

DALLAS (UPI) — A heart specialist says doctors can't expect their patients to give up smoking and watch their diets unless the physicians set a good example by doing it too.

Dr. John S. Schroeder of the Stanford University Medical School said it is important for persons who have had one heart attack to quit smoking, lose weight, eat a low cholesterol diet and exercise.

"I think we must be a model to our patients, though," Schroeder said yesterday.

Aerosol Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Academy of Sciences has ordered an investigation into the possibility that gases from household aerosol cans may damage the atmosphere's ozone layer that protects us from solar radiation.

Donald M. Hunten, chairman of the panel, said he believes the investigation probably will lead to a recommendation for restrictions on manufacture of the propellant gases known as fluorocarbons.

Belfast Killing

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and killed a Protestant man today and stuffed his body in the back seat of a car in Belfast. It was the third killing in Northern Ireland in less than 24 hours.

Extremists in Northern Ireland shot a Roman Catholic bartender to death last night, just hours after a policeman died in a bomb blast.

Magazines Closed

LIMA (UPI) — The military government shut down two of the last independent news magazines in Peru yesterday and ordered nine journalists deported.

The government accused the magazines and the reporters of conducting an anti-government campaign.

Mansfield Asks Controls Backing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield asked fellow Democrats today to support his proposal to give President Ford power to control wages, prices, profits, interest rates and dividends.

Mansfield offered his bill authorizing presidential control of the economy despite the adamant opposition of President Ford and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. Ford now lacks the authority to impose controls.

"We see a situation developing which could, in my opinion, take us back to the terrible days of the Depression of the '30s if we do not face up to our responsibilities," Mansfield told the Senate yesterday.

He summoned Senate Democrats to a closed caucus today to seek their backing. He feels the election returns put an obligation on the Democrats to offer their own alternative economic programs.

To meet Meany's objection that controls are unevenly enforced and unfair to workers, the bill would require Ford to submit to Congress within 60 days of enactment an enforcement plan to use should he change his mind in a worsening economic situation.

Mansfield has conceded there is no chance of passing his bill in this Congress. He will try in the 94th Congress when it meets in January. By that time, he predicted, nationwide unemployment will have reached 7 per cent.

Meany argues that unless an administration is willing to commit millions of dollars to enforcing controls with a big bureaucracy, wages are held down in a control program while prices rise almost unchecked.

He said that happened in Phases II and III of former President Richard Nixon's control program.

Economists are divided over whether the economic situation — with recession bypassing inflation as the foremost worry — calls for controls.

In his Senate speech, Mansfield criticized Ford's reliance on public self-restraint.

"Volunteerism is not the answer," he said. "Wearing a button on one's lapel is not the answer. Cleaning one's plate is not the answer."

Judge Orders Tapes Played In Civil Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first such ruling involving a civil suit, a federal judge has ordered the White House to release nine hours of former President Richard M. Nixon's tapes in connection with the mass arrests at a May, 1971 antiwar rally.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant's ruling was handed down last week, but was reinforced yesterday at a hearing during which attorneys for Nixon sought a delay compliance with a subpoena for the material.

The ruling could prove to be a precedent to the more than 28 other civil cases pending against the former president nationwide. Nixon attorney Raymond Larocca told Bryant he would atempt to block compliance with the subpoena.

The judge responded by telling Larocca, "I'll order the tapes to be produced a week from today (Wednesday). You can file what you want."

The plaintiffs in the suit are 1,200 persons arrested while attending a rally at the Capitol on May 5, 1971. The class action was brought by Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., who addressed the crowd that day.

Dellums charged the arrests interfered with his rights as a congressmen and with those of several individuals arrested.

The plaintiffs sought White House conversations on May 4-5 involving former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Mitchell's successor Richard Kleindienst, former Washington, D.C. police chief Jerry Wilson, and former White House aides H. R. Haldeman, John Erlichman and John W. Dean III.

The plaintiffs want to determine if the arrests were discussed or planned by the White House.

Vidal Humor Spiced By Political Puns

By PAT ANGLE

"I am complacently positive," Gore Vidal has said, "that there is no human problem which could not be solved if people would simply do as I say."

Consequently, 28 minutes after the satirical novelist arrived in Marin last night, he had dispatched the nation's crime problems, not to mention overpopulation, drug abuse, diminishing resources and apathy.

Reading from a prepared text ("I'll look up from time to time to give an air of spontaneity") Vidal proposed some not-so-very profound solutions:

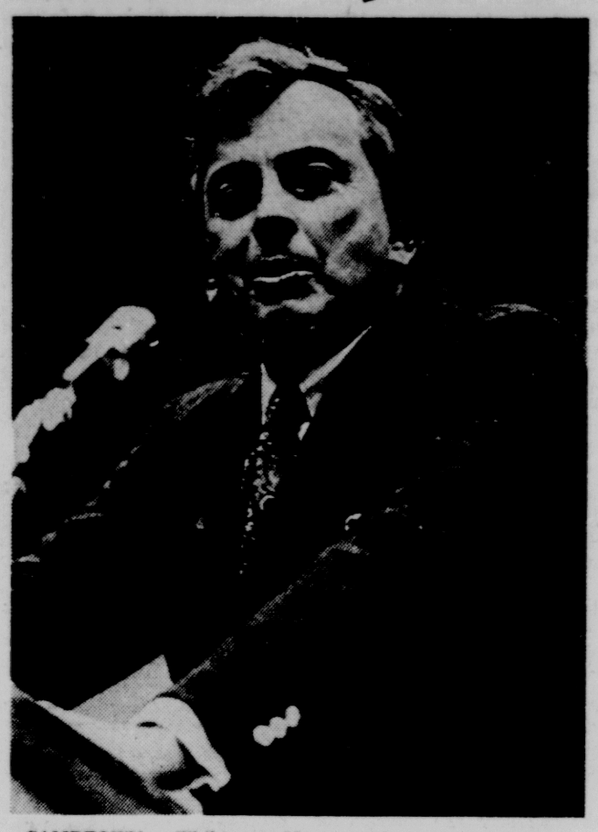
"Remove all victimless crimes from the statute books. After all, why arrest someone for getting money for going to bed with someone who doesn't appeal to them — that was the basis of most of the marriages of my generation. 'Marvin may not be good-looking, but he's a good provider.'

"Legalize all drugs and make them available at cost with a prescription.

"Allow each woman to have only one child in her lifetime; those who don't want any can pass their rights to other women.

"Nationalize our basic resources — oil, coal, copper — and put them in the hands of a fourth branch of government, a group of people trained to believe it is better to be paid in honor than in money.

"Get rid of all television advertising. Children learn quickly that commercials are untrue and soon believe everything on the box is untrue; this makes for apathy."



CAMPTOWN — While most Marin residents were watching TV, eating or just sitting around doing nothing last night, Novelist Gore Vidal was at the College of Marin, solving the problems of the country and the world. (Photo by Alfred Arn)

But it's not what Vidal says; it's how he says it.

And the author of "The City and the Pillar" and "Myra Breckenridge" managed to make the more than 1,000 persons who gathered to hear him at the College of Marin laugh at everything from mass starvation to the dangers of Fascism.

"I've come to the sad conclusion that at any one time one third of the people in the United States would be very happy with a Fascist state," he told the audience.

"Observe how many admirers Richard Nixon still has. I'm absolutely convinced that if Nixon strangled Pat on live television, one third of the people in this country would say: 'No, he didn't strangle her; she had a heart attack and he was holding her up by the neck.' "

"We've become a very cringing people in the last 30 years," Vidal said. "At the sight of a general or a Rockefeller we fall on our knees, kiss their rings and ask for protection for the Cossacks, not realizing that they are the Cossacks."

Vidal, who spends half of each year in Italy, worried that the U.S. government may be managing to fool all of the people all of the time.

"For example, the life of most western Europeans is considerably better than that of most Americans since people in Europe have higher salaries than we do and such amenities as national health services which work quite well.

"But the government doesn't want Americans to know this or they might get grumpy and demand something back for their taxes.

"So to keep people here from rebelling, the government puts out the story that most people in civilized countries like Sweden commit suicide.

"It's a plot to make us think that unless 20 per cent of the population is near the starvation level, life is so boring that people kill themselves."

Vidal drew chortles when he explained that in his latest novel, "Myron," he has replaced all the "dirty words" with the names of the Supreme Court justices who voted to permit communities to set their own pornography standards.

"So 'rehnquist" and 'powell' have become parts of the male anatomy, and 'to burger' is an impolite verb."

Those who came to hear something outrageous from the man who some consider "the bad boy of letters" must have been disappointed. But, as Vidal explained, his speech had been refined by delivery in such places as Marietta, Ga., Walla Walla, Wash., and Medford, Ore.

"How do conservative audiences react to what you have to say?" one Marin matron asked. "Isn't this a conservative audience?" the novelist retorted.

Vidal flashed around the national and international scene, sticking his wit in a variety of people and places:

AMERICA — "The Europeans think we're crazy, too neurotic to be dealt with. They thought we were in Vietnam for oil; then they found out the reasons for Lyndon Johnson's cornpone Genghis Khan number: machismo."

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR. — "With Bill you have to break through the ice to get to the cold water underneath."

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION — "They've spent millions and millions to spy on people whose politics didn't appeal to the director. They burglarized my apartment twice when I was involved in the peace movement. You can always tell when it's the FBI because they don't take things like typewriters or TVs. They just go through everything, looking for clues — like canceled checks from Hanoi or Chinese laundry lists."

DEFENSE SPENDING — "Even the conservatives admit that we could cut 10 per cent from the Pentagon budget and still keep the world safe for ITT."

ASSASSINS — "I'm convinced that the Nixon people had something to do with the shooting of Wallace. In 1968 Nixon almost lost to Humphrey because Wallace got 13 per cent of the vote. It was just too convenient that he was shot in 1972. Isn't it amazing that in a country where most people can't read without moving their lips, that Lee Harvey Oswald, Sirhan Sirhan and Arthur Bremer all kept well-written diaries?"

ROCKEFELLER — If he gets to be vice president, he will be president and he will never die. Rockefellers never die. They recycled old John D. the first into John D. IV."

RELIGION — "I'd really like to be Pope. I have this recurring dream that I'm standing on the balcony over St. Peter's Square, wearing the triple tiara and demonstrating inter-uterine devices."

Three Arrested In Gang Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police arrested three Chinese men yesterday in connection with a 1973 slaying they said resulted from rivalry among youth gangs in Chinatown.

Police Lt. Charles Ellis that one other man had been arrested last week in the same case.

The latest taken into custody are Alan Ng, 21; David Lee, 18, and Kenny Wong, 20, all of San Francisco.

Arrested previously was Eddie Yuen, 20, also of San Francisco.

The slain man was Wayne Wing Fung, 19, who was shot in the back while working as a gasoline station attendant.

Fund Drive Of Crusade Nears Goal

The United Crusade in Marin County has come within $25,740 of its $225,000 goal, Crusade spokesmen announced today, deadline for the 1974 campaign.

The drive has thus far netted $130,860 in cash and another $68,400 in pledges for a total of $199,260.

A further drive in Marin schools is to begin after Thanksgiving, and, based on last year's figures, this should garner another $13,000.

Spokesmen said this would mean a total of more than $212,000 for the entire campaign in the county and represents a 23 per cent increase over last year.

In the five counties, the final projected figure is $18,050,171, short of the $21 million goal but an 11.4 per cent increase over last year, campaign chairman Gordon Hough told volunteers at a final report luncheon today in San Francisco.

Pleasant Hill Man Given Probation

A young man who admitted threatening three women hitchhikers with a knife received an unusual order today as he was sentenced in Marin Superior Court.

William Frank Perkins, 26, of Pleasant Hill, was told he must sell his van and not pick up hitchhikers during his five years on probation.

Judge Charles Read Best also ordered Perkins to spend 90 days in Marin County Jail and take part in therapy.

"If he gets caught picking up a hitchhiker," Best warned, "he goes to state prison."

Perkins pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon. He gave a ride to three women from Sausalito to Tiburon in June, but on their arrival he held a knife to the abdomen of an 18-year-old San Francisco woman and ordered the three not to leave his van. They jumped out anyway.

cars and unusually high resale value of used cars.

The cost of buying a home also continued to rise last month because of interest rates in the 9 per cent range. And furnishings for new homes such as ranges, refrigerators and other appliances also went up.

The rise in interest rates for new homes accounted for 40 per cent of the increase in the services sector of the CPI.

The department said rents, utilities, costs for home improvements and repairs also increased in October.

The cost of family outings and evenings on the town also rose in October, the department said. Costs rose for getting the car repaired for the outing, with the exception of gasoline prices which declined for the third straight month.

It also cost more for illness in October than in September, the department said. Physicians and hospitals raised prices 0.7 per cent in October and 12 per cent over the past 12 months.

There were declines in only three of 28 categories in the CPI. Meats, poultry and fish were down 1.6 per cent; fresh fruits and vegetables down 0.3 per cent and gasoline, down 2.5 per cent.

The sharpest increases were for new cars, up 4.5 per cent, food away from home, up 3.3 per cent, cereals and bakery products up 2.5 per cent.

Purchasing power of the dollar declined to 0.8 per cent in October and was down 10.8 per cent from October, 1973, the department said.

Reelected

Rachel P. Conner of San Rafael was reelected to a one-year term as chairman of the Marin County Committee on School District Organization at the committee's meeting last night. Roy A. Parks of Tomales was reelected vice chairman.

wall, but passersby protected the vessel from heavy damage by hanging old tires between it and the wall. Later the Coast Guard towed the boat away.

By noon today, .65 of an inch of rain had fallen in San Rafael, bringing the total since July 1 to 4.47. Last year's total at this date was 4.80.

Other rainfall figures reported in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were: Sausalito, .15 of an inch; Mill Valley, .44; Tamalpais Valley, .43; Homestead Valley, .30; Belvedere, .18; Woodacre, .44; Marinwood, .44; Corte Madera, .45; Larkspur, .30; Bolinas, .41; San Anselmo, .68; Novato, .40, and Petaluma, .25.

Elsewhere in the state, the snow level dropped to the 6,000-foot level as the storm hit Northern California. Chains were advised on Highway 80 through the Donner Pass, according to the Highway Patrol.

The weatherman said there will be heavy rain at times with high winds predicted, turning to showers tonight and decreasing clouds tomorrow.

But the clearing will be brief, according to the prediction, because more rain is expected this weekend.

AT&T used, a final decision might not emerge until the 1980s.

In 1949, the government brought a much narrower anti-trust suit aganst AT&T. That case was eight years in litigation before being settled out of court.

In the present case, the three defendants are charged with "combining and conspiring to monopolize, attempting to monopolize and monopolizing the telecommunications service and equipment markets" in violation of the Sherman antitrust law.

As a result, "purchasers ... have been denied the benefits of a free and competitive market," the complaint said.

Specifically, the department said AT&T had obstructed other phone companies, microwave companies, mobile phone services and satellite carriers from linking up with the Bell networks.

The complaint also said AT&T directed most of its customers to buy equipment from Western Electric, its wholly owned subsidiary.

The department hopes to divide Western Electric into two or more competing firms in order to provide more competition in the manufacture and sale of equipment.

The Justice Department stressed it was not challenging the practice of allowing local companies to provide exclusive telephone service in an area.

Nevertheless, the 23 local Bell-affiliated firms that provide the bulk of the nation's phone service were named as co-conspirators but not defendants in the case.

San Jose Snips 100-Foot Pole

SAN JOSE (UPI) — The developer of a multi-million dollar shopping center has been ordered to take down a 100-foot flagpole topped by a golden eagle, David Boggini, the chief San Jose building inspector, said today.

He said the pole rises 65 feet above the height limitation for the area, which is predominantly residential.

According to Boggini, the flagpole plan of the developer, Chan Chrismen, was rejected when it was presented to the city planning commission.

Three Held In Italian Kidnap Case

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Police held two men and a woman today in the kidnapping of a wealthy industrialist's son whose family paid $7½ million to $9 million, a record ransom for Italy.

Police said the trio are believed to be members of the gang that abducted Giuseppe Lucchini, 22, son of one of Italy's wealthiest men, in nearby Brescia five days ago. He was released near his home yesterday after his father reportedly paid the ransom.

Police said they may have found the hideout where young Lucchini was held at Vicenza, 38 miles west of Venice.

The largest known ransom in modern times was $14.2 million paid by Exxon Corp. to Argentine guerrillas for release of American oil executive Victor E. Samuelson. Samuelson was held for five months.

On the island of Sardina, four masked bandits kidnapped a wealthy industrialist last night. The victim, Giuseppe Ragas, 56, of Bologna, was the 41st kidnap victim in Italy this year.

Another kidnap victim, Francesco Segafredo, owner of a coffee empire, was freed between Bologna and Florence last night after being held for three days. His family paid a reported $1.5 million ransom.

FORD

well as occasional hostile demonstrators.

Guarded by more than 8,000 police and security men, Ford visited the ancient imperial palace, Shinto and Zen Buddhist shrines, and the near-400-year-old Nijo castle with floors built to creak at every step as a precaution against intruders.

A hectic two-day state visit in Tokyo lay behind. Ahead lay trips to South Korea tomorrow and to a summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok Saturday. But for one day Ford was a tourist in grand style with no official state responsibilities.

"What a great day to see the ancient traditions and treasures of Japan," he said.

Ford flew to Kyoto —a city of centuries-old splendors and now a hotbed of Japanese Communism — after planting a nine-foot dogwood tree in the courtyard of his Tokyo guest house and bidding farewell to Emperor Hirohito.

The sightseeing offered Ford's first close-up contact with the people of Japan.

Thousands lined the streets, wearing kimonos and waving flags, to welcome the first U.S. president ever to visit Japan. Their cheers stood in sharp contrast to the President's greeting in Tokyo, where 15,000 police kept him almost totally isolated from the people.

Even the bellboys at Kyoto's Miyako Hotel, where the presidential party took 375 of the total 480 rooms, grinned and applauded when Ford checked into his $500-a-day suite.

But Ford heard shouts of "fuodo kaere" (Ford go home) from groups of hecklers as he drove with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in a White House limousine to the old Imperial Palace where Hirohito was enthroned in 1928.

About 200 protesters shouted objections to Ford's visit at the palace. Another 20 staged a demonstration when he toured Ninjo Castle, once a stronghold of Japan's old militay dictators which was built in 1603 with floors that creaked at every step to warn against intruders.

MAIL

would cease, and that mail addressed to a street address but delivered to boxes would be delayed, a host of charges denied by Cassidy.

Cassidy noted that in four other Marin and Southern Sonoma cities a carrier switching arrangement is used, with no complaints from residents.

"There will be no reduction in carrier service. There will be no reduction in window service. The only difference is that the carriers will do their sorting in Corte Madera," he said flatly.

He labeled as "absolutely false" statements that he was planning to phase out completely the Larkspur post office.

Cassidy told the I-J that he will soon advise the district postal supervisor in San Francisco on how to handle the Larkspur situation. He expects to recommend shifting carriers, because there is realistically no way that the current Larkspur office can be kept a full service facility, he said.

He noted that frequently the San Rafael office has to keep bags of Larkspur mail in San Rafael for an extra day, because there isn't room in Larkspur to put the full mailbags. Clerks "trip over mailbags" on some crowded mornings in the Larkspur office, he said.

Councilman Malvino said the whole matter wasn't any of the council's business. "this council has no jurisdiction whatsoever in telling the post office how to run its business," he argued.

But Councilman Charles H. Curley said the matter was important to Larkspur citizens. "If there haven't been any complaints about current service and the carriers don't want to go and there won't be an improvement in service by moving, then why move?" he asked.

board. It shouldn't take us long to get our house in order."

"I still believe we're better off single," Mrs. Bergerson said.

Ehrlich, who spoke strongly against autonomy and called for a combined community development agency at the board's last debate on its own fate, refused to say any more about his stand last night, other than that it is unchanged.

Ehrlich refused to let anyone other than commissioners join the debate, arguing that "we've had about two and one-half hours of discussion on this before."

Acting Executive Director Paul E. Nixon was instructed to draft a letter on the majority stand, for clearance by each of the commissioners.

Probation Given In Drug Case

A San Anselmo woman has been found eligible for treatment by the Marin Probation Department instead of prosecution on a charge of possessing cocaine.

Dorie Young, 23, was placed on probation for two years by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court under a law allowing leniency for first-time offenders.

She was arrested in July after San Anselmo police, acting on a tip, appeared at her apartment and searched a nearby storeroom, finding marijuana, hashish and cocaine.

Donations

San Marin Improvement Association directors last night contributed $25 to the Novato community Christmas party and $100 to the Novato Human Needs Center for its Christmas program for needy families.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Erwin Kuh Dies At Age 91

Funeral for Dr. Erwin Kuh, retired research chemist and educator, was held yesterday at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Kuh died Tuesday of complications following a fall and a fractured arm; he was 91.

He was born in Czechoslovakia and earned his doctorate at the Polytechnic Institute of Zurich. He became a research industrial chemist in Switzerland and later in Munich, Germany.

Kuh established his own research laboratory in Vienna after World War I, then came to the United States in 1939. A year later he joined a laboratory of the Calco Chemical division of American Cyanamid, retiring from that post at age 70.

He then joined the faculty of Rutgers University, where he remained until he was 80. He came to San Rafael almost six years ago to live with a nephew, Walter S. Strauss of San Rafael.

His wife, Dr. Salomea Kuh, also was a research chemist and had been a college classmate. She died three months ago in San Rafael. They had no children.

Dr. Kuh was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the New York Academy of Science.

G. W. CHARTERS

Funeral for George W. Charters of San Rafael, former assistant manager of the Crown Zellerbach mill in Camas, Wash., was held today in Camas.

He died Sunday in San Rafael after a long illness. He was 85.

A native of Ashland, Wis., Charters grew up in Eau Claire, Wis. He started working in the paper industry in Fort Francis, Ont.

After his marriage to the former Christine Pinault in 1918, he went to Grand Mere, Quebec, as groundwood superintendent of the Laurentide Paper Co.

In 1926 Charters became superintendent of the E. B. Eddy newsprint, groundwood and sulfite mills, Ottawa, Canada. He then went to Camas where he remained until retiring in 1954.

Charters helped organize the Camas Community Chest.

He served with the Army Air Corps in World War I.

Since the death of his wife four years ago, he had lived in San Rafael.

He is survived by three sons, George A. Charters of San Rafael, John Charters of Sacramento and Robert Charters of Enumclaw, Wash.; a daughter, Jean Van Hoomisser of Boise, Ida. and 15 grandchildren.

Burial was in the Camas Memorial Cemetery.

MISS SLUSHER

Private service was yesterday for Margaret A. Slusher, self-employed writer and 10-year resident of Marin.

Miss Slusher, 60, died Tuesday at a local hospital apparently of a heart attack, according to the Marin County Coroner's office. She was brought to the hospital just after collapsing at her home aboard a houseboat in the Heliport area just outside Sausalito.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., she had been in California for 25 years.

No closely related family members survive her.

MARIE WEST

Marie Welch West, Los Altos poet and mother of Josephine Seelig of Kentfield, died Tuesday in a Santa Clara county hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. West, 69, was a native of San Francisco and daughter of the late shipping magnate Andrew Welch. At one time she was critic and associate editor of the San Francisco Review.

Mrs. West also is survived by another daughter, Dr. Marguerite West of Palo Alto; a sister, Mrs. Starr Bruce of Burlinghame, and a grandson. She was the wife of the late George West, former editor of the old San Francisco News.

There was no funeral. The family prefers contributions to Semper Virens Conservation Fund, P.O. Box 1141, Los Altos.

MRS. THOMPSON

Gwen E. Thompson of Carmel, former Marin County resident, died Monday in Carmel after a long illness. She was 62.

A native of Alameda, she lived in Ross from 1942 until 1961 when she moved to Bolinas. While in Ross, she was director of volunteers for Marin General Hospital. She moved from Bolinas to Carmel four years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Everett T. Thompson of Carmel; a daughter, Mrs. Wendy Knowles of Mill Valley and a son, Ted Graupner of Escalon, San Joaquin County and four grandchildren.

No funeral is planned.

MAYNARD WATKINS

Funeral for Maynard Watkins of Cotati will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel in Petaluma.

The 64-year-old retired trucking company owner died Monday in a local convalescent hospital after a short illness.

Watkins was a native of Oklahoma. He had lived in California 30 years, the last 16 years in Cotati. He retired in 1967.

Watkins is survived by his wife, Mary; a daughter, Zellamae Prentice of Marysville, and a son, Maynard L. Watkins of Novato; three brothers, James Younts of Washington, Richard Watkins of Oakdale, Stanislaus County, and Iven Fink of Missouri; three sisters, Vivian Deines of Washington, Gladys Taylor of Colorado and Mary Jackson of Lamont, Kern County; two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Graveside service and burial will be in Marysville.

Kentfield Day Care Plan Delayed

Kentfield School District trustees have decided to postpone discussing a plan by parents for a day care center until they can figure out whether the proposal is legal.

The board on Tuesday instructed Supt. Eugene C. Peters to check with county counsel but encouraged the parents to continue working on plans.

Parents want a room at Greenbrae school set aside from 9-10 a.m. and 1:15-4 p.m. and want a day care teacher hired. An estimated 8 to 15 children from kindergarten through third grade would use the facility.

The Kentfield School District board also:

RENTAL — Ruled Kent Skov of Kentfield can use school facilities to teach a private drama class for which he charges tuition if he pays the district "the fair rental value" of the facilities, which it set at $35 per class.

UNION — Recognized the Kentfield Teachers Association, an affiliate of the California Teachers Association, as the representative of the district's teachers.

TRUSTEE — Was told by Stanley T. Smith, board member up for reelection March 4, that he will not run "if enough people come forward to make a contested race."

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to its next meeting Dec. 3 at 8 p.m. at Anthony G. Bacich School.

Probe Is Begun Into 747 Crash

A Lufthansa Boeing 747 with 157 persons aboard faltered seconds after takeoff yesterday and plunged tail first into a muddy field a mile from the end of the runway at Nairobi International Airport.

A Lufthansa official said today 59 persons were confirmed dead and 97 survived. Officials said the fate of one passenger was still unknown. Two Americans were believed to be among the dead.

The Johannesburg-bound jet apparently lost power seconds after leaving the ground and fell back onto the the field.

The five-story tail hit the ground, snapping off with a great splintering crash. The plane twisted in an 180-degree arc and exploded in flames.

Pilot Christian Krack said he "was taking off normally. The plane broke up and was suddenly going down. I don't know what happened."

Lufthansa sent nearly 100 West German investigators to Kenya to uncover the cause of the East African crash.

"We have only mysteries," Lufthansa spokesman Karl Wingenroth said. "It was a normal takeoff. We just don't know what happened."

It was the first crash of a 747 jumbo jet since the giant aircraft went into service five years ago. The 747 is considered by pilots to be one of the safest passenger planes in the world.

CHRISTIAN KRACK
Says plane broke up

Survivors praised the pilot and the cabin crew for their calm and efficiency in getting passengers out of the plane before it exploded.

"We hit a huge mound and then the roadway," said 51-year-old Edmund Senkler of Seattle, Wash. "But for that I'm sure the pilot would have brought her down safely with few casualties."

His wife, Elinor, said she didn't even have time to be afraid.

Oil Nations Planning To Hike Taxes

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Oil producing nations will demand an 87 per cent boost in oil taxes next month, the Saudi Arabian oil minister said in an interview published today.

"The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will agree on a significant increase in oil prices at its next meeting in Vienna on Dec. 12," Sheikh Ahmed Yamani Yamani said in an interview with the weekly magazine Quick.

"We will experience on 87 per cent increase in oil taxes," he said.

Yamani said the increase was aimed to reducing oil companies' profits.

"We Saudis don't want this increase to benefit us. We want the consumer to benefit," he said.

"The consumers will have to take care that the increase is not passed on to them."

Saudi Arabia, the largest oil exporter in the world, recently lowered the price of its oil and Yamani said, "I am astonished that this step has been misunderstood.

"What angers us," he said, "is the fact that oil concerns end up with their enormous profits and then make investments which have nothing to do with the oil industry."

Yamani said, "we have lowered the price of our oil at the tap. That was just a small step.

"It does not mean the end of our measures."

Seniors Want A Wider Program

The North Bay Senior Planning Council, an infant agency responsible for planning services for elderly people in Marin, Napa, Solano and Sonoma counties, heard a call yesterday for a larger program next fiscal year.

The call was made at a public hearing at the Whistlestop in San Rafael by two persons involved in senior citizen activities in Marin.

Edward T. Ryken, coordinator for the Senior Citizens Coordinating Council, and Dr. Bernard Carp, director of Emeritus College at College of Marin, urged the council to enlarge its objectives, bridge communications between the four counties and plan programs for senior citizens that are "not in dire need."

Ryken, who was recently appointed liaison to the council by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, said present priorities of "health, transportation and social services" are limited.

And Carp said the council needed to think about those "senior citizens that are not in dire need" and to find a wider base to bring "these people" into active programs."

Other suggestions were for day care facilities in neighborhoods' preventive medical services and more emphasis in West Marin.

Norine Miover, of Petaluma president of the council's advisory board and chairman of the meeting, said "The input from today's hearing will go into broader objectives for the coming year."

Earlier in the day Miss Miover, who represents Sonoma County on the nine-member volunteer board, held a similar meeting in Santa Rosa.

Other meetings will be held in Napa and Fairfield on Nov. 27.

The council was formed in 1972 as a private, nonprofit corporation to plan services in the four-county area.

Last July the agency became a wing of the California Office on Aging with $195,908 from the state to begin basic planning, according to Sally A. Shultz, named in April 1973, to establish a central office in San Rafael.

Miss Shultz said the main objective of the council is "to work with other agencies to expand their programs without an increase in their funds.

"We're like a court of last resort — a planning agency for others and not a funding agency.

"This is a new concept in he field of aging. We're working in the grass roots area as a buffer between concerned citizens and the state."

Marin's representatives on the advisory board are James D. Kilty, director of the Catholic Social Service of Marin, and Juanita Anderson of Marin City.

Miss Shultz, who worked in senior citizen programs in Solano County before taking her present job, said the council has about $120,000 remaining in its 1974-75 fiscal budget with a year-to-year holdover clause.

New Deputy Is Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new sheriff's deputy has been arrested after he reported for work at the county jail in San Bruno allegedly with marijuana in his possession.

Jose Padillo, 23, hired in August under the federally-funded welfare Incentive Now program, was booked into city prison yesterday on various charges including possession of marijuana for sale.

Police said Padillo had been under investigation for six weeks.

Housing Authority Refuses To Answer Miller Charges

The attack on the Marin County Housing Authority by Arthur Miller Jr. on the occasion of his resignation from the authority board will not be "dignified" by a reply, remaining board members agreed last night. (Another housing authority story, page 1.)

His former colleagues, however, did ask the Marin City Tenants Council to speak up against Miller in a letter to Michael Wornum, chairman of the board of supervisors.

Miller had charged in his letter of resignation to Wornum that the housing authority seeks to convince blacks to remain in Marin City and out of the rest of the county.

Frank Phillips Sr., chairman of the tenants council, said "tenants had a lot of problems" during Miller's term, and urged the commission to answer itself.

"I don't think we should dignify" Miller's attack with an answer, said Commissioner Myrna Bergstrom.

Commissioner Rogers Jones said, "I'm the one he's criticizing, mostly, and I say just forget it." He jubilantly said he felt like hosting a post-meeting party because of the resignation.

He added that he had consulted an attorney, but had decided against suing Miller for libel because he wasn't identified by name in the attack.

Authority chairman Philip S. Ehrlich said that Miller's letter also attacked Marin Legal Aid, county supervisors and the press. "We're in good company," he added.

Ehrlich also charged that Miller had threatened to beat up an authority chairman, walked out of meetings and made racist remarks during the authority's long dispute that led to the firing of Wallace K. Shepherd from the authority executive directorship in August. Miller was Sheperd's staunchest alley.

Marin County Housing Authority Also:

LAWYER — Approved paying a fee of $18,663.58 to attorney Benjamin James for defending the authority in a Marin City tenants' suit against the modernization project. James' contract originally called for only $15,000 but the overrun was approved by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development which ultimately will foot the bill, authority acting director Paul E. Nixon reported.

OVERSPENDING — Revamped the 1974 budget to take some $25,000 unspent from several accounts to offset 15 per cent deficits in administrative costs due to salary hikes granted but not budgeted, and the unexpectedly high legal expenses involving Marin City disputes. Sleepy Hollow resident Roy Zattiero questioned how the commissioners could have approved a 10 per cent staff raise without budgeting for it. Nixon was instructed to locate minutes and memoranda of the pay raise discussion for the next meeting, to reply to Zattiero's question.

BUDGET — Approved asking HUD to budget a total of $523,580 — up $30,830 from this year — for operating the authority's low-rent housing next year, and $732,390 — up $27,020 — for the leased housing program. The authority manages 600 low-rent units for the county and leases 286 units from private landlords.

HIGH RISE — Heard Nixon report the agency will follow up on this year's modernization of 100 Marin City apartments with a federal grant application in 1975 for funds to modernize the remaining units. This, he explained, was why the next year's budget contains no more maintenance funds than this year, despite inflation.

TRUCK — Approved spending up to $4,000 for a pickup truck to replace two unrepairable old authority vehicles.

SALARY — Instructed Nixon to list a discussion of paying commissioners a salary on the agenda for the next meeting.

SHARING — Informally decided to take no action on a report that the fired Shepherd still is driving a housing authority car during his continued duties as executive director of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency. The agency shares the housing offices, pays 25 per cent of the rent and 11 per cent of the salaries but uses only 5 per cent of the staff's time, Nixon reported. "Leave it alone," urged Ehrlich. "It's aggravating and annoying" for Shepherd still to use the car, but dispute over cost sharing would result "in a mess on our hands," he said.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3.

Fight In Boston Injures Student

BOSTON (UPI) — A white student was injured during a fight in front of South Boston High School yesterday just after four buses transporting black students arrived.

Transit Bill Is Pushed By Mayors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An intense lobbying crusade by big city mayors and the administration has pushed a $11.8 billion mass transit aid bill up to its last hurdle, a committee jurisdictional dispute in the House.

The House Rules Committee, which earlier balked at approving the bill because of a dispute between the House Public Works and Banking Committees, cleared the six-year measure yesterday for House floor debate.

"I think it's time for the Rules Committee to stop taking a beating on mass transit," said Rules chairman Ray Madden, D-Ind. The Rules Committee generally decides which bills the House can consider and under what rules.

The Senate passed the bill 64-17 Tuesday, and President Ford strongly favors it, leaving only the jurisdictional dispute in the way.

"It will be a squeaker," predicted one House staff member of the eventual House vote, which could come within the next few days.

The bill would grant $7.8 billion in construction and improvement funds, to be doled out on a case-by-case basis.

Construction grants would be made on an 80-20 federal matching basis.

Amtrak President Will Resign When Successor Can Be Found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Roger Lewis, Amtrak's only president through the faltering three and a half year revival of the passenger train, will resign as soon as a successor can be found.

Lewis told the Amtrak board of directors yesterday he would quit as president and chief executive officer, ending all contact with the day-to-day operations of the national passenger train network. He will remain a member of the board.

He cited "personal reasons" for his decision.

Caught between a White House that wanted to phase out the passenger train and a Congress that wanted vast expansion, Lewis was cast as villain to advocates of public passenger trains because of his cautious approach to expansion.

Critics said Lewis never believed the passenger train could be saved until the energy crisis caused an avalanche of new passengers. By then it was too late to order new equipment and revise operations to handle them.

ROGER LEWIS
To remain on board

Supporters, fewer in number, countered that Lewis' problems were often not of his own making and that he sometimes made "near courageous" stands to prevent both railroads and the government from downgrading his trains.

Reacting to congressional pressure, a new Amtrak board, appointed earlier this year, already has begun a search for a new operating officer. It was generally assumed he would take Lewis' place as president.

Two men have been seriously mentioned as possible Lewis successors: Paul Reistrup of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad and Paul Cruikshank of the U.S. Railway Association.

Lewis, 62, is a former assistant Air Force secretary and former president of General Dynamics. Much of his career has been in the aircraft industry.

He became Amtrak president shortly before May 1, 1971, when Amtrak took over most of the nation's passenger trains.

Professor Finds Heady Lead

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — That bottle of wine may make the perfect dinner. But it also might mean a tenfold increase in your body's lead content, a University of Idaho chemistry professor says.

Dr. Chien Wai said a research project which began in 1971 shows that wine bottles capped by a metal seal often contain one to two parts per million of lead in the liquid.

He said consumption of four or five bottles of wine sealed with metal caps over their corks can give the average person the equivalent of one year's accumulation of lead.

Governor Buys A 677-Acre Ranch

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan has made a half-million-dollar purchase of a 677-acre coastal mountain ranch near Santa Barbara as a weekend vacation retreat.

Clyde Walthall, press secretary for Reagan, yesterday said the purchase "fulfills a long-time dream the governor has had. He has wanted to own a ranch-type piece of property for a long time."

Straddling the Santa Ynez Mountains, the ranch will offer Reagan and his wife, Nancy, breathtaking views of the Pacific Coast on one side and the picturesque Santa Ynez Valley on the other.

The ranch, about 25 miles northwest of Santa Barbara, includes an adobe home. Portions of the property were under contract with the county as "agricultural preserves," insuring Reagan of sizeable tax breaks.

Walthall said the governor will continue to live in his Pacific Palisades home and will use the ranch primarily for weekends and vacations.

Walthall said the price of the property "is a private matter."

Documents on file with the Santa Barbara County recorder's office show at least $527,000 was involved in the transaction.

The records indicate the property was purchased through a three-member "Ronald Reagan Trust" on Nov. 13 from Santa Ynez cattle broker G. Raymond Cornelius.

A total of $579.70 was paid in deed transfer stamps on the property, amounting to at least a $527,000 payment, the recorder's office said.

Two mortgages on the property were on file in the name of the Reagan Trust. One was for $451,600 and the other for $35,000.

The county documents identify members of the Reagan Trust as Justin Dart, a Southern California industrialist and long-time Reagan supporters; William French Smith, Reagan's personal attorney; and William A. Wilson, a close Reagan friend and University of California regent. The records show the trust was established in 1966.

The governor, who leaves office in January after two terms, had planned to make his vacation retreat on a 778-acre ranch near Temecula, between the cities of Riverside and San Diego. He purchased the land in 1967 but complained last year of delays in getting water and power to the location.

Reagan said at the time he was considering selling the property. But Walthall said he did not know if the governor has found a buyer.

In past years, Reagan has bred cattle and raised horses. However, his office disclosed no plans to raise livestock at the new ranch.

The county documents show portions of the ranch are under contract as "agricultural preserves," meaning Reagan will pay property taxes only on the basis of the agricultural potential on the land, not its full market value.

"Agricultural preserves" are permitted under the Williamson Act, a program originally designed to help small farmers. It has come under criticism in recent years by those who contend it has become "a ripoff" for wealthy landowners and agribusiness.

Airline Family Policy Upheld

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — A former employee of Trans World Airlines fired after marrying a fellow employee has lost her suit against the airline.

U.S. District Court Judge H. Kenneth Wangel is yesterday said he agreed with TWA's policy that family relationships should not exist within a business office.

The judge also rejected Donna Harper's contention that she was the object of sex discrimination.

"The policy was enacted to achieve legitimate business purposes and not for any discriminatory purpose," the judge said.

Mrs. Harper said in her suit she and her husband met in the TWA employees' lounge. After they were married, she was the one who was dismissed because she had less seniority than her husband. She requested $6,186 in back wages.

TWA has dropped its ban against married couples working together since the suit was filed, and neither of the Harpers still works for TWA.

Larkspur Parking Bids Are Requested

Bids for constructing a 31-space parking lot at the corner of Magnolia and Ward avenues were called for last night by the Larkspur City Council. (Another Larkspur City Council story, page 1)

City Mgr. Harlan Barry told councilmen that he expects the cost of the project to be about $65,000.

The lot will have its entrance on Magnolia and will exit onto Ward, according to engineer Roy H. Hoffman.

The Larkspur City Council also:

VIDEO — Watched a 30-minute documentary of San Quentin Peninsula development plans produced by Marin Community Video, in order to see the type of show produced by the local cable television group.

BUSINESS LICENSES — Adopted an ordinance allowing new applicants for business licenses late in the year to prorate the annual cost of the license for the remaining months of the year.

SPEED — Introduced an ordinance lowering the speed limit on Marina Vista from 25 to 15 miles per hour, after receiving petitions from residents which said the lower speed was necessary for safety on the narrow road.

CLAIM — Rejected and referred to the city insurance carrier a claim by Timothy J. O'Leary for $420 in damages for injuries his son suffered in a tree house in a city park Sept. 2.

MEETINGS — Set special meetings for Dec. 10, Jan. 7, and Jan. 28 — all at 7:30 p.m. at city hall — to discuss rezoning and planning matters with planning director John E. Roberto; and adjourned to a regular meeting Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Worst Of The Inflation Is Declared Behind Us

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "The worst of the inflation is behind us," but Americans must sacrifice to conserve oil, the 26th Annual Business Outlook Conference was told yesterday.

The leadoff speaker at the meeting sponsored by the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce was Peter G. Peterson, former commerce secretary and now board chairman of Lehman Brothers Inc.

Peterson said reduction of oil use is the only feasible means to get away from reliance on Arab oil.

He said automobiles use 40 per cent of America's oil consumption and suggested for consideration new gasoline taxes and possibly an excise tax on cars which use the most gas.

Another speaker, Thomas A. Murphy, board chairman of General Motors Corp., eschewed the subject of oil supplies and presented a rather optimistic outlook on the economy.

Murphy said it now appears "the back of inflation has been broken" and that the 1975 model cars offer the best value for consumers when one considers the high trade-in value of used cars.

He said there is "strong evidence" the government's anti-inflationary policies are working and explained in a prepared speech:

"World market prices for copper, aluminum, textiles, lumber, steel, scrap, lead, zinc and other industrial materials are declining — and have been for some time.

"If we give proper weight to the positive factors at work in our economy, we feel the evidence is unmistakable: the worst of the inflation is behind us, and perhaps after the first of the year we can look forward to gradual improvement and a gradual recovery of growth trends."

Peterson told the audience of businessmen at the Biltmore Hotel that if the United States could reduce oil use by 10 to 15 per cent of its total daily consumption of 17 million barrels, it virtually eliminates dependence on Middle East production.

"It would reduce our capital requirements and we would not be in a confrontation with the producer nations," he said.

"I'm not saying it won't be painful, but I remind all of you that this country uses three times as much oil per capita as the Japanese.

"It is possible for us to significantly reduce consumption without having a crippling effect on our way of life."

Snow Trip Is Planned

The Novato Youth Commission is planning a snow trip for junior high school students and ski trips for high school seniors, according to Larry Dito, recreation supervisor.

Youth coordinator Geoffrey Bywater Jr. and Commissioner Allison Firyn are to attend a youth conference in Sacramento this weekend, Dito said.

The commissioners set their future meeting dates at 4 p.m. Tuesdays at the parks and recreation office.

Schultz Calls For A Guaranteed Income

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz argued yesterday for a minimum guaranteed income in the U.S. as the equitable solution to both a sagging economy and spiraling "crazy quilt" social programs such as social security and welfare.

Shultz told area business leaders his $23 billion proposal would substitute checks to the poor and abolish many of the nation's social maintenance programs including food stamps.

"The present system is a shell game," he told the San Francisco Bay Area Council. "The income maintenance program I propose would be cheaper and the money would go to those in need and it could be better administered."

Shultz said an acceptable minimum income, such as $7,500 a year, would be established and all those who qualified would receive that amount.

He said he believed the poor who can work, will work, if jobs are available. He proposed they not be restrictively taxed on money they are able to earn. He proposed a 50 per cent tax on their income over the established minimum, noting "that's less than the poor are taxed now."

Holding up a dollar bill, he said, "this is the kind of 'stamp' we need."

Shultz, Treasury secretary under President Nixon and now an executive vice president of Bechtel Corp., said instead of battling each other over regulations, business and government must reconcile their viewpoints to achieve efficiency and equity in meeting the nation's economic needs.

But he strongly opposed the government as a "employer-of-last-resort" for the jobless, he said, because such jobs would not "not be the most productive employment" for the economy.

Retired Bank of American Chairman Louis B. Lundborg told the business leaders it was in their own interest to help solve social problems because they could not function in "a society racked by civil disorder, torn apart by racial tensions, choked by its own pollution, stifled by urban decay and rendered immobile by congestion."

"You don't have to worry about approaching this from a selfish viewpoint," he said. "The rising expectations of others will leave you no choice. The doctrine of caveat emptor —let the buyer beware—is not only dead but buried. In its place has arisen the doctrine of let the seller beware."

Benjamin F. Biaggini, president of Southern Pacific Co., blasted government land use regulations and bureaucracies that "destroy our land rights, further prevent needed development (and) cost us more in economic slowdowns, inflation, unemployment, housing shortages and higher taxes."

He attacked "no-growth" land development policies and proposed a "one-stop" agency in the bay area to coordinate land use matters by consolidating present agencies.

UN Chief Plans Attempt To Cool Arabs

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will meet Arab officials in the Middle East next week for talks aimed at preventing the tense situation there from exploding into a fifth Arab-Israeli war, Foreign Ministry sources in Cairo said today.

In London, diplomatic sources said the Soviet Union was ready to recognize a Palestine government-in-exile following the Moscow visit of Palestine Liberation Leader Yasser Arafat — but will insist that Israel be allowed to survive as an independent state.

The U.N. General Assembly was scheduled to wind up its debate on Palestine today. U.S. Ambassador John Scali was listed as the third speaker and was expected to restate the American position that Israel must be allowed to exist as an independent state.

News of Waldheim's visit came as Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi warned that Israel's threats of military action could wreck the U.S.-Soviet detente and trigger a third world war.

The Foreign Ministry sources said Waldheim sent a message to Fahmi suggesting the visit to Cairo at the end of next week as part of the secretary general's Middle East tour. Fahmi welcomed Waldheim to Egypt, the sources said.

The secretary general also plans to visit Syria and Israel in hopes of persuading Syria to secure a renewal of the mandate keeping U.N. peace keeping forces on the Golan Heights frontier between Israeli and Syrian forces. The mandate expires Nov. 30 and Syria has hinted it may not renew it.

Tension rose sharply in the Middle East last week following Israeli mobilization of troops along the Golan Heights and charges the Syrians were unloading new shipments of Soviet arms.

Israeli staged almost daily attacks on Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon. The situation was heightened Tuesday when Palestinian guerrillas attacked a small apartment building in Beit Shean and Israel vowed a "war on terror."

Guerrilla sources in Damascus said PLO leader Arafat had called a meeting of his top aides today for talks aimed at blunting the Israeli threats of "relentless war" against the guerrillas but that the meeting was postponed because of tension in Lebanon.

Beirut newspapers said Arafat ordered a general mobilization of guerrilla forces and declared an alert at Palestinian refugee camps in anticipation of an Israeli attack.

In Cairo, Fahmi told the weekly newspaper Al Mussawar "the Middle East is the only area in the world today where there is a threat of a general conflagration. A third world war could break out because of Israel's behavior."

Fahmi spoke of Israeli "threats" of military action against the Arabs, regular attacks on southern Lebanon and partial mobilization on the frontlines with Syria last week.

"Israel is, thus, a catastrophic threat to the whole world," Fahmi said.

"She may well become the first country to destroy all hopes for international detente begun by comrade Leonid Brezhnev (general secretary of the Soviet Communist party) and former President Nixon."

The Egyptian diplomat said the Arab nations demanded complete Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands and "recognition of the Palestinian entity in the form of a state" in exchange for peace.

COAL-LESS — Striking United Mine Worker Tony Karnely, president of his union local, stands beside his empty coal truck, ready to discuss the national coal strike. Karnely, of Somerset, Colo., said yesterday that dental care, sick leave and vacation time is as much a factor in the strike as the issue of wages.

(UPI Telephoto)

Changes Requested In Coal Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bargaining council of the United Mine Workers instructed its negotiators yesterday to seek changes before a proposed contract is sent to the members for ratification.

The delay is certain to send the nine-day-old strike into December with a likelihood of more layoffs, coal shortages for some utilities and production cuts in major industries.

No date was set for renewed negotiations with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

"We have tried to anticipate those problems which might arise when the proposed contract is presented to the rank-and-file," the union's 39-member council declared after a week of contract review interrupted by the holdup slaying of a member.

"We have suggested that our negotiators iron out with industry some of the possible problems that might arise by making some minor adjustments in the present contract package before we vote on the contract."

Gene Mitchell, a council member representing the union's District 12 in Illinois, read the council's statement. He told reporters the vacations provision was one item the council wants changed.

UMW President Arnold Miller said the council would draw up a list of the changes it seeks. He said the contract has not been put to a vote in the council so far.

After a vote of approval by the council, union spokesmen estimate it will take about 10 days to complete the union's ratification process, which will push the strike into December.

The union has a "no contract, no work" tradition which is included in its constitution. The strike began at 12:01 a.m. Nov. 12.

The bargaining council statement noted "tremendous new benefits" obtained by the union negotiators and praised negotiators for "great skill."

Nevertheless, the statement said: "Some contract language and a few contract items could present difficulties that could not be anticipated during the intense and hurried days of negotiating."

"We are confident that the package we finally approve will be a contract that our membership will proudly ratify and accept," the council said.

UNLUCKY UNTIL THE END

Last week two men were washed overboard and drowned when this 35-foot sailing yacht, Juno, was swamped in rough surf near Daly City. The victims were Robert Miller, 46, owner of the Sausalito-based vessel, and Gilles Rioux, 46, of San Francisco, a crew member. Tuesday the sloop's star-crossed career ended when it split in half (bottom photo) during an attempt to pull it from the beach's sandy clutch (top). Rufus and Michael Aylwin of Sausalito had purchased salvage rights to the ill-fated sailboat for $1,137.

By MARY LEYDECKER

Saying he was "sorry I can't be more optimistic," a Stanford University economics professor last night painted a rather gloomy picture about worldwide oil prices, at least in the short run.

"I don't see a whole lot that the consuming countries can do," at least right away, to lower the crude oil price of $9 a barrel because of the successful cartel of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said Scott R. Pearson.

The professor, a member of the faculty of the Stanford Food Research Institute, is a consultant to the U. S. Department of State and has served an an economic consultant in Ghana and elsewhere.

Speaking in Marin before an audience of about 60 members of the World Affairs Council of California, he traced the history of OPEC and the "amazing success" the organization has had recently in raising oil prices.

"The so-called energy crisis is really a matter of price," Pearson said, "although last winter they (oil exporting nations) also withheld oil."

Although OPEC was formed in 1960 of 13 countries of "lower income," (a situation no longer true in many cases), it wasn't until about a year ago that the "association of strange bedfellows" became successful in holding up the world market with high prices.

"If you were in New Orleans on Jan. 1, 1974, you could buy crude (oil) for $3.60 a barrel," Pearson said. "After a series of price rises, it is now $9.09 a barrel."

"And that's what the energy crisis is all about," he concluded.

Instead of the traditional supply-demand situation as "described in Economics I," it was a "successful cartel of producing countries," that brought about the huge price jump, Pearson said.

"It is unclear to me how things changed," he continued, since for some years, OPEC had been successful in keeping oil prices from going down but had not been able to push them up.

"Maybe the U.S. State Department guessed wrong," Pearson theorized, when it agreed to a price rise in 1970-71, and the oil nations "began to wield power."

By 1973, OPEC, which includes such diverse countries as Kuwait and Venezuela, "had stopped negotiating and were declaring price rises unilaterly."

In 1973, all the industrialized consuming countries (Western Europe, the U. S. and Japan primarily) paid $23 billion for crude petroleum. This year it is estimated the bill will be $85 billion.

For the so-called "developing countries," the poorer nations without industry or big sources of raw materials to export, the bill will rise from $4 billion to $14 billion, Pearson said, thus pretty well wiping out the foreign aid they receive.

As for measures which the U.S. and other western countries can take, Pearson dismissed most of them as either beyond serious consideration or ineffective in the short run.

"We could bring in the Marines," he said, as some people advocate and take over the oil countries "in a couple of days."

"Apart from ethical considerations" and "whether Russia would sit by and let us do this," Pearson pointed out that the oil countries have mined their oil fields. "It would be awfully hard to put those fires out."

As for the other extreme — "do nothing — the cartel will fall apart because it's a bunch of strange bedfellows," Pearson said "it hasn't broken down yet" and he didn't think consumers could count on this in face of great demand for oil.

Reducing use of energy (the U. S. imports one-third of its crude oil, accounting for one-sixth of the energy in the country), Pearson said he was dubious "about carrying out changes in people's behavior by exhortation."

"If the price were 85 cents a gallon, that probably would do it," he said with a smile.

In other countires, Japan "imports everything" in the way of oil, but England, which now depends on OPEC, soon will be self-sufficient with North Sea oil, and this might make some difference.

As for increasing production in this country and finding new sources of energy, Pearson said "it is much too early to tell" whether these long-range solutions will be effective.

He said later that eventually other energy courses (probably fusion) will have to replace oil, because the world's supply probably won't last more than 50 years. "Even though new fields constantly are being found, there has to be a limit, of course."

Pearson also discounted "freezing their assets" (the OPEC nations) or placing embargos on goods to them as reasonable ways to solve the problem.

"Forward pricing" is a method that might be used to bring down oil prices, which Pearson called too high, although this device has problems, too. Under that approach a fixed rate would be agreed upon for a lengthy period of time without regard to changes in market conditions.

Pearson concluded that he doesn't "see what we can do in the next two, three or four years to make oil countries change their behavior."

Girl Scouts Feel Cookie Crunch

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Fearful of continuing jumps in sugar prices, Connecticut Girl Scouts are selling cookies two months earlier than usual this year.

Instead of taking orders in January and delivering cookies in March, Girl Scouts in the Connecticut Valley Council are taking orders through Nov. 30 and plan to deliver cookies in January.

Rosemary Ellsworth, council spokeswoman, said it would have had to absorb cost increases of two to three cents per box if it waited until January to begin taking orders.

"It could have run into thousands of dollars," she said, noting that her council sold 234,000 boxes of cookies last year.

Senate Trims Nixon Transition Allowance Down To $200,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to chop $650,000 from the $850,000 recommended by President Ford to help Richard M. Nixon return to private life.

The $200,000 was included in an $8.3 billion catch-all supplemental appropriations bill adopted yesterday.

The bill also bars the transfer of the Nixon tapes and papers to San Clemente.

Although many provisions in the bill will have to be reconciled between Senate and House negotiators, the Nixon funds will be held to $200,000 because the two chambers approved identical amounts.

Under provisions of the Senate and House bills, Nixon would receive $100,000 of the $450,000 requested for transition costs and $100,000 of the $400,000 asked for pension and allowances.

The $100,000 Nixon transition allowance is a one-shot item that covers the period from Aug. 9, when Nixon resigned, until Feb. 9, when the official transition period ends.

In addition to that $100,000, the bill limits staff help to $220,000 for that period, exclusive of Secret Service protection.

The Senate Appropriations Committee ordered that the $220,000 be spent only on aides working directly on winding up Nixon's presidential affairs and not on a butler, maid, and three military drivers.

The other $100,000, allocated under the Former Presidents Act, includes Nixon's pro-rated annual pension of $55,000, $40,000 in office expenses and $5,000 for other expenses.

Mrs. Cain has been at Lu Sutton for three years and formerly was secretary at Lynwood School, also in Novato, for 10 years.

Petaluman Said A Heroin Kingpin

Shek Chow Wong, 44, of 14 Montclair Court, was arrested late Tuesday at his home in a crackdown which involved simultaneous raids in San Francisco, New York City, Vancouver, B.C., Singapore, Hong King, Thailand and Denmark.

Wong who, local police say, came to Petaluma about six months ago, owns the Canton restaurant at 154 Petaluma Boulevard North.

According to Robert De Fauw, special agent in charge of the federal drug enforcement administration's San Francisco office, Wong was part of a large organization which brought heroin to the west from Bangkok and Hong Kong.

The agent said the organization has, in the last six years, smuggled into the United States some 235 pounds of pure heroin, with a wholesale value of about $4 million, and 135 pounds of opium worth about $175,000.

The Petaluman and two San Francisco men — George Kay Lew, 64, and Pon You Wing, 41, were among 58 persons secretly indicted by a federal grand jury in New York City last September, according to federal officials.

The indictment, according to De Fauw, named Wong as one of five North American distributors of heroin operating in San Francisco, New York and Vancouver.

The agent said Wong has been under surveillance "for some time," that he has been known to drug enforcement officials for six to eight years.

The three Bay Area men were arraigned yesterday before federal magistrate Richard Goldsmith on charges of conspiracy to import and distribute heroin.

Wong's bond was set at $150,000 and the other two men, described as his associates, were held for lesser amounts.

All three were to appear for a hearing today before the magistrate, who is expected to authorize their transport to New York City for trial.

Neither narcotics nor weapons were seized in the Petaluma and San Francisco raids, officials said.

Lottery Law Repeal Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is urging repeal of a law it says prohibits broadcasting of winning numbers in state lotteries, but in the meantime is insisting on enforcing it.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said yesterday "the Justice Department fully supports" legislation to permit the broadcasts, but would move to shut down state lotteries which violate the broadcast ban if Congress doesn't act.

Talks Moving Ahead In Greyhound Strike

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Some progress has been reported in negotiations for a settlement of the nationwide strike against Greyhound Lines, Inc.

A federal mediator said yesterday sufficient progress is being made to justify continuous bargaining sessions in the strike which began Monday, idling 16,000 employees.

Bargaining sessions resumed last night after the Amalgamated Transit Union broke off talks earlier in the day to prepare a counter-proposal to Greyhound's new offer.

Federal Mediator Guy Parent said it was unusual in labor relations to resume "hard bargaining" so soon after the start of a strike.

IN THE FALL A YOUNGSTER'S FANCY . . .

Children have been writing Thanksgiving poems and illustrating them with cute pictures almost since the holiday began. But their poetry and art never seems to lose its charm, as shown by this Thanksgiving project at Lucas Valley School in San Rafael. Danny Collins, 7, and Cindy Van Alstine, 8, put finishing touches on the colorful bulletin board. Lending a helping hand is teacher Holly Kaufman whose class did the decorating.

Reagan Views Presidency With Varying Emotions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said today he views the prospect of seeking the presidency with mixed emotions.

But Reagan said he can imagine "someone" agreeing, under the right circumstances, that he would have a responsibility to offer his service for the White House.

The demand for that service would have to come from the people, added Reagan, a Republican retiring after two four-year terms as California chief executive.

In the case of such a public demand, Reagan said, "I can imagine someone saying, 'I think maybe I have a responsibility, if enough people feel this way, to say yes.' "

His comments came in an interview with Tom Snyder on the "Tomorrow" show on the NBC television network.

Reagan, 63, did not specifically discuss the prospect that he might seek the Republican nomination in 1976, whether or not President Ford runs for a full term.

But at the end of a sometimes abstract discussion about what it would be like to be President, Snyder asked Reagan:

"So the answer is in some ways, 'Sure,' and other ways, 'Gee, I really don't think so.' "

Reagan replied, "Yes. That's right."

The manner in which Reagan discussed the possibility of being President was generally similar to what he has said in the past.

But Reagan's reply to Snyder's question that "in some ways" he would want the job was more positive than the governor normally has been on the subject.

In recent weeks, Reagan has said he hopes Ford does such a good job in the next two years that his nomination for a full term in 1976 will be virtually automatic.

But also in recent weeks, there has been increasing talk among GOP conservatives nationally of promoting a Reagan candidacy if Ford continues what they consider to be too moderate a course.

The word "president" was not mentioned during the discussion. But Snyder noted there is only one job more challenging than the one Reagan will be leaving on Jan. 6. And he said, "Would you like to take that philosophy to even greater service?"

Reagan replied:

"You can't help get on the job as governor and having to deal with the government to say: 'By golly, I'd do this and yea, I'd like to have a chance to do this or that.' "

A major drawback, he said, is the total commitment a person must give to the presidency.

Then he added:

"It is with mixed emotions. I can't really imagine anyone actually saying with joy and anticipation, 'I would like to have that job.' "

Washington Reporter Urges End To Secret Legal Actions

LONG BEACH (AP) — A Washington legal reporter says the nation's editors should be prepared to fight the courts "every time they step on the First Amendment" in order to halt a trend toward secret legal proceedings.

Jack C. Landau of Newhouse Newspapers, a leader of the Washington-based Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, made the statement yesterday at the 41st annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors (APME).

He said the Watergate scandal provides an example of a dangerous trend toward the conduct of judicial proceedings in secret, citing what he called the increasing use of "gag orders" by judges as a threat to the right of the news media to report what is going on in the courts. The reporters' committee monitors efforts by judges to restrict coverage of court actions.

"In fact, the Washington Post could never have broken the Watergate story if it had obeyed the gag order," Landau said.

The order directed principals in the case not to discuss it with reporters.

But, Landau added: "It is widely known in Washington that the confidential sources of many of the stories which broke the coverup conspiracy case came from the defendants and their attorneys and from the prosecutors — all in violation of the gag order."

A California judge participating in a panel discussion on freedom of information urged Landau to "drop the militaristic language."

Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Alarcon of Los Angeles said, "Let's back off and work together."

"Most of us judges are not enemies of the First Amendment, are not enemies of the free press," Alarcon said.

Landau said the "gag order" situation has become so serious that "the news media and the courts are about to develop a long-term institutional hostilities which may severely damage both of us."

The other business, The APME, an organization of editors from newspapers which are members of The Associated Press, presented its annual Freedom of Information Award yesterday to the Honolulu Star Bulletin.

The Miami Herald received the annual APME Public Service Award.

Seventh-three newspapers and broadcast stations were honored during an awards luncheon for outstanding contributions to the AP news report.

Man Leaps To His Death

A middled-aged man took off his eyeglasses and shoes yesterday, then jumped to his death from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Shortly before 2 p.m. a bridge officer and a tow truck driver saw the unidentified man hanging from a girder on the east side of the span, according to the Highway Patrol.

As they approached him, he released his grip. The Coast Guard recovered his body a short time later.

The man — the 527th known person to die in a jump from the bridge — was about 60 years of age, the San Francisco Coroner's office reported. He wore a gold windbreaker and black and white sport shirt.

TRAFFIC TIE-UP

So many mourners gathered today for a burial Mass for Frank S. Soares Jr. of San Rafael that city police had their hands full keeping traffic near St. Raphael's Church moving. Patrolman Jesse Wiles diverts eastbound traffic from Fifth Avenue to B Street, away from the congested area behind the Courthouse Square building. According to San Rafael police Capt. Lincoln Borba, the tie-up arose when mourners were instructed by Keaton's Mortuary to double park along Fifth near the church without notifying police. Several parking citations were issued until officers realized what was going on, but all were later removed.

Federal Court Challenge Filed To Marin County General Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The first legal challenge of the Marin County General Plan was filed yesterday in U.S. District Court alleging that the plan is unconstitutionally restricting population growth and urging that it be declared invalid.

The suit, which asks damages totaling $4,930,000 was brought by American Savings and Loan Association after the county rezoned the firm's 48-acre parcel at Strawberry Spit and an adjoining 20-acre lot at Strawberry Point.

The rezoning was approved last May by county supervisors despite threat of legal action from the firm's attorneys. It reduced the number of possible homesites on the two parcels from 269 to about 89 — only nine of which could be built on the spit.

The firm claims that the reduction of homesites has reduced the value of the property by $4,930,000.

Rather than filing an inverse condemnation action in state court, like a number of other Marin property owners, the firm elected to attack the zoning on the grounds that the general plan is unconstitutional.

(Under state law, lands must be zoned in conformance with an adopted general plan. The county's plan lists the Strawberry Spit and point areas for low and medium-density residential growth.)

The suit charges that the primary goal of the plan is to "discourage rapid or disruptive population growth."

According to the suit, land throughout the county has been rezoned to limit new growth and large areas are being set aside for recreation (greenbelt) corridors.

This, the suit continues, is unconstitutional in that it indirectly regulates housing construction, which in turn affects interstate commerce.

It also "invades and stifles the right of United States citizens to migrate to other states and locations without artificial and unreasonable restriction," the complaint adds.

The suit says that under the controls proposed in the plan, Marin's population is expected to grow at an average rate of 1.9 per cent between 1970 and 1990.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said today it will take at least a year for the case to come to trial.

Before then, however, an appellate court decision is expected in the Petaluma growth control case and that may have a bearing on the suit against Marin, he said.

The county counsel said he has been expecting the suit since August, when supervisors rejected the firm's $4,930,000 claim for damages. He added he was surprised the firm filed in federal court.

If the case does go to trial, it will be lengthy, Maloney concluded. "This is going to be the biggie, it's going to be like an Academy Awards production."

Nixon's Medical Check Due Monday

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — A three-member, court-appointed medical team is to examine former President Richard M. Nixon Monday at his seaside estate to determine if he can testify personally in the Watergate coverup trial of his former aides.

However, at the Nixon estate, a spokeswoman said she knew of no preparations being made for the medical team.

Waterfront Project Is Scuttled

The Sausalito Planning Commission last night scuttled the proposed $38 million Schoonmaker waterfront development, saying it could overwhelm the city with traffic and tourists.

The commission referred a second, smaller version of the project to the Sausalito Community Appearances Advisory Board for review.

On a 4-1 vote, with commissioner Robert L. Nissim opposed, the commission denied the developer's application for a permit on the grounds that traffic and the estimated 10,000 visitors per day that the larger project would attract would congest the city's main thoroughfare, Bridgeway, and change the residential character of the city.

The proposed development project would have included 72 condominiums and a hotel, three restaurants, swimming pools, two yacht clubs, 25 houseboats, shops and offices and a 283-berth marina. It was proposed for 37.6 acres east of Bridgeway between Napa and Spring streets.

The smaller project on 27.8 acres would include the marina, eight indoor tennis courts, tennis and health clubs, a public beach, a boat works and a chandlery.

Planning director Herb Case said today it is likely the denial will be appealed to the city council.

Cut In Landscape Costs To Be Eyed

How to landscape the Belvedon mini-park at the cheapest possible cost will be discussed by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission today at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The Tiburon council asked the commission to study the question after the city got bids for the landscaping that totaled $34,000, about four times more than expected.

REP. MORRIS UDALL
No 'ritual moment'

Rep. Udall Launching Candidacy

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., is expected to become the first announced candidate in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential preferential primary.

Udall will be in New Hampshire all weekend, speaking at a land use conference and a series of coffees, and has scheduled a news conference Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Sheraton Wayfarer Motor Hotel in Bedford.

Udall told the Manchester Union Leader the trips he has made so far to New Hampshire were encouraging enough that "I'm now going to establish an organization with the intention of entering the New Hampshire Primary."

He said his announcement would not be a "ritual moment" such as those described in Theodore White's "Making of the President" books, when one suddenly becomes a presidential candidate.

Udall said he, Democratic Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington and Walter Mondale of Minnesota and others "for many months now have been preliminary candidates charging around the country.

"In a sense I'll not be much more of a candidate when I come back here to Washington Sunday than when I left here Friday. I'm already spending a good deal of my time on this," he said.

"We're putting together a list of important party people who will endorse our operation and wrap it up in a package because people in New Hampshire ought to know it's my intention to enter their primary," he said.

Udall said Jackson is the best known name at the moment but he feels the Democratic presidential nomination is wide open.

"Nobody has a lock on it and the outlook today is for a multi-ballot convention," he said.

Udall was chief sponsor of the 1974 Federal Land Use Act, and as such will appear tomorrow at a debate sponsored by the New Hampshire Planners Association in Bedford. He will attend coffees and cocktails around the state before returning to Washington Sunday night.

Maybe Council Felt The Same

HOUSTON (UPI) — The city council has agreed to restore the back pay of a fireman suspended for 10 days for referring to former Mayor Louie Welch as "Screwy Louie."

The city legal department recommended the action yesterday, saying the city had no legal basis for the suspension.

The fireman, William E. Love, 25, called Welch "Screwy Louie" last year in a letter to councilman Larry McKaskle complaining that police officers received a bigger pay raise than firemen.

'Bruised' Rockefeller To Face Even Tougher Quiz In House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he has undergone a more thorough scutiny "than even the most bruising electoral campaign," but Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said the investigation of his vice presidential nomination would continue.

"What does it mean to wed great, indeed immense personal wealth to the awsome powers of the American presidency?" asked Rondino, as his House Judiciary Committee opened hearings into the Rockefeller nomination.

"Necessarily, the issue of personal integrity will also weigh heavily on this nomination," Rodino added in promising a "careful and through inquiry."

Rodino called the investigation "absolutely essential to the proper functioning of the 25th Amendment."

He promised the committee would avoid "clearly irrevelevant matters," but would inquire into Rockefeller gifts and loans to political associates and the millionaire's tax returns for the past seven years.

The Judiciary Committee is the same panel which recommended the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon.

The committee is expected to give Rockefeller even closer scrutiny than he has had so far before voting on his nomination.

In a lengthy statement prepared for today's hearing, the 66-year-old former New York governor concentrated on his record. But the 38-panel members will focus on issues raised in recent months that his critics say mar that record.

Rockefeller said it has been neither "easy nor pleasant" to reveal "in intimate detail" the records of his finances and other matters, including $2.5 million in gifts and loans to political associates. But he said it was a necessary part of the constitutional process, so that those who sit in judgment of him can determine "just what makes me tick."

He said he wants the vice presidency not only because of a desire to serve the nation at a troubled time but also "simply as a man who delights in tackling tough human problems."

"That's just the way I am made," he said.

"Nothing delights me so much as facing up to a complex public issue, with all its confusion, turmoil and intensity and trying to pull together the human resources to deal with it," Rockefeller said.

"The 25th Amendment subjects a vice presidential nominee to a more searching scrutiny than even the most bruising electoral campaign," he said. "But difficult as that may be for the candidate, only a thorough-going congressional inquiry can make the procedure fully legitimate and assure the country that it has a vice president that it can trust."

Senate Rules Committee approval of Rockefeller became virtually certain yesterday.

Research Team Declares Britain Facing Upheaval

LONDON (UPI) — An international research team said today if Britain does not solve its economic problems, it may suffer "social and political upheaval."

The report by the Hudson Institute predicted that by 1980, most Spaniards and Greeks will be living better than the British.

"There is serious reason to fear an eventual social and political upheaval in the country," the report said.

The Hudson Institute is a nonprofit multinational research group.

"All the present indices for Britain are gloomy —seriously so," Edmund Stillman, chief of the research team, told a news conference.

"What we are trying to do is only what others are saying behind Britain's back —saying it to your face."

The survey said Britain's living standards are only marginally better than those of countries the British are accustomed to think of as the poor states of the Mediterranean and the Balkans.

"The majority of Spaniards and Greeks will on present trends, be better off than the average Briton within not many more years," the report said.

The survey said Britain does not compare favorably with such "dynamic" European countries as France, West Germany, the Netherlands and Italy in housing, schools, health services, pensions or foreign vacations. "We must simply say that in virtually every one of the tangible indices of quality of life Britain is worse off than continental Western Europe," it said.

Nixon Acknowledged His Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon acknowledged in April, 1973, that he could be impeached if the crumbling Watergate coverup were not handled "adroitly," according to a tape played at the Watergate cover-up trial today.

Prosecutors played their final four tapes as they moved toward completing the case against five former Nixon aides Friday. None of today's tapes had been made public before.

"I think it's entirely conceivable that if (former White House Counsel John W.) Dean is totally out of control and if matters are not handled adroitly that you could get a resolution of impeachment," defendant John D. Ehrlichman remarked on April 25.

"That's right," Nixon said.

About half of the 28 presidential tapes presented in court dated from late April, 1973, when Dean and former campaign official Jeb Stuart Magruder had begun cooperating with prosecutors. On April 30, Nixon announced the resignations of Ehrlichman and defendant H.R. Haldeman and the firing of Dean.

On today's tapes, Nixon worried whether Dean had secretly taped the March 21 talk in which Dean warned of a "cancer" growing on the presidency.

"I just wonder if the son of a bitch had a recorder on him," Nixon said.

"...That's what may be his bomb," Nixon said. "Put that on the desk of (Assistant Attorney General) Henry Petersen and says, 'I gotta recording of the President of the United States and here's what he said.'" Haldeman recalled how Dean had laid out the full story of Watergate during the March 21 meeting, including blackmail threats by the original defendants, and proposed how Nixon might explain his part of the conversation:

"You're drawing Dean out...they're leading questions."

Nixon replied: "It's not a good story . . ."

Ehrlichman suggested Nixon immediately listen to his tapes to determine exactly what he and Dean discussed during February and March, 1973, so the President could "analyze how big a threat there is."

"You better damn sure know what your hole card is," Ehrlichman said.

"That's right . . . I agree," Nixon replied.

The tapes were played at the cover-up trial of Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and two other former Nixon aides.

His tone pensive, Nixon said "we generally are hurting ourselves in this case. But God almighty, we weren't protecting the White House now, right?"

"That's correct," Ehrlichman replied.

"We weren't protecting that, we're protecting John Mitchell," Nixon said, almost spitting out the name of his friend, former campaign manager and attorney general.

Just five days before, Mitchell had rejected an overture from Ehrlichman — on Nixon's orders — that he take full blame for the Watergate scandal.

"In the first instance we were protecting your re-election in a sense," Ehrlichman said. "We didn't know what from."

"That's right," Nixon agreed. "Afterwards, though, this cover-up business was pure Mitchell."

In tapes played at court Wednesday, Nixon realized on Palm Sunday, 1973, that the unraveling of the cover-up perilled his presidency.

"What in the name of Christ is this all about?" he asked John D. Ehrlichman in some bewilderment near midnight on April 14 last year.

But the President quickly answered his own question: "Well, what it involves, of coarse, we have to be fair, it involves, uh, the highest..."

"The king of the mountain," Ehrlichman suggested.

"The king of the mountain," Nixon agreed softly.

Those words were missing when Nixon, claiming to tell the full Watergate story for once and for all, released transcripts of his secret tapes last April.

But they were there for the jury to hear yesterday at the cover-up trial of five former Nixon aides.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is just too good a picture-taking opportunity for any photographer to pass up. (And we're not just giving you the bird.)

Thanksgiving is a family affair. Often it means more of the family getting together for dinner than usual. Look for special human interest situations, like Grandma holding the new baby for the first time, or several generations of the men watching the pro football game on TV before dinner.

And, of course, don't neglect the groaning table, both before and after (everyone thinks of the before, but the after also tells a story, even if it's just Mom who's groaning over all those dishes).

This Saturday, November 23, we're having a Kodak Girl demonstrate Kodak products. She will be especially showing the Kodak projectors, Moviedeck, Carousel and Ektasound. You are welcome to drop down between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. If you buy a new Kodak projector Saturday we will give you a screen, free.

Coming events . . . A week from Saturday, November 30, we are going to have a Unicolor demonstration.

Missing Radium Needles Hunted

MODESTO (AP) — They haven't looked in a haystack yet, but Stanislaus County officials covered the grounds at Scenic General Hospital with a geiger counter searching for missing radium needles.

Dr. Robert Watson, county health officer, downplayed the possibility of serious injury to anyone coming in contact with the needles. He said a single needle would have to be held in a child's hand several hours before it could cause burns.

The nine radium needles, used in cancer treatment, were last seen Aug. 28 and were discovered missing Nov. 8.

Awareness Groups 'Assault' West Marin's Farm Belt

By KAREN PETERSON

In cities and suburbs, women's awareness groups are as common today as yoga classes. That's not the case in Marin's farm belt.

There, among the miles of scenic grazing land and the weathered farm houses, some people still believe that such new-fangled ideas are synonymous with hippie types "naked in the sunshine or else crazy."

For young women like Marilyn Azevedo, changing the pace of a lifestyle that has persisted for generations is a slow, nearly unrelenting process. Nevertheless, she's optimistic.

Last summer eight West Marin women ventured into a nine-week awareness session that, among other things, opened lines of communication between women once "isolated" within the family core.

During this time the women gradually worked up a spirit of confidentiality. Each woman felt free to discuss her problems while the others listened and gave their support. What they found, said Mrs. Azevedo, was that no one problem was unique to an individual.

Now Mrs. Azevedo is stumping for another group session in January. But those she wants to attract are those who still view such activities suspiciously.

She's urging all women in the West Marin — Southern Sonoma area to contact her if they are interested in the self-awareness sessions.

Rural women are "still really reluctant" to take the step. "They don't know what awareness groups are and they're waiting to see what will happen" with those who went before, she added.

The point of these first sessions: to let women know that others have the same hesitations; the same doubts. "The camaraderie was so strong," said the articulate Mrs. Azevedo. "Even after that short time we wouldn't hesitate to call each other for help."

The 33-year-old mother of five began questioning the substance of her life years ago, searching for answers in books and from lectures. "The sessions were like my island in the middle of the ocean," she smiled as she stroked a battle-scarred white cat.

"After going for awhile, I've come to the conclusion that I'm in the right place for me. It was the same for the others."

This may all seem commonplace to women long exposed to the ideas behind such growth sessions. Life in most rural areas, not excluding West Marin, is cyclic; generation after generation, men and women are raised to live according to what worked in the past.

"It's been the same out here for 100 years. Women stay at home and clean houses. It's hard for a husband to accept wives who don't stay home. These men are afraid," she said. "Most would rather have their wives stay the same."

The problems of coping and surviving are the same in the country as in the city, continued Mrs. Azevedo, with one major exception: women are isolated from one another. There are children to take care of and farms to run, she said, and that means little time for socializing. Families also stay together. As the family grows, houses are built around the main farm house.

"A neighbor said she couldn't join because her husband said she might start thinking, thinking that she might not be happy. That topped it all for me. I just about choked.

"It must be something male in the men out here," she added, "They don't have the chance to explore alternatives."

Mrs. Azevedo plans to continue her studies in nursing soon at Sonoma State College, a decision that emerged shortly after her participation in self-awareness.

"Everyone hits rock bottom," she said of her feelings a few years ago, "I knew there had to be more to life. At onetime I was very dissatisfied. I had reached a point where I had to make it or break it."

Through the sessions, Mrs. Azevedo hopes to "get over the facade — women hung up on being good and perfect but una-

Birthright Of Marin Opens Drop-In Center

Birthright of Marin has expanded its services to include a drop-in center at its office, 817 D Street in San Rafael, on alternating Mondays from 1 to 3 p.m.

The center is for anyone who feels a need for companionship, according to volunteer director Gerry Nowell of Mill Valley, but is geared toward the women Birthright serves, single pregnant women who have chosen to give birth. Also attending the first session held Monday were single women who had already given birth.

There was a lot of "girl talk" at the first session, exchanges of recipes, and a volunteer gave instructions in knitting, Mrs. Nowell said.

"We decided to offer the service because the girls asked for it. Some of them had been getting together on their own," explained Pat Beedle of Novato, also a volunteer director.

Volunteers who do the counseling also felt a need for follow through, Mrs. Beedle said.

"We realized that we couldn't just take them through having their babies and drop them when there was some need for follow through," she said.

"We keep in touch until it seems the girls don't want to be contacted," Mrs. Nowell said. "After a few calls if they are not interested we don't press it."

Birthright has been expanding gradually since it first was formed in Marin in March of 1972. It began as an emergency answering service in a small office on Fourth Street in San Rafael. Since moving to its present site volunteers have offered one to one counseling, made arrangements for pregnancy tests, transportation, temporary housing and jobs and offered other services, excluding abortion and contraceptive counseling, to pregnant single women.

"We like to think of ourselves as aunts or friends," Mrs. Nowell said. "Obviously, if a girl were getting the support she needs from her family she wouldn't need us."

Search Is Begun For Miss Sonoma

The search has begun for Miss Sonoma County 1975. Young women between the ages of 18 and 28 are eligible to enter the pageant, a preliminary to both the Miss California and Miss America competitions.

A minimum of $2,000 in scholarships and a $500 wardrobe will be awarded at the local pageant on April 18 in Santa Rosa. Each contestant will receive a free personal development-modeling course and a figure control program.

Judging is based on talent, poise, personality and intelligence. Preliminaries will be held in February. Further information can be obtained by contacting Gwen Adkins, executive director.

Artist Among Radio Guests

An artist, a doctor and a fashion designer will be guests on "Jorie Talks," KTIM feature program heard at 9:30 a.m. Monday through Thursday.

On Monday, host Jorie Parr will interview Artist Ellen Schlesinger of Fairfax about her current exhibit of paintings of women at the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco.

Dr. Richard Shames of Mill Valley will discuss a new approach to medical care on the Tuesday program. Dr. Shames advocates a whole-body approach to health maintenance, stressing preventive and educational measures.

Fashion designer Karen Alexander of Oakland will tell why her Foxy Lady line "isn't so funky anymore" on Wednesday. There will be no Thursday program because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Baby Sitting Service To Begin On Monday

Parents who wish to go Christmas shopping without taking their small children along can take advantage of a baby sitting service which begins Monday at the Terra Linda Recreation Center.

The service was organized by the San Rafael Recreation Department.

Hours for the baby sitting program will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday evenings. The fee will be 75 cents per hour per child for San Rafael residents, $1 per hour for nonresidents.

Reservations must be made 24 hours in advance. Children must be between 1 and 7 years old, and a maximum of 20 children (five 1-year-olds) will be accommodated in any time period.

While parents are shopping, the children will be supervised by a qualified nursery school teacher and two aides on the recreation department staff. The program will be held in facilities which in the mornings also house the Pooh Corner Nursery School program; there is a wide range of play equipment available.

Reservations can be made by calling the recreation department.

Procedures For Detection Of Breast Cancer Outlined

By PAT BALMES

In 1974, 90,000 women developed breast cancer and 35,000 others died from its complications in the United States, according to Dr. Chester Noyes.

The surgeon yesterday moderated a panel of Marin physicians who dignose and treat breast malignancies — Dr. Bruce Manheim, surgeon; Dr. Donald Wilcox, obstetrician and gynecologist; Dr. Wellum Frivold, diagnostic radiologist.

The program, sponsored by American Cancer Society's Marin unit, was presented at Northgate Theater in San Rafael. A telegram of commendation from Betty Ford was read to the audience.

DR. WILCOX told the women that self-examination of the breasts once a month after their menstrual period is sufficient. He recommended this procedure:

Look into a mirror for discoloration, dimpling, irritation or discharge from nipples. Then, reclining, examine your breasts by touch, using a flat hand moving in concentric circles, first with your arm above the head and then at the side, the gynecologist said.

"When a woman is in my office, I have her examine her breasts. I tell her, 'If you feel anything different from what you are feeling now, come in," he said.

Although breast cancer incidence is low among teen-agers, he recommends that femals start as early as 15 to examine their breasts.

"There is no evidence that the hormone pill for birth control causes breast cancer " he said.

THE SURGEON, Dr. Manheim, described treatment. If he feels that a lump is a common fibrocystic disease, he monitors it by seeing the woman every three months, he said.

"It it's a benign, soft tumor, I try to aspirate it with a needle. If solid, it has to come out. You can only find out if it's malignant or benign by putting it under a microscope," the surgeon said.

If the pathologist confirms malignancy, Dr. Manheim does a modified radical mastectomy, removing breast and lymph glands and leaving muscles, he said.

Among the new diagnostic tools is xeromammography, available at Marin General Hospital since April. It offers improved detail with one-tenth the radiation of earlier mammographs.

"You can see with xeromammography, breast cancer that a doctor cannot feel. Thirty per cent of all tumors found cannot be felt by physicians but show up on xeromammography," said radiologist Dr. Frivold.

Thermography measures differences in heat, detecting variances of one degree. Tumors are hot spots. However any benign breast condition is hotter, so the resulting thermogram could just mean that the breast is abnormal. Twenty per cent of cancer will not give hot spots. Though not specific, thermography is good for screening. The hot spots detected are then xeromammogrammed, according to the radiologist.

"SOMETIMES A patient who has a tumor wants to go someplace else and try another procedure that she read about, that would save the breast. I am as confused as she is from reading newspaper stories. I would advise her to have a modified mastectomy. It leaves her the muscles and it has the best prognosis.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Prisoners May Have It Tough But Those Outside Suffer Too

DEAR RAP:

I've read several letters in your column from prisoners telling how it is to be in jail. Please let me tell everyone how it is out here when you find your finance is headed there . . . or is already in prison.

He calls and tells you, "I'm in the lock-up and in the morning they'll take me to prison." You want to scream and cry but you know it won't help.

When it really hits you he's in jail, you get scared. Then he tells you how much bail is, and you know you can't get that kind of money. You just have to cry then. You know he's innocent.

Later, when you try to write a letter, what can you say? You try to sound happy and optimistic but you aren't feeling that way at all.

On visiting day you see how much he's changed already. He's becoming hard and cynical — and hopeless. And he hasn't even been tried yet.

Prisoners may have it hard on the inside, but on the outside, we're suffering too. — GOING THROUGH HELL

GTH:

Isn't it sad that those who can afford bail bondsmen's fees await their trial on the outside while if you're arrested and broke, it's jail until proven innocent? — HELEN

GTH:

And with overloaded calendars, the trial could be weeks away. Let's hope your guy really is innocent, can be proved so, and that somehow you can raise the bail money soon. — SUE

DEAR RAP:

My guy grows a lot of hair on his chest. I want him to let me shave it so that my initials will stand out. That's better than a tattoo, because after all, we may not be together forever.

He says, "Over my dead body." What's wrong with him? — CALIFORNIA SURFER

DEAR CALIF:

Maybe he doesn't dig itchy chests. Couldn't you settle for a ring in his nose or something sensible? — HELEN

DEAR SURFER:

Be glad he isn't an exhibitionist like the guy who had his chest hair plucked and dyed to resemble a chess board — so he could say, "The game's on me," no doubt. — SUE

RAP:

No matter what guy I start going with, my girlfriend doesn't like him. So she won't leave us alone because she's "protecting" me from getting too serious. Since she doesn't have a boyfriend, she thinks no one should.

I'm really interested in Dean, but my girlfriend tears over here the minute he drives up. Then she tries to start a fight and usually succeeds. If he wants me to go somewhere, she acts hurt. What's with her? — BOTHERED

BOTHERED:

Exactly what you said: Since this girl doesn't have a guy, she thinks no one should.

We'd guess she's 1. Jealous, and 2. Afraid of losing you.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE DAVID LITTLE
Married in San Anselmo

Linda Marks Becomes Bride Of Bruce Little

Stewart Chapel of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo was the setting last Saturday for the wedding of Linda Jean Marks and Bruce David Little, both of San Rafael. A reception followed at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Little are living in San Rafael, where both are employed by the Dixie School District. They plan a delayed honeymoon trip to Canada next summer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marks of San Rafael and sister of Susan Granger of San Juan, Puerto Rico. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Marks of San Francisco are her grandparents.

Mrs. Granger served as honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids were Kathy Ives of Davis, Kate Doherty of San Francisco and Anne Little of San Rafael; Shannon Granger was flower girl.

Greg Huss of San Rafael was best man, with Alan Little of San Diego, Biff Buchignani of Rockaway, N.J., and Robert Hover of San Rafael as ushers.

The bride attended San Rafael High School, California State University at Sacramento, University of California at Davis and University of Hawaii.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Little of San Rafael, the brother of Alan Little of San Diego and Anne Little of San Rafael and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Neil of Aptos and Jenny Little of Stockton.

He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and the College of Marin.

Two Exchange Vows At Peacock Gap

St. Sylvester's Catholic Church in Peacock Gap was the setting for the Oct. 19 wedding of Sharon Toshikian and Gary Edward McCourt.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Toshikian of Capitola and the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James McCourt of Fairfax.

Debra Wilmoth of Novato was maid of honor. Robert McAllister, also of Novato, was best man. Steven Shepherd of San Rafael served as usher.

The bride's sisters are Deborah Toshikian of Capitola and Susan Fox. Gary is the brother of Nina McCourt of Albuquerque and Laure McCourt of Fairfax, and the grandson of James McCourt Sr. of South San Francisco.

The new Mr. and Mrs. McCourt are making their home in Novato. She is employed at the Emporium in Northgate and he works for Gunther Hagel maintenance service.

The bride is a graduate of Novato High School and attended College of Marin. The bridegroom is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and College of Marin and is a member of the Marine Reserve.

Engagement Of Elaine Thomson Told

The engagement of Elaine J. Thomson to Neal R. Watts of Fort Hood, Texas, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Thomson of San Anselmo.

The bride elect is the sister of Linda Lautsch of Cerritos, and Mary Anne Thomson and Bob Thomson of San Anselmo and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Maxson of Downey.

She attended Sir Francis Drake High School and College of Marin and was graduated from Redwood Empire Beauty College in Santa Rosa. She is employed as a bookkeeper at the Cal Auto Center in Benecia.

Her fiance is stationed in Texas with the Army. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Watts of San Rafael and brother of Saundra Freeman of San Jose, Richard Watts of Novato, Don Watts and Dave Watts of San Rafael. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Haywood of San Rafael.

Watts is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is now a part time student at Central Texas College in Killeen, majoring in law enforcement.

The two plan to marry next May 10 at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax, with a reception at Deer Park Villa. They plan to live in Texas.

Women Are Fighting More To Keep Their Own Names

By STEWART DILL McBRIDE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — What's in a name?

Enough that a growing number of married American women are willing to take on the courts, state legislatures, and Shakespeare himself to retain their maiden names.

THE PRACTICE common to female professionals is becoming more popular among rank-and-file women — secretaries, teachers, and housewives. Thousands of new brides are willing to vow "for better, for worse" — but not to take their husbands' names.

The "game of the name" started in 1855 when crusading Lucy Stone married Henry B. Blackwell and swore: "My name is the symbol of my identity and must not be lost." She became the first known American woman to retain her "birth-given" (a term feminists prefer to "maiden") name.

RETAINING birth-given names (or "previous surnames" in the case of a previous marriage) is perfectly legal in most states. Only Hawaii has a law on the books requiring wives to adopt their husband's name, and that statute is presently being tested in courts.

Onomatologists (those who study names) say the custom of passing the father's name from generation to generation dates back to noble and wealthy Europeans during the Middle Ages. Women and children were considered man's property along with the house and firearms he laid title to.

OPPOSITION TO women retaining their birth-given names come primarily from bureaucrats and tradionalists who say such a general practice would confuse record-keeping, increase divorce rates, and create social embarrassment.

NAMING CHILDREN appears to be the next battlefield on the horizon. If parents have different surnames, which name does the child assume? How does he explain his unusual circumstances to other children? Should children's names be hyphenated? Will the sixth generation offspring have boxcar names coupled by hyphens?

At least one solution has been found by actress Jane Fonda and her husband, activist Tom Hayden. They've named their new born son Troy O'Donovan Garity.

ble to admit that inside they don't feel good and perfect. In the group, we're able to talk about (these feelings) and not be embarrassed to say what we think. We're not condemned or judged for what we're feeling."

"You can't make someone feel guilty when they know they're doing a good job."

Mrs. Azevedo has, for the most part, resolved her feelings of dissatisfaction before orgnizing the Point Reyes-located sessions. The group, she added, just reaffirmed her newly gained adjustments, something she foresees for other participants.

"I guess I could have been that same little housewife," she mused. "It's just me. I turned into being a really agressive person, not afraid to tackle things."

Mrs. Azevedo and her family live on what she calls a "small operation" dairy. Even so, she is working every day "at full throttle" and adds with pride that they are "80 per cent self sufficient." When first contacted, Mrs. Azevedo was in the midst of harvesting the grain crop and preparing lunch for the family.

Is this what she gained from self-awareness? "I would have resented it before," she said. Today, she adds, "We did it as a team."

Preview Set Tomorrow For Concert

Marin Symphony Auxiliary will sponsor a preview of the Marin Symphony concert tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Meadow Club in Fairfax. A luncheon at the club will follow.

Speaker at the preview will be conductor Sandor Salgo, who will discuss and play excerpts from the music on the program, which will be presented Sunday evening at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Miss Karasik will be a guest at the luncheon at a table with symphony association president Carole Berg, auxiliary president Elizabeth Klink and preview luncheon chairmen Francella Hall and Jo Mann.

The preview is free, and cost of the luncheon is $4.25. Reservations for the luncheon can be made by calling the Meadow Club.

Childbirth Film Showing Scheduled

"The Story of Eric," a film depicting prepared childbirth, will be shown at 8 p.m. Dec. 6 in the music room of Davidson Middle School, San Rafael.

A certified Lamaze instructor will be present to answer questions regarding the classes.

Randall M. Eames Weds Douglas Clark

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clark were incorrectly identified as Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Eames in a caption under their photograph in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The photograph accompanied a story about the couple's wedding Nov. 9 in Carmel. The bride is the former Randall Marie Eames.

Bagley Has No Intention Of Leaving The Public Arena

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

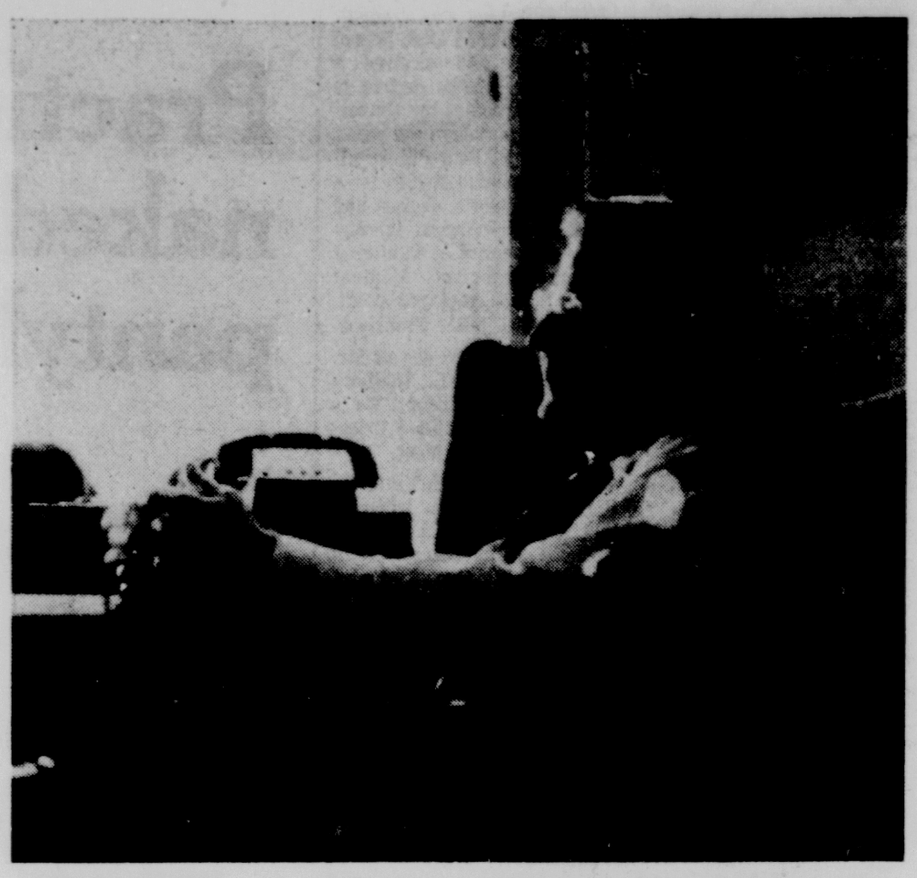
Assemblyman William T. Bagley, about to step down from the legislative seat he has held 14 years, isn't about to exit the public arena.

A Washington job in the Ford administration, a law practice serving clients doing business with government, work with a foundation, some time spent on public television and teaching, all are being explored by the energetic attorney.

Despite his long years in Sacramento, Bagley still is only 46. Whatever his next step may be, he said in an interview in his San Rafael office, "the primary desire is to maintain some participation in the public arena were I could continue to use the knowledge the people have allowed me to gain in the last 14 years."

Bagley leaves his Assembly office by his own choice. Instead of running again for sure reelection, he made an unsuccessful race as the GOP nominee for state controller. His Assembly seat was won by Michael Wornum, and the controllership by Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, D-Garden Grove. But he proudly noted that he was the first Republican on a statewide ballot to carry San Francisco "since Warren and Kuchel." Bagley got some 12,000 votes more than Cory in San Francisco while other Republicans lost the city by up to 60,000 votes.

Returning to his future, Bagley said it will be a month or two before he decides what to do. He stressed that if he practiced governmental law it would not by lobbying, but an opportunity to "use the knowledge, experience and personal contact that I have around the state."



WHAT'S NEXT? — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, contemplates his future and reflects on 14 years representing Marin and Southern Sonoma in the lower house of the Legislature. The 46-year-old attorney is eyeing several alternatives, possibly a post in the Ford administration.

He acknowledged that he attempted some years ago to get a high position in the Nixon administration, adding he has good contacts in the new administration as well. Bagley is a longtime supporter of presidential tries by President Ford's nominee for vice president, Nelson A. Rockefeller.

He cited widespread reports that Ford soon will sweep Nixon appointees from high-level posts. This, of course, would create vacancies — possibly for Bagley, too.

Looking back over his years in the Capitol, the assemblyman said he had stayed in office too long. Why? "Because public service becomes infectious, and there had to be an alternative to simply leaving and returning to total private life."

"The desire to stay in the public arena," he insisted, "is not a desire for accolades or applause — I've had that — it's a desire to participate and help make the system work. That's the beauty of legislative life," he added. "You can work at making the system work, and if you do it well, you actually can see the end product."

His proudest achievement in the entire 14 years, Bagley said, was his almost single-handed role in stopping a bill in 1967 to repeal the state's fair housing law. The 1963 law had been repealed in 1964 with voter approval of Proposition 14 (which passed every county except Marin and two others), but the proposition itself was declared unconstitutional in 1965.

The bill to repeal the housing law swept through the Senate all the way to the Assembly floor, where Bagley got it amended into a compromise version that died in a stalemate between the two houses of the Legislature.

"Because of my personal participation in coming up with a compromise," he said, "we saved open housing." If he had not acted, Bagley declared, the original repealer quickly would have passed "and we would have been the first state in the nation to slap the black community in the face by repealing open housing.

"People say all the time in Sacramento you can't legislate morals," Bagley continued, branding the claim "the most shallow cliche imaginable. Of course you legislate morals. What do you think the penal code is all about?

"What you legislate is not the morals themselves. You legislate an atmosphere where being humanly decent is legally acceptable," Bagley said.

Other major accomplishments Bagley cited were "the beginning of tax reform" and the 1971 reform of welfare he negotiated between the Reagan administration and the Democratic majority in the Legislature. He said he was proud of the welfare reform "not so much because it saved money and tightened down the whole scene," but because the only alternative would have been an initiative on the statewide ballot that "would have pitted the taxpayers against the poor."

Such a "hardline, hot-breathed" measure, he said, would have meant "actually pitting segments of society against each other, and society would have suffered from unnecessary, almost civil strife that would have occurred."

He also pointed to his many bills to open to the public both meetings by public agencies and records of public agencies, and his Bagley Conservation Fund, which has provided $107 million in three years to buy beaches and parks. Terming the purchases "a considerable accomplishment," he said "a lot of people mouth conservation — I was able to put money where a lot of mouths are."

He admitted to a fear "that probably is endemic to anyone leaving office, that the caliber of elected people in the Legislature is not going up, and probably going down.

"It seems to be more and more of a game in the media and public generally to carp at and take on public office holders to the extent that I am afraid a lot of people are afraid to go into the kitchen because of the heat.

"This concept that you've got to take on your elected representative constantly, tainting the whole system, of constantly carping at the Legislature, really leads in the long run not to better representation, but to worse representation if you overdo it."

Bagley said the Legislature either should become a full-time job with annual pay of $40,000 to $50,000, or return to an avocation. "In the real world of talented, educated people, $20,000 a year is not a full-time salary," he argued.

"What we have now is sort of a middle ground, a combination of both, which isn't good," he said.

As for the widespread criticism of the Legislature, Bagley defended its slow pace as necessary "to see where all the pieces are. I would have liked to have seen a lot of things happen sooner, but I guess I've become conditioned.

"Progress in a Democratic society is slow, and it should be, for otherwise it would be somebody in total control who was making all of the decisions," Bagley said.

The last detail of Bagley's legislative career will be to clean up what must be several tons of official papers accumulated over the years. His last month's salary of $1,600 will go to keep the office and staff plugging through the mass of records.

It'll all be over Dec. 31.

Joint Meeting Rescheduled

A joint meeting of the Petaluma Board of Education and the board of trustees of the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District has been reset for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 4 at the Petaluma schools building, 11 Fifth Street.

The session, at which both boards were to discuss their views on the proposed consolidation of the Cotati-Rohnert Park District with the high schools in the two cities now run by the Petaluma District, had been scheduled for last night.

It was canceled because several members of the Cotati-Rohnert Park district were unable to attend, according to a spokesman for the Petaluma Board.

Residents Sought For Committee

The City of Petaluma is seeking residents to serve on its housing and community development advisory committee.

The body, required by the federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, will meet twice a month to make recommendations to the city council on projects for which the city will seek federal funds.

The committee also will help determine the housing needs of residents having low and moderate incomes.

A city spokesman said applications will be taken until 5 p.m. next Wednesday. The committee is to be appointed by the council on Dec. 2.

145,000 Acres Added To State Parks During Reagan's Regime

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state's park system was expanded by more than 145,000 acres during the eight years of Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration, a state report said Tuesday.

The state park system stewardship report for 1973-74, the final year of Reagan's administration, said the acquisitions included 41 miles of ocean frontage and 275 miles of lake and river frontage. It also included 1,300 acres added to Mount Tamalpais State Park.

"With the lands now being acquired through the 1974 Park Bond Act, the Bagley Conservation Act and other sources," it said, "this brings to approximately one million acres the total of scenic and recreational lands preserved in the California State Park System."

"Major milestones" cited by the report in the eight-year period included passage of two major park bond issues and the Bagley act, the successful pioneering of the Ticketron computerized reservation system for park campsites and Hearst Monument Tours, and the expansion and improvement of the California State Fair.

In the report, State Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. credited citizen support for "much of the success of the program." The report said the state park program has received almost $40 million in the last three years in gifts of land, artifacts or cash.

The parks and recreation department report emphasized the need to move "as rapidly as possible" on acquisition and development of parks.

"By immediately using the funds now available before they are diminished by inflation, and by energetically implementing plans now coming off the drawing boards," Mott said, "the state park system can quickly expand its facilities to serve the thousands of recreation-hungry persons who today are being turned away from overcrowded parks."

Chamber Plans Business Brochure

Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday decided to produce a promotional brochure to attempt to lure industries to the Southern Sonoma residential community.

A chamber spokesman said the Bertram and Milner advertising firm of Santa Rosa will assist chamber members in organizing and designing the brochure. The cost and total number of pages is still undetermined.

Reagan Turns To State Bar

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Bar has been asked for a confidential opinion by the Reagan Administration on whether it would support the nomination of aide Herbert Ellingwood for the Third District Court of Appeal, it was reported today.

The Sacramento Union said the unusual step was taken because of Ellingwood's lack of prior judicial experience. The bar earlier this year strongly opposed the nomination of another attorney with no previous experience on a court bench.

Gov. Ronald Reagan is expected to withdraw consideration of Ellingwood, the governor's legal affairs secretary, if the bar's Board of Governors is heavily opposed to the nomination, the Union said.

Reagan Press Aide Clyde Walthall said he could neither confirm nor deny the story.

The bar's governing board meets today and tomorrow in San Francisco and is expected to consider the review, the Union said.

Last spring Reagan nominated John C. Vukasin Jr. to the First District Court of Appeal and immediately ran into opposition from the legal community.

At the time, Vukasin was a member of the state Public Utilities Commission and had not served on the bench. Bar President Brent Abel strongly criticized Reagan for the appointment.

A month later the governor withdrew the nomination, charging "certain people for their own purposes have generated unwarranted controversy over the nomination."

Traveling Troupe Sets Two Shows

Two comedies by a traveling group of players, the Lamb's Players from San Diego, will be presented tomorrow and Sunday in Marin County.

"The Hound of Everyman," a medieval style comedy will be presented at noon tomorrow on the lawn in front of the Student Center at the College of Marin, Kentfield.

The characters of Death, Angel, Satan, and Satan's demons all vie for the soul of Everyman. The comedy is livened by colorful sets, banners, and period costumes of the medieval times.

"Hark! The Ark," another comedy will be presented at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Marin Covenant Church meeting at the Miller Creek School auditorium at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue, Marinwood.

Patterned after the roving drama troupes of old, the players will present a morality play to tell the story of Noah and his floating zoo.

A New Greek Cabinet Formed

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis formed a new 35-member cabinet today, the first freely elected government in this birthplace of democracy since a military coup deposed the legal government 10 years ago.

After the swearing-in ceremony, Caramanlis summoned the ministers to sign a new law setting the date and details for a referendum in which the Greek people will be asked to decide whether exiled King Constantine will be allowed to return to the throne.

Atomic Plant Limits On Liability Quashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a victory for environmentalists, Congress has abandoned for now its attempt to set limits on how much money atomic power plants would be liable for in the event of an accident or other nuclear catastrophe.

The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy said yesterday it is dropping the matter for now and would not attempt to seek an override of President Ford's earlier veto of the legislation.

Ford vetoed the insurance limit bill on procedural grounds. He objected mostly to an amendment saying a joint resolution of Congress could invalidate the act if later studies show a high risk of damage and death from nuclear accidents.

The industry had sought the limits saying it could not afford to pay the true price of insurance without a subsidy. Environmentalists have been against nuclear power development in general, contending it is too dangerous and costly an approach to the nation's energy problems.

"It's really a major setback for the nuclear power industry," said Ann Roosevelt, legislative director for Friends of the Earth. "It signifies that people are really concerned and that this concern is getting through to Congress.

"People are aware of the safety hazards and have decided to take a good hard look at the question," she added. "I think it may signify the death knell for the entire nuclear power industry."

Friends of the Earth and other organizations had contended it would be impossible to set limits on liability because no one knows the extent of damage that might occur from a power plant catastrophe sometime in the future.

BRUCE NESTANDE

Ex-Reagan Aide Wants GOP Spot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman-elect Bruce Nestande yesterday declared his candidacy for the vice chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee, saying the party's reliance on professional "image makers" has flopped.

The former top aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan said massive spending by Republican candidates for professional campaign managers had resulted in the "erosion" of the GOP's "greatest asset-volunteers in politics."

"This backward philosophy clearly has not worked," Nestande said of big spending for image makers. "Now is the time to bring the Republican party back to volunteer politics."

Traditionally, the vice chairman has become the GOP party chairman, making the No. 2 position a hotly contested post.

"There will be a new emergence of Republican strength and prestige in California," Nestande told a news conference. "No third party will spring from our ranks," he added, apparently referring to Reagan's "hypothetical" consideration of becoming a third party presidential candidate.

Nestande has been active in Orange County Republican affairs and was the state director of field operations in former President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Ex-Probation Officer Enters Guilty Plea

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A former Sonoma County probation officer yesterday pleaded not guilty to a charge of possessing marijuana.

Louis Hensley Jr., 49, was ordered by Municipal court Judge Kiernan Hyland to appear at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 3 to have a trial date set.

The Santa Rosan, who joined the county staff in 1970, was fired on Oct. 22 by chief probation officer William Mulligan, who claimed that Hensley had allowed teen-age runaways to use drugs and have sex in his home.

Shortly before his dismissal, he was arrested by Santa Rosa police on the drug charge following in investigation by the county sheriff's department.

Hensley is appealing the firing to the county Civil Service Commission.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, November 21st, the 325th day of 1974 with 40 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

William Beaumont, pioneer American army surgeon, was born November 21st, 1785.

Also on this day in history:

In 1877, Thomas Edison announced the invention of what he called "The Talking Machine" phonograph.

In 1938, Nazi forces occupied the western regions of Czechoslovakia and declared all persons in those areas German citiizens.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy was greeted by cheering crowds in San Antonio, Houston and Fort Worth, Texas, with no portents of the tragedy to befall him the following day in Dallas.

A thought for the day: American stateman Daniel Webster said: "Let our object be our country, our whole country and nothing but our country."

A Bridge Player's His Own Worst Enemy At Certain Times

Many a bridge player is his own worst enemy until he gets out of his own way. The art of making friends with yourself may consist simply in learning how to unblock.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

EAST SIGNALS

West leads the queen of clubs, and East signals enthusiastically with the nine. You refuse the first club but win the second. East plays his king of clubs to unblock the suit for his partner.

You pay little attention to East's unblocking play because you have problems of your onw. Both red suits are blocked. If you are careless, you will get only two hearts and two diamonds.

If you go right after the diamonds, West will take the king of diamonds, cash his good clubs and then force out dummy's ace of spades. You will need the rest of the tricks, but dummy will be entryless with both red suits still blocked.

CLEAR THE WAY

You must cash the ace and king of hearts to begin with. Then lead the ace and jack of diamonds.

West takes the king of diamonds and his good clubs. You discard the low spades from dummy, and West then leads a spade to dummy's ace.

This pits you in dummy for the first and last time. You cash dummy's queen of hearts, discarding the queen of diamonds from your hand. This unblocks the diamonds so that you can cash the rest of dummy's long suit.

Thanks to your foresight you win one spade, three hearts, four diamonds and a club.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A 5 4
♥ - Q J 7
♦ - 10 8 6 5 2
♣ - 7 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one diamond.

There is no value in suppressing this suit, shabby though it is. If partner happens to have five clubs and four diamonds one of you should mention diamonds if you are ever going to get to your best suit.

MUSIC REVIEW

Miss Sill's Operation An Operatic Success

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — Due to her recent operation, there had been much concern over Beverly Sills' "Daughter of the Regiment" at the San Francisco Opera. There needn't have been, for Miss Sills succeeded with ease as did two other American singers, William Harness and Claramae Turner.

Were it not for these personal triumphs and the antics of "la grande comediene" Hermione Gingold, there would have been little reason for all the fuss. The production itself was tame.

Miss Sills made a kookie Maria, an "I-wear-the-pants-too" madcap part bumpkin, part women's libber.

"So you love me," she sings. She shrugs her shoulders as if considering the price of an artichoke. "Ok," she tests him: "We'll see." She's a girl who knows her way around.

Raised since infancy by the soldiers of the 21st Regiment, Marie is not very refined and Miss Sills plays this for a sizable humor.

Tonio (Harness) has saved Marie's life and, naturally, has fallen in love with her, but Marie's soon-to-reappear mother, the Marquise de Berkenfield, has a higher match in mind. The plot is thin but Miss Sills gives Marie much of her own bubbly personality. Few other singing-actresses can play and move on stage with Sills' ease.

The voice was not loosened up in parts of the first act, more the result of a timidity in warming up rather than the effects of her operation. But in the second act, she left no doubt of her unique fluency. She was nimble, prancing through the most swift of vocal gymnastics, and showing an exact marksmanship.

William Harness was as equally relaxed and free on stage as Miss Sills, astonishingly so when one considers that this was his major singing debut.

A last-minute substitute for John Alexander, Harness has all the vigor and tone of youth. There is both a brilliancy of the Baroque style (Handel or Purcell) and a pianissimo lightness of a Puccini tenor. His fluidity, a legato that never breaks between tones, is particularly long.

The improvement since his participation in the 1971 Merola Auditions (after being found in a church choir by Maestro Adler) is remarkable. The voice is open with a much fuller tone. He is now easily audible and there's a center core to each note. He handled the difficult row of high A's with a bull's-eye attack.

Claramae Turner is a contralto who has not received much notice although she has been a regular for years. She earned her "Gravas" as the Marquise of Berkenfield last night. Dressed like a stuffed pin-cushion, she gave Hermione Gingold good competition for the laughs.

Miss Gingold brought a lusty, deep-chested humor. "I see" she'd say gravelly in the best of a high-society accent, "that you are looking at my scarf. It is the very scarf my aunt hung herself with."

It was a cast that far exceeded in quality the production.

Beni Montresor (also responsible for the season's highpoint, "Esclarmonde") presented "The Daughter" very much like a giant puppet show, a Punch and Judy with little curtain slats and muslim drapes that lift out of the top. It was a bit "hicksville", a rustic county fair entertainment.

Montresor's costumes were confused, puppet-fashion or leftovers from "Manon" and "Der Rosenkavalier" and Lofi Mansouri's stage blocking was wooden and awkward at best.

Musically, the opera is not Donizetti's greatest piece and was conducted to no noticable effect by Anton Guadagno. It has rollicking tunes, which occasionally become vehicles for coloratura games, but keeps close to musical comedy and operetta. A few good melodies, the galop, the tuneful, regimental march and a fine trio and its distinction ends.

13 Seeking Novato's Miss Title

Thirteen high school seniors from Novato have entered the Novato Junior Miss pageant to be held Dec. 8 at the Novato Community House.

The winner of the competition, cosponsored by the Novato Jaycees and the Novato Parks and Recreation Department, will compete in the state pageant in Santa Rosa Jan. 25.

The winner will receive a $250 scholarship, while the runnerup will receive $150 and the second runnerup, $75. A $25 award will go to the girl with the best spirit.

The winner will be selected on the basis of poise and appearance, scholastic achievement, fitness and talent.

Diane Carter of 1306 Kaehler Street, Kim Lakos of 64 Monroe Court, Vickie Jewah of 281 Randolph Place, Linda Gagnon of 14 Plaza Loma, Meg Shields of 1241 Leafwood Heights, Christiana Gooding of 18 Woodland Court, Catherine Shrum of 1419 Monte Maria and Barbara Laborie of 469 Via Herbosa, all of Novato High School.

Lynn Graniss of 2177 Feliz Drive, Rhonda Burgess of 1 Kristin Lane, Margaret Marsico of 57 Pico Vista and Cynthia Carter of 159 Michelle Circle, all of San Marin High School.

Diane Henderson of 1108 East Court, of St. Vincent's High School, Petaluma.

'Skinflint' Gross Doesn't Mind The Name

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They called him "skinflint" and "pinchpenny," but retiring Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, whose career has been devoted to holding down congressonal spending, knew it was all in fun.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., told Gross' colleagues at the Washington Press Club farewell ceremony yesterday that in all his years of acquaintance with Gross "I don't know that ne has ever spent over 85 cents."

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., proposed a book about Gross tobe called "Nitpicking and Pennypinching in Your Spare Time for Fun and Profit."

Washington Press Club President Ronald Sarro presented Gross "50 uncirculated pennies to pinch" and other gifts to honor his cost-cutting ways.

FAMILY

"Black Beauty" — The well-known children's classic in a robust, fast-moving film, very satisfying for children. Scenically beautiful and also quite breath-taking. The horse is a true beauty. (Box Office)

"Living Free" — Sequel to "Born Free". Lioness Elsa dies, leaving her three cubs to fend for themselves. Joy Adamson catches them and places them in a national game preserve. Strengthened by beautiful photography and laugh-provoking antics of the cubs.

"That's Entertainment" — A compilation of spectacular scenes from the best of old MGM Musicials, each introduced by a star gives a lift to the spirit and a true insight into what entertainment is meant to be. For anyone over 10.

"Vanishing Wilderness" — A refreshing tour of North American wilderness including the Rocky Mountains, Alaska and the Florida Everglades.

ADULTS AND TEEN-AGERS

"Airport '75" — Surpassing entertainment. Delightfully intense and nerve racking when jet plane is hit and stewardess (Karen Black) has to take over controls. A series of scenes that will have audiences reaching to fasten their seat belts. Craftsmanlike film. (Catholic Film Newsletter)

"Harry and Tonto" — Art Carney is a warm and witty performance as a 72-year-old Harry who travels across the country with his cat, Tonto. Entertaining and emotionally comforting to view contemporary life through Harry's wise old eyes. Very coarse language. (Mature youth)

"Odessa File" — A journalist uncovers an organization protecting wartime members of the dreaded branch of the Wehrmacht. (Box Office Magazine)

"Rolling Stones" — A film of the Rolling Stones' 1972 concert tour through America. Focal point of the picture is Mike Jagger, actor, poet, singer and showman. Actually a quadraphonic sound experience with the advantage of close-ups. (Film Information)

"Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams" — An honest, searching film about a middle-aged woman and her relationships with those closest to her. Sensitive script, direction and astute performances. (Over 14)

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy. Well-acted by a distinguished cast headed by Harry Belafonte, Bill Cosby, Flip Wilson and Sidney Poitier. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

BORDERLINE

"Longest Yard" — Overly-long film details a football game between convicts and a semi-pro group of prison guards. The two sides try to slaughter one another "legally". Strictly for Burt Reynolds and devoted gridiron fans.

"Parallax View" — Nine witnesses to an assassination die. The remaining witness reopens the case and uncovers an insidious conspiracy. Profanity and bloody violence but extremely suspenseful. (Over 16).

"Serpico" — True story of a one-man war against corruption in New York City. Sex, cursing and violence alleviated by warmth and humor.

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles of 1937. Good cast and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"The Deadly Trackers" — Sadistic, repulsive violence. A young boy is trampled by a horse. His mother is murdered, his "peaceful" sheriff father sinks into a rage of relentless violence. The grisly carnage is negative use of talent; to see it, a negative use of time, mind and money.

"The Gambler" — A stinging tension-filled film that leaves the viewer with an unsettling bad taste in the mouth. Not for the weak-hearted or young. Raw language and hard to bear violence. (Film Information)

"Going Places" — Shocking sex exploitation combined with satire in a tale of two cynical hoods. Excessive sex, nudity, cursing, violence. French with English titles.

"King of Marvin Gardens" — Pointless tale of two brothers. One radio entertainer, the other a shady business man, keeping two women in his Atlantic City hotel room. The brothers meet, after years of separation, when one needs help to get out of jail. The affair ends in an unexpected outburst of violence. Brief nudity. Boring.

"Last Detail" — Salty, hard-hitting, raucous tale of two sailors escorting a young boot to a naval prison. Excellent acting, but much baudiness, non-stop obsenity, nudity. (Over 17)

"Law and Disorder" — A good cast, with Carroll O'Connor and Ernest Borginine in another vigilante-type film. Extensive use of vulgar language and sudden violence that is improperly motivated.

Union Rejected In Textile Vote

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (UPI) — Workers at 16 Cannon Mills plants yesterday voted against representation by the Textile Workers Union of America.

The results were 9,473 to 6,801 in the biggest collective bargaining election in the history of the U.S. textile industry.

Cannon Board Chairman Don S. Holt termed the victory "an expression of cofidence by Cannon people and of their desire to continue working together to maintain a productive and successful manufacturing company."

Weaver Named

SANCTUARY OVER FOR TERMITES

A huge tarp is pulled into place over Saint John's Catholic Cathedral in Fresno in preparation for ridding the city's oldest active church of its termite congregation. The battle is expected to take at least a week and services will be held in a parish hall across the street until the job is completed. The exterminating company used a helicopter to wrap the tarp over the church yesterday.

Agency Audit Said Unsatisfactory

Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell has said he is dissatisfied with the annual audit a private firm performed on the books of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency.

Mitchell said yesterday that he intends to question Wallace K. Shepherd, redevelopment agency executive director, and the East Bay firm of Morris, Davis and Co. about the review of the agency's financial status as of June 30. Mitchell received a copy of the report last week, at his request.

"I hate to criticize a colleague, but it's an 'empty audit'," Mitchell told the Independent-Journal. He said the report needs explanations, particularly with regard to its notes about lack of information on prior years' corrections to the books.

"You can't read it and get a great deal out of" the auditing firm's six page report, Mitchell said. "It may answer the legal requirements, but . . ."

In its report, the auditing firm wrote, "prior audit adjustments were not identifiable in the books and records of account. There was no means of determining which journal entries resulted from prior audit reviews or normal operations. As a result, book balances did not reflect the audited amounts." The firm recommended that the agency set up procedures to correct the omission, but did not specify the steps, nor the amount of error found.

San Anselmo Benefit Due On Dec. 7

A Dec. 7 benefit concert to raise funds for San Anselmo students' Bicentennial project will feature folk, country and bluegrass music. The event is set for 7 p.m. in Isabel Cook School, 1000 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Sixth grade classes taught by Robert A. Balzan, David Marks and Bernard Griff want the funds to buy materials for a magazine containing student interviews and pictures of old-time Marin.

Performers will inclide Jeffery Cain, formerly of The Youngbloods, and the Griff, Mark and Palmer Travlin' Show, featuring "Bicentennial ballads," Griff reported.

Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for the first youngster in a family and 50 cents for each additional child.

'Tiny Tim' Receives A Christmas Home

Tiny Tim's Christmas, the annual Marin County effort to provide toys and food for needy families, has at last found a home and will open Monday, according to Bob Collins, coordinator.

Collins said the old Purity Market at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley will be the headquarters. The owner of the empty building, Lloyd Tupper, has donated it for several weeks, Collins said.

Beginning Monday, volunteers will start collecting and sorting new and old toys and food. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Used toys are being collected in boxes at local fire stations and new toys also are being solicited.

In addition, Collins said canned goods to complete Christmas baskets are needed. Donations may be brought to the center.

But most of all, with only a month until Christmas, Collins said he needs volunteers of all ages.

This year, in order to cut down waiting in lines, needy persons will be given their presents by appointment shortly before Christmas Collins said.

Freighter Sinks In Seaway

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — A 640-foot Canadian freighter loaded with iron ore smashed into a rock ledge in the Saint Lawrence seaway last night and sank, U.S. authorities reported.

All 29 men aboard were rescued, but the wreckage was expected to block traffic in the waterway until officials can pinpoint its exact location.

Alitalia Airlines Dropping Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — A spokesman for Alitalia, the Italian quasi-governmental air carrier, said yesterday that the airline would discontinue service to O'Hare International Airport effective Jan. 1.

The spokesman said the airline was discontinuing its Chicago service because of increasing fuel costs.

MARIN A HORSE HAVEN

Where To Draw The Equine Line?

By MARY LEYDECKER

It is estimated 8,000 of them live in Marin County.

From time to time, one of them is the center of a controversy but, by-and-large, many Marin residents are scarcely aware of their existence.

Dealing with them has brought into play the usual suburban range of meetings, conferences, planning department conferences, ordinances and variances.

"Some people say they like the smell of horse manure, but as urbanization increases, something has to go," said Herbert G. Hotchner, San Rafael city planning director.

He noted, though, that in the past few years, there has only been one major flap in the city and one minor one. Densely populated San Rafael has one of the toughest horse ordinances in the county — a use permit is required for any horse, but Hotchner pointed out that city officials have never conducted a witchhunt to make sure the rule is carried out.

Some other cities, like Tiburon, also require permits for horses, and that city allows them alongside its bike path but not on the asphalt.

In the more rural areas of Marin, horses have long grazed in peaceful pastures near the numerous cattle, although the County of Marin currently has a strict ordinance covering horses on small lots.

A recent proposal by the county planning staff to liberalize this requirement apparently has met with approval by horse lovers but a corollary proposal for regulating horses in agricultural areas brought out hundreds of protestors.

(Under the present ordinance, a permit is required for any horses in residential areas, and as a practical matter, Bragdon said, complaints by neighbors often bar a permit. Under the proposed regulations, a certain number of horses would be allowed on a certain amount of land without a permit. Horses on agricultural property currently are not controlled.)

Harvey Bragdon of the county planning department, who admits he knows nothing about horses "except for glue pots and the movies," takes part of the blame for the flap.

He said his staff's proposal that a use permit be required for grazing, breeding, boarding or training more than one horse per acre or more than 25 horses on any size lot was "just for starters."

He said the figure of 25, which brought such heated response from horsemen, was "never intended to be a sacred number."

"Our main concern was that we not have a Candlestick Park in West Marin," Bragdon said, voicing the fear that some future equestrian center might have the drawing power of the Giants' ballpark.

Bragdon continued that he had no idea what kind of maximums should be placed on horses and for that reason, is seeking the assistance of the newly formed Marin County Horsemen's Advisory Committee.

Stanley K. Gobbin of Novato, chairman of the committee, talked about the situation as he showed off his own "one-and-a-half horses" (a stallion and a pony for his children.)

"We don't want to live with the horses," he said, as he pointed out the distance of the barn and pasture from his house, which is on Vineyard Road in an unincorporated area that once was a turkey and walnut ranch.

In his neighborhood, Gobbin said, there are numerous horses, and in the rural atmosphere and with big lots, there is no problem he knows of.

But Gobbin acknowledged that "norms" for keeping horses in the county ought to be established. "The how, where and why" of horses in the community is what his committee is attempting to establish, he said.

To this end, he and other committee members are studying horse ordinances and requirements in other areas. For instance, Gobbin said, Los Angeles County has adopted an ordinance which allows one horse per 10,000 feet, and in Burbank, one horse per 6,000 square feet lot is allowable.

The former minimum is "liberal," Gobbin said, while the second one is "ridiculous."

"The working horse is a thing of the past," Gobbin said, and maybe even "the backyard horse is a thing of the past."

While agreeing that certain standards of lot size for horses ought to be maintained, Gobbin disagreed with anything like a 25-horse limit on stables or other commercial enterprises.

"Such a limit would be bound to raise the boarding fee" for horses, Gobbin said, and the fees already average about $100 a month.

Gobbin is a San Francisco insurance broker, and one of his specialities is writing insurance on horses. But his love of the animals involves more than their bringing him business — it goes back to his childhood in England, where his grandfather showed draft horses and his uncle rode with the cavalry in World War I.

Others on the new horsemen's committee also come from different walks of life. Michael Lowe, who has operated a stables on Sutro Avenue outside Novato for about a year, is a former electronics engineer who "retired" in 1969.

After a varied career racing cars and doing consulting work, Lowe, the son of a cavalryman, decided to go into the horse business because "I like kids. I like horses and I like the outdoors."

At his Oak Crest Stables, one can see plenty of all three — especially the subteen-age girls who are often the most enthusiastic riders and horse lovers in the county.

Asked about conditions under which horses are kept in Marin, Daniels replied that often horses are happier outside getting a little exercise than confined in a fancy stall.

"But I'm not a good judge as to what is acceptable to the neighbors," he said.

As for one of the biggest neighbor problems in horse keeping, Lowe said he has manure from his stables trucked away and gives it to parks. Gobbin solves the problem with a compost heap which is subsequently used to grow his family's vegetables.

But they and other committee members are working toward coming up with standards and rules that will work for horseowners but also keep them friends with other Marin residents.

PEACEFUL — Suzanne Nitter, 16, of Novato, saddles up a horse as others look on in the rural setting of the Oak Creek stables near San Marin in Novato. Some of Marin's 8,000 horses live in such commercial stables while others are pastured here and there, both in the cities and country.

Police Hope To Improve Their Image

San Rafael Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly today announced the department will embark on a two-pronged program to boost a "better understanding between police and the public they serve."

According to a press release issued by the chief, the first in a series of seminars on police procedures and crime prevention techniques will be held at 7 p.m. Dec. 4 in city hall.

The three-hour session will include discussion of departmental history, philosophy, policies and procedure, as well as crime prevention techniques, displays of police equipment, and a film on police work.

The seminar, to be offered on a month-to-month basis "indefinitely," will be limited to 75 residents each month, according to Kelly.

Residents attending a seminar will be invited to sign up to "ride along" with a San Rafael officer on patrol, he said. The ride-along sessions will also last three hours.

Residents 14 years of age and older interested in the program may enroll by calling the departmental police community relations unit.

'Old Mike' To Stand Trial

OAKLAND (UPI) — A 55-year-old hermit whose shack near Livermore was burned by authorities has been declared sane and competent to stand trial on trespassing charges.

Mike Pompileo, known to Livermore children as "Old Mike," was examined by three court-appointed psychiatrists, who made their report yesterday.

Local residents have raised funds to help the recluse find some type of rural housing so he can remain in the valley, which he claims he owns by right of Spanish land grant.

Judge Harold B. Hove said Pompileo would return to Livermore Municipal Court Monday to answer to the charges, which result from his 6-year residency as a squatter in a battered one-room shack.

College Unit Ups Administrator Pay

The Marin Community College District board last night granted an 8.1 per cent salary increase to its administrators.

The increase covers 12 administrators at College of Marin and Indian Valley Colleges, not including the president of either college, who received contracts in July, or the district superintendent, now in the second year of a four-year contract. It is retroactive to July 1, and will cost the district an estimated $35,648 this fiscal year.

Nine per cent increases previously were granted to the teachers and the staff.

The Marin Community College District Board also:

PERSONNEL — Hired Lonnie Cardone as account clerk at $841 per month; Susie Sheppard and Alexandra Soeten as typist clerks at $329.50 each per month; and Fred Vance as part time night watchman at $346 per month.

COUNSELOR — Authorized the appointment of a counselor for the handicapped during the spring semester.

BARRIERS — Authorized spending not more than $74,600 to continue removing architectural barriers for the handicapped.

SIGNS — Authorized the contracting for signs for the Indian Valley Colleges campus.

COURSES — Approved six courses for IVC: training for teacher aides, psychobiology, oceanography, physics for poets, watercolor and sounds and awareness.

DATA — Authorized the purchase of $169,513 of data processing equipment for employee record keeping.

EQUIPMENT — Authorized purchase of $60,427 worth of equipment for the IVC instructional service center, including up to two color television cameras.

HALL-THEATER — Approved the project scope and authorized applying for matching state funds for a lecture hall-theater at IVC, Trustee William J. Filante dissenting. The $1 million project would be begun next year and completed in 1977.

PLAN — Approved the updated 10-year construction plan, including the IVC lecture hall-theater, Filante dissenting.

NURSES — Told officials of the registered nursing program to take stronger steps to give qualified applicants an advantage in the admissions process if they had applied previously and not been accepted. The district has 60 spaces in its first-year program and 180-215 qualified applicants annually.

Parents Encouraged To Inspect Records

Parents should be encouraged to inspect their children's school records, the Lagunitas School District board agreed last night.

Trustees were discussing a new federal law which required school officials to allow parents to view their youngsters' permanent files.

"I think it's a very good law," said Board President Richard C. Sloan. "Parents should see those records to make sure they contain no inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate information.

"If there's a problem, the law provides that the parents can challenge the records and try to have them changed. That way they can make sure files with wrong information don't go on to other schools."

Sloan said that in the past many parents have had the impression that records were closed, even though that legally was not the case.

"But I have known of school districts which refused to show records to parents," Sloan said. "The new law clears that uo."

Water Unit Reduces Its Grace Time

North Marin County Water District customers who don't pay their bills will find their faucets going dry a little faster.

Currently, water service is shut off if a bill hasn't been paid by 95 days after it is issued.

But district directors Tuesday night agreed to reduce that period to 75 days. They also decided to sned a second notice to delinquent customers before turning off the taps.

The North Marin County Water District Board also:

POINT REYES — Agreed to charge customers who receive water from the Point Reyes station water system but don't live in the water district a surcharge equal to taxes paid by customers in the district.

REFUNDS — Refunded $8,262 in excess taxes collected in fiscal 1973-74 to property owners in Point Reyes Improvement District No. 2.

NO IMPACT — Received a report from dist. mgr. John O. Nelson that the planned Mesa Road waterline extension at Point Reyes Station wouldn't have any significant environmental impact.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Dec. 3 at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

Torture Slayers Are Sentenced

FARMINGTON, Utah (UPI) — Two young airmen were stenenced to death last night for the April 22 torture slayings of three persons in a stereo shop robbery at Ogden, Utah.

A District Court jury deliberated less than two hours before returning its verdict against Dale S. Pierre, 21, Trinidad, and William A. Andrews, 19, Jonesboro, La., who had been stationed at Hill Air Force Base, Utah.

Judge John F. Wahlquist set Nov. 27 for sentencing.

Under Utah law, a convicted murderer has his choice of death by hanging or a firing squad. The death sentences were the first since the state adopted a new capital punishment statute.

Pierre and Andrews were convicted Saturday of killing Sherry Oichelle Ansley, 18, Stanley O. Walker, 20, and Mrs. Byron Naisbitt, 52, during a $24,000 holdup.

Authorities said all were shot in the head and had liquid drain cleaner forced down their throats.

A SWEET PROTEST

Connecticut bakers marched at the state caiptal yesterday in Hartford, Conn., to protest the rising cost of sugar. The protests followed Labor Department announcements in Washington that sugar prices are expected to rise even higher in October. (UPI Telephoto)

Funds Withdrawn Profit-Sharing

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Taking advantage of a provision in a profit-sharing plan, employees of R.J. Reynolds Industries here have withdrawn millions of dollars and are using them to buy new cars, color television sets and pay off loans.

Reynolds officials, while declining to specify how much has been paid out of the plan, said it distributed the money to its employees, from hourly workers to executives, last week by mail.

The profit-sharing plan was inaugurated in 1956 with only company contributions going into the fund. In the 1960s the plan was changed to allow employees to withdaw all the money credited to their account, including funds contributed by employees under provisions of another change in the plan.

'It became apparent that more and more employees were taking all of their money out of their accounts," said a Reynolds spokesman. He said the firm decided to terminate the plan and give participants an increase in pay equal to the amount the firm had been contributing.

In addition, the firm also instituted a new stock purchase plan for its workers.

A sales official of Froelich Cadillac Co. said "We've had a very good week this week." He attributed some of the increase in sales to the Reynolds move and said, "Many of them have had their checks with them when they looked, believe it or not."

A spokesman for Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., headquartered here, said the firm has received several million dollars in deposits from Reynolds workers and many of them were using the money to pay off loans, bolster checking and savings accounts or buy savings certificates.

San Rafael Firm May Take Over Recycling Depot

The Peninsula Environmental Council has decided to turn over the management of its financially profitable Belvedere-Tiburon recycling depot to Marin Environmental Cooperative, a San Rafael recycling firm.

Council president Diana J. Bradley said her group always has aimed to get the depot in the black and then to turn it over to a private firm. "We want to get out of the garbage business and do more environmental education here," she said.

Last year, the 3-year-old depot made $2,000. The San Rafael firm, run by Neill Smith of Tiburon, will pay the council $100 per month under its management contract.

Mrs. Bradley said Smith may expand the hours of the depot, now open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays.

The council will ask the Belvedere and Tiburon city councils to approve its action since the two cities sponsor the depot and have contributed funds to start it.

We've got the Team.

Here's Hanson's new high performance comfort system. It's called The Team. It's softer forwards and stiffer backwards. There's a new, more supple "floating" front for soaking up the bumps. And the new wrap-around liner cradles your calf while keeping out the weather.

Now take a gander at the new back. Calf supports are swivel mounted on the top of a 7" aluminum beam. (It's sort of like the headrest on a dentist's chair.) Each wing of the support can be screwed in or out for customized leg fit or for canting. And there's a micro-adjustment fitting feature allowing you to fine tune your boot simply by turning a screw.

The Team is a system you won't want to miss—so come on in and let our boot experts put your foot in one. We think you'll join The Team.

A Hanson factory expert will be here on Wednesday, Nov. 27, 1974 from 2 to 8 P.M. to help you get the best fit possible.

Thousands Fast In U.S. Today To Help Feed World's Hungry

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Thousands of persons in the United States fasted today to help the hungry in Africa, Asia and South America.

Appalled by the reports of famine in various parts of the world, a "conservatively" estimated 250,000 people responded to the fast plea, the planners of the "Fast for World Harvest" said.

Officials of Oxfam-America and Project Relief, co-sponsors of the fast, said half a billion people are chronically malnourished around the world and "half of these are children, whose growth and mentality are being permanently affected."

Fast officials said the plan was for participants in the fast to send to the co-sponsors the money they would have spent on food today. The money was to be distributed to the organizations' relief projects around the world.

"There's no way to assess the number participating," Nathan Grey, an Oxfam official, said. "When the figure comes from us it's always conservative. We can hardly handle the phone calls. We've got friends of friends calling friends."

Gary Goodrich, national coordinator for the fast day, said the quarter of a million figure was projected "on the basis of calls we've gotten from schools, both high schools and colleges. Also a smaller number of businesses, churches and small town newspapers from Atlanta to San Francisco have been phoning in all week."

Gray said the governors of Tennessee and Utah had issued declarations of fasting for the day. Many communities also reported plans for fasting.

Oxfam blamed part of the world food problem on the fact that Americans and others in the affluent nations have changed their dietary habits from bread or rice to meat. Officials said it takes about eight pounds of grain to make one pound of beef.

Deed Restriction Wins Approval

A deed restriction which will give the city of Mill Valley more control over what trees can be removed from a heavily wooded downtown lot has been approved by the city architectural advisory committee.

The lot at 42 Miller Avenue, next to old Brown's store, is owned by Mill Valley florist Normand Black. Black is subdividing the three-acre parcel, leaving about one-quarter acre with a house on it in a residential zone. The rest probably will be used for commercial development, according to building inspector William McBride.

Latta Quits Committee Considering Rockefeller

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, resigned today as a member of the House Judiciary Committee which is considering Nelson A. Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif., was elected by the House to take Latta's place as the 17th Republican on the 38-member panel.

Latta, considered a conservative, was named to the committee when it was hearing Gerald R. Ford's nomination as vice president last year.

McCloskey is considered a moderate Republican which bolsters Republican support on the panel for Rockefeller. Conservative Republicans have generally criticized the Rockefeller nomination.

Sawhill Says Tough Policy Cost His Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John C. Sawhill told a Senate committee today he lost his job as Federal Energy Administrator because he got too tough on the question of conserving energy.

The Ford administrat on was not ready to take a hard line on conservation, the outgoing FEA chief told the Senate Interior Committee.

"If I'd been more gingerly, I'd probably still have my job," Sawhill said. "Nobody came and said 'You are getting too tough.' They said 'executive incompatibility'."

He also reiterated an earlier charge that energy policy has been "favorable to the oil companies," with their powerful influence on Washington.

Sawhill testified about the blueprint for "Project Independence," the proposed goal for domestic self-sufficiency in energy.

"Isn't this really a blueprint for survival?" Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., asked Sawhill. "Don't we need a really tough conservation program that would allow us to save the oil we have?"

"Not everybody believes that," Sawhill said. "I am not talking about people in government," he added, laughing.

Abourezk asked if energy policy has been "what the oil companies wanted."

"It certainly has been a policy which has been favorable to the oil industry," Sawhill said.

"Because of their influence in Washington?" Abourezk asked.

"There certainly has been some evidence of that," Sawhill said.

Pro Hired For Jackson Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash, today hired the Democratic Party's top professional for his presidential campaign "planning committee."

The move was intrepreted as meaning that Jackson almost certainly will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

Jackson hired Robert Keefe, 40, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, who will resign Dec. 1 to become political director of the organization Jackson set up earlier this year to lay preliminary plans for his possible candidacy.

"This means we will now move into political organization," a Jackson spokesman said, noting that planning committee activities so far have been largely in the fund raising field.

The spokesman said Jackson is expected to formally announce his candidacy before the 94th Congress convenes in mid-January, but not at the mid-term Democratic convention in Kansas City Dec. 6-8.

Keefe's appointment gives the Jackson campaign the services of a veteran political professional. Keefe, an Indiana native, was administrative assistant for Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., for nine years and worked as a political consultant with the AFL-CIO and the Democratic Governors Campaign Committee before joining the Democratic National Committee in December, 1972, as Chairman Robert S. Strauss' top aide.

Five Awards Are Won By Marin Times

The College of Marin Times has won five awards, including first place for general excellence for tabloid papers, in competition with other junior college newspapers in Northern California, the school announced yesterday.

Awards were made at the northern conference of the Journalism Association of Community Colleges Saturday at De Anza College in Cupertino.

Some 26 junior college papers from throughout Northern California were entered. Judging was by the San Jose Newspaper Guild.

Former Times copy editor Dixie Brown received second place in feature writing for her story on a biology expedition, and cartoonist Mary Ann Withrow finished second in editorial cartooning.

The awards cover the period from April 25 to Oct. 26.

Ukiah Man Ordered To Atascadero

A Ukiah man — who already has served prison time for rape and kidnap — was declared mentally ill yesterday in a felony case involving the attempted rape of a San Rafael woman.

Rodney Joe Harrison, 25, was ordered to Atascadero State Hospital by Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court.

After doctors there declare him cured, he is to return to Marin for sentencing, but Judge Best told Harrison he will consider freeing him at that time.

Harrison admitted picking up an 18-year-old woman as she hitchhiked in Eureka in April and giving her a ride to Marin.

He pulled a gun and tried to force her into the back seat, but she talked him out of it and persuaded him to take her home.

Harrison served time in an Oregon prison for assault with a deadly weapon, rape and kidnap.

2 San Rafael Gas Dealers Are Cited

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two San Rafael gasoline pump operators have been cited by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District inspectors for failure to install devices to recover vapors from filling of their storage tanks.

The two are the Texaco service station at 145 Third Street and Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury Sales, 475 Francisco Boulevard.

The two were among 89 cited throughout the Bay Area. According to the district, the region has 1,360 individuals, companies and government agencies operating gasoline service stations for public sale or their own use. The deadline to install the recovery devices was extended twice, but finally became effective on Oct. 1.

District directors adopted the regulation on February 1973.

Violators can be fined up to $500 a day for each day they operate without the devices. The recovery systems are expected to prevent an estimated 40 tons a day of gasoline vapors from evaporating into the atmosphere.

Youth Wins Film Award

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Carl Willat of 6 Sky Rock, Strawberry, received a first place award in the 16 MM category of the 1974 Kodak teen-age movie awards here Tuesday.

Willat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin A. Willat, won a $500 cash award and medal for his four-minute film on snails, "Flapperette".

Another young Marin filmmaker, Kevin Richardson, 12, of 16 Serra Street, Corte Madera, won an honorable mention in the junior category of the competition for a two-minute, 20-second film, "The Wind," about a man bothered by the wind.

Plans To 'Destroy The Downtown To Save It'

"We had to destroy the city to save it."

That remark by an American general shocked the nation and came to symbolize the brutalization of the Vietnam war.

But what bombs and shells did in Vietnam has been done by wreckers and bulldozers in cities across the face of the United States. Here it is called "redevelopment."

In the name of "redevelopment," neighborhoods — both commercial and residential — have been razed, their business people and residents uprooted, to be replaced by alien structures and alien businesses which some professional planner believed would "upgrade" the city.

SOMETHING of that same approach is contained in two of the four "alternatives" (there can be only two alternatives, but the planners were unaware of that) presented to the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency by a consortium of planners engaged to develop a downtown redevelopment plan.

"Alternative I" would put a regional shopping center at the foot of Fourth Street. The existing downtown would receive some cosmetic treatment to disguise its speeded-up decline.

"Alternative II" would go even further. It would put a regional shopping center on West Francisco Boulevard, again giving the downtown a little face-lifting to hide its death throes.

"Alternative III" would locate what the planners call a "sub-regional shopping center" — actually two major department stores with some satellite-businesses — at the lower end of the existing downtown district, tying it into improvements among adjacent business properties.

"Alternative IV" would do little beyond some downtown beautification and an improvement of the traffic flow.

THE PURPOSE of redevelopment, as repeatedly emphasized by the city council when it took advantage of state law permitting siphoning off tax revenues from valuation increases, was to save San Rafael's downtown. It was emphasized over and over that the longtime business-professional-governmental hub of Marin County should not be allowed to sink into the role proposed for it in the so-called countywide plan: "an incubator for small businesses."

A shopping center cannot be the hub of a city. Anyone who thinks it can should visit Garden Grove in Orange County, which has 125,000 people, several shopping centers, but no downtown — and virtually no community identity.

But a regional shopping center near the existing downtown district can doom that district. To spend San Rafael's redevelopment money for such purpose would defeat the ends for which it was intended.

"ALTERNATIVE III," on the other hand, could help the downtown by attracting more shoppers and encouraging owners to upgrade existing buildings. It would expand, rather than destroy, the present downtown district.

We feel sure the San Rafael City Council will not be diverted from the true purpose of redevelopment by the proposed "Alternative I" or "Alternative II."

Energy Crisis Results In New Appreciation Of NATO Alliance

LONDON — The doors of the new International Energy Agency opened for business in Paris this week.

No miracle will flow from the event. It has taken more than a year of patient diplomacy among the United States and its trading partners to bring it about. France is not joining.

Yet at a time when there has been so much gloom about the future of the NATO alliance, the Atlantic community, and indeed about the survival of the non-Communist world, it is worth special notice that the leaders in this world have put together a place where their technical experts will concentrate on the greatest present problem of the western community — the problem of energy.

WHAT THE AGENCY may be able to do is less important right now than the fact that the Atlantic community, when burdened by the oil crisis and other divisive problems, has consulted, coordinated, and done something. True, it was slow in getting it done. But there is a community and it is functioning.

The worst of the energy crisis is a year old now. It had an immediate and divisive effect on the western economic community. The NATO alliance came under particular strain when U.S. Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger tried to use it as an instrument of his operations in the Middle East. There was, in effect, a rebellion in the alliance against what others considered arbitrary and high-handed methods by Dr. Kissinger. There was much recrimination on all sides, and much talk about the fragmentation of the alliance.

Well, that was a year ago. The Middle East war strain was suppiemented by the Cyprus crisis. Greece followed France in declaring itself out of the military organization of NATO.

BUT TODAY, NATO still uses the bases and other alliance facilities in Greece. The Greek break from the alliance is pro forma rather than substantial. The relationship between Washington and the major West European countries is vastly improved.

Everyone involved was shaken by the differences which were exposed by the Middle East crisis. But is has had a healthy effct. Dr. Kissinger's treatment of his NATO allies has been transformed. They no longer complain. Instead, they praise him for his consideration.

The improvement is particularly noticeable in U.S.-British relations. In part, that is due to change in government in London. The previous Conservative government was pro-European to the point of almost becoming anti-American. It subscribed substantially to the French theory of achieving European unity by distance from Washington.

The present British foreign minister, James Callaghan, reversed that policy and has done his utmost to keep on friendly and constructive terms with Washington. He and Dr. Kissinger are constantly on the telephone to each other and work together in cordial terms.

ANOTHER MIDDLE EAST war would, of course, put another strain on NATO. The essential facts have not changed. Western Europe is totally dependent on Middle East oil. It can be ruined economically by another Arab oil embargo.

The West Europeans are as determined as ever to keep on good terms with the Arabs. They will not risk their oil supplies for the sake of Israel. They will get as far away as possible from any American policy which might seem to threaten their oil supply.

But this potential difference from Washington is recognized, in advance, as a danger. Having experienced the divisiveness of it within the year, all concerned will be more aware of the interests of the others, and more careful than they were a year ago to contain the differences as much as possible.

Also, having faced the possibility of the disintegration of NATO, there seems to be a revived appreciation of its importance. It is no longer so. It is newly appreciated.

ERWIN D. CANHAM: Rockefeller Dilemma

I am glad I do not have to vote on the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller.

The considerations, it seems to me, are very strong — on both sides.

First are former Governor Rockefeller's manifest qualifications. His many years of public service are formidable endorsement. His responses under senatorial questioning have been impressive. He stands very plainly head and shoulders above many men who have held the office of vice-president.

Second are the unpleasant alternatives if he is turned down. All the dreary business of investigating a nominee must begin all over again. Who knows what regrettable details mgiht be unearthed in the background of almost any public person? Also, much further time would be consumed, while the succession to the presidency remains inadequately filled.

Third, Governor Rockefeller has apologized for financing the book against Arthur Goldberg and admitted his egregious mistake. This is something. Moreover, the book was entirely ineffective, and Governor Rockefeller's failure to recall the details earlier may be understood.

Finally, the Rockefeller gifts — if none of them violated the letter or even the spirit of law — are in part at least an evidence of warm generosity.

Foremost is the question of money power. Rockefeller wealth and Rockefeller connections run through many vital channels of national and international life. If Governor Rockefeller should become president, would this be dangerous? This is a very hard question to answer.

Second, if the gifts to various officeholders did in fact violate law, they would constitute a serious offense. This surely, would settle negatively the issue of confirmation.

Third, suppose the motivation to uphold good public service and to be generous were otherwise: suppose some extreme demagogue, some sinister person of the far right or far left, had similar money and spent it to control people and issues. Would not most of us be horrified?

Fourth, this issue arises on the heels of Watergate. Congress must be extra careful that it applies principles of equal justice to such issues as cover-up or abuse of power.

Fifth, in this second application of the 25th Amendment, Congress must fulfill historic responsibilities with greatest circumspection. It should not stretch points.

SURELY MERE WEALTH, however great, should not be an absolute disqualification. New York state has been ably governed these last 16 years.

Yet Governor Rockefeller spent a lot more to get elected, each time, than anybody ever had before. The fact that it was family money doesn't help much.

Hopefully, new laws can prevent use of the money power in the electoral process. But the past expenditure of some $14 million of Rockefeller money in support of his political campaigns is there on the record.

There's very little doubt that Rockefeller money, Rockefeller connections, Rockefeller power have produced better government. But is that really at issue? Again, with some melancholy, we must ask: do the ends ever justify the means?

It is quite likely that if Nelson Rockefeller were ever to become president, the Rockefeller power would serve the nation well. Governor Rockefeller's personal talents, his wide experience, his instincts and his intelligence might be outstanding.

But the gnawing question remains.

It's a decision with which Congress and the nation will have to live for a long time.

I don't envy them their task.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Marin Bicycle Paths Merely Increase Hazards

I own and transport myself on a toy, more commonly referred to as a bicycle, or perhaps a pain in the neck, depending on who is doing the viewing. My normal route is from Corte Madera to Sausalito (about seven miles each way), and by the time I reach my destination I'm such a nervous wreck I can barely struggle off my machine and into the security of my office building.

This particular day wasn't any different from any other, but each time I ride and survive, (obviously the case up to now) I have come closer to the brink of some sort of action. A bike ride in the early morning is extremely enjoyable, but to have to dodge death and destruction on your own turf (i.e., the bike path) is more than I can handle . . . People park in the bike path, pass other cars using the bike path, and above and beyond that, construction crews use it as a convenient area from which to work on roads, canals, power poles and what have you. If it happened to motorists they would be screaming bloody murder. I'm screaming bloody murder now!

The practice of paying lip service to cyclists and piece-meal appeasement projects has led to an extremely dangerous situation. Cyclists believe they have a place to ride that is safer than the road, and in reality it is magnitudes more dangerous. To blow a tire going against traffic (as in the case of the lane across from Tamalpais High School) could mean real trouble. Yet there isn't any effort to keep glass off the path or see that it drains properly (and there is literally enough glass to start a recycling plant). Sausalito's path along the water is too narrow . . .

. . . Yet if one calls the county to find out what is being done in the bike planning field, he is routed to Parks and Recreation. What ever happened to Public Works? If one is going to take on the challenge of bike planning, it has to be done seriously, with the knowledge that just as in freeway or road planning, mistakes can kill! . . .

Van Dellen's Column '10 Years Out Of Date'

You are doing a disservice to your readers by publishing Van Dellen's medical column which is at least 10 years out of date. As a pharmacist required to be informed about current drug developments, I find the current drivel entitled, "Treatment of angina pectoris complicated and expensive" totally archaic and misleading.

In a current symposium held at Stanford University and attended by leading cardiologists from around the U.S. it was found that propranolol was the most useful drug to be introduced in the treatment of angina in the past 25 years. Your consultant does not even mention this breakthrough in the treatment of angina!

Dr. Richard Ross, chief of cardiology at Johns Hopkins, stated that, "Propranolol may be the only effective form of treatment in severe angina."

All in all, I abhor antiquated medical advice given in lay publications which is not in accordance with currently accepted medical doctrine.

Cry About Inflation, Then Elect Big Spenders

It is hard to believe how hard Americans protest against inflation, rent and food prices and other ways of throwing money away, when they go out and vote all the big spenders into our government. You would think that we want to go into recession instead of trying to correct it.

During the last vote most of the Republicans dropped out of the scene, leaving mostly Democrats. It is very possible the whole Democratic race to destroy itself if they don't start coming up with some solutions to our problems. We are headed right for the highest inflation anyone could imagine.

We can't go on living like civilized human beings if we keep this up. We must all unite, black or white, weak or strong, Republican or Democratic, rich or poor, smart or dumb, and fight against inflation and most of all the future problem of superinflation.

Movie Theater Prices Prohibitive

I recently tried to attend the movie, "Trial of Billy Jack" at the Rafael Movie Theater, and was informed it would cost me $3 to attend. I found this prohibitive. Whatever happened to junior rates? I have read the reviews for this movie and it was not recommended for children under 13, so why do they have children's prices? I am considered an adult when it is time to pay but not according to rating restrictions. The movie theater and movie industries are speaking out of both sides of their mouths. Is this just another example of profiteering in inflationary times, or are they really justified? At 16, my babysitting money can't stretch far enough to find out.

What Objector Meant In Remarks To Council

I would like to correct your reporter's account of my comments before the Mill Valley City Council on Nov. 18 in regards to the landscaping of Miller Avenue, which appeared in your columns on Nov. 19. My reference to acting "immorally and illegally" applies not to using a nursery business for landscape design services, but to the desire of one councilman to bypass the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee . . .

My comments about a plant nursery business being involved in major landscape design had to do with identifying the very strong potential for a conflict of interest occurring when the landscape designer, i.e., the specifier of plant materials, is also the supplier of those same plant materials. This is not in any way to say that nursery businesses cannot be highly skilled in the use and installation of plant materials.

Weinberger's Claim Of Waste Puts 'Cost-Cutter' Ford On Spot

(Reprinted from Porterville Recorder)

In private enterprise, when a department executive tells the head of the company that certain savings can be realized by eliminating this or that, he usually gets the attention of the boss.

If a department head tells the boss he could save the company three to four billion dollars, he will definitely get the man's attention.

But let us see what happens in the operation of a political government agency whose chief executive has stated his operation could be trimmed $3 billion to $4 billion.

CASPAR WEINBERGER, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in a television interview stated that if Congress would permit him to eliminate certain programs which he claims have outlived their usefulness, he could trim his departmental budget by that much.

The way it works in private enterprise, unnecessary expenditures are eliminated as quickly as possible. Top management listens to department heads, examines the consequences and then makes decisions. The goal in private enterprise is to produce the best product or provide the best service possible at the lowest possible cost.

But things don't work that way in government . . .

NOW COMES WEINBERGER with information that the HEW is wasting billions of dollars which are not needed. He specifically cited the program of funding the costs of hospital construction, which he claims is no longer necessary. He also mentions subsidies for school districts which need no subsidy.

But he says Congress will not let him eliminate those programs, and it is obvious that these are pet projects which congressmen want to keep on the books to please some constituents and big campaign donors. A lot of money goes into political campaigns from the construction industry, from school groups and from medical associations. It just isn't good politics to halt a gravy train feeding friends of politicians.

President Ford could have some influence in this area, and it will be interesting to see how he reacts to Weinberger's suggestion. Mr. Ford, we recall, has made a great effort to establish for himself the image of a cost-cutter. "The government is watching its pennies," he has claimed. "The time has come when we must say 'No' to spending programs," he has said.

"Vote for those candidates who have consistently stood against increasing the costs of government," he has urged.

It seems to us that Mr. Weinberger has thrown down a gauntlet for Mr. Ford and for the Congress.

The taxpayer must be asking himself if $3 billion or $4 billion can be trimmed from HEW expenditures, why isn't it done?

ART BUCHWALD

Stassen Book Could Recoup Rockefeller's Publishing Loss

WASHINGTON — "Governor Rockefeller, there's a man outside and he says he has a book he'd like you to publish."

"I can't see anyone right now."

"He's been here three days and says he won't leave."

"All right, send him in."

"MR. ROCKEFELLER, my name's Lasky, and I'd like to do a biography of Harold Stassen. I thought you might publish it."

"I'm not in publishing any more. I lost a bundle on the Arthur Goldberg book."

"But, Mr. Rockefeller, this is better than a Goldberg biography. Harold Stassen is one of the greatest men in the country. Everyone wants to read about him. You could sell a hundred thousand copies with your eyes closed."

"That's what they told me about the Goldberg book. They promised me that the Book-of-the-Month Club would take anything about a former justice of the Supreme Court. So I called up my brother, Laurance, and told him we were onto a good thing and asked him to go in on it with me. Now Laurance is sore as hell. He hates to lose money in a business deal."

"BUT, MR. ROCKEFELLER, you can't just quit publishing because you had one flop. My book could put your company in the black."

"I don't know. It's not easy for a Rockefeller to have an investment that goes sour. We thought we had a sure thing with Goldberg. After all, he was a labor lawyer, a Supreme Court justice, and an ambassador to the United Nations. You would have thought people would break down the bookstore doors to buy the book. We were even hoping to sell it to movies with Robert Redford playing Goldberg. But after the lousy sales, Redford didn't want to touch it. I don't know how we could have been so wrong as to what the reading public would go for."

"But my book has more excitement than Goldberg's. Harold Stassen is a legend in America. He was governor of Pennsylvania, president of a university, and a presidential candidate four times. Redford would give his eyeteeth to play him in a movie."

"WELL, I'LL ASK my brother ... Miss Jones, get me Laurance ... Laurance, Nelson here ... Listen, I have a fellow in my office that wants to write a book on Harold Stassen ... Don't hang up on me, Laurance! ...

"I know you lost your shirt on the Goldberg book, but this seems to have more potential ... Stassen has a lot more sex appeal than Goldberg ... Laurance, will you stop shouting at me? I know I told you you'd double your money with a book on Goldberg, but how did I know the timing was wrong? So he wasn't as big a personality as we thought? Does that mean we should stay out of the publishing business? ... Please, Laurance, this could be our big break. We could become rich. I heard Robert Redford wants to play him in a movie ... You will do it? Thanks a lot, Laurance ... Believe me, you won't be sorry ... Goodbye.

"Okay, Mr. Lasky, you can go ahead with the project. How much of an advance do you want?"

"Ten thousand dollars."

"ALL RIGHT, now this is what I want you to do. Go to a telephone booth on Third Avenue and 59th Street at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. A man will pick you up and take you to Grand Central Station and give you a key to a locker. In the locker you will find the name of a lawyer in Los Angeles. You're to fly out to L.A., and this lawyer will give you a check on a bank in St. Louis, Mo. You can fly to St. Louis and cash the check."

"Why can't you just give me a check now?"

"What? And have the public know the Rockefellers are back in the publishing business?"

Women Asking For Half Of Brown Appointments

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Women's organizations today called on Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. to appoint women to at least half of the positions in his administration.

Five representatives of various groups said more than half of the appointees should be women to reflect their proportion of the population and to counterbalance the many men appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to state commissions.

They also urged California women to apply for Brown administration jobs so the new governor could not sidestep his campaign promise for more women in government by saying he could find no qualified women applicants.

A Brown spokesman said, "The governor-elect is committed to increasing the number of women in government and top state positions. He will make an active effort to recruit qualified women."

But the spokesman said Brown had not adopted a 50 per cent goal for women representation, saying "quotas are too restrictive."

Anne Renner, speaking for the National Women's Political Caucus, said only 10 per cent of current state commissioners are women and they generally occupy less important positions.

While Brown was secretary of state, she added, "It did not seem that women were in high positions" in his office.

Jolly Old St. Nicholas Is Called 'Saint Of Gimme'

JOHN MAHONEY
Joy to the toymakers

CHICAGO (UPI) — That jolly old elf called Santa Claus really is the "saint of gimme" — a huckster who has taught greed, not love, to millions of children, a Catholic layman editor charged yesterday.

"Let's leave Santa at the North Pole," urged John Mahoney, assistant managing editor of U.S. Catholic.

"How often do you see a Santa who is not serving as an outright huckster?" Mahoney asked, writing in the montly magazine of the Claretian Fathers.

"Whereas the true lesson of Christmas is a message of divine mercy and sacrifice, Santa is the front man for greedy corporations and the tutor in greed for millions of American children. He is the saint of gimme."

A couple of generations ago, Mahoney wrote, "Santa was a relatively innocent impostor, but today he has become a total sellout to materialism and greed.

"He is in the pay of the big toy manufacturers and department stores."

Mahoney said one of "the great disillusionments of my life" was when, as a child, he finally was told there is no Santa Claus. He vowed then, he said, that no child of his would ever have to suffer such a blow.

"In the years that have followed I've discovered many more and many better reasons for puncturing this over-inflated figure," he said. "The most-powerful reason is that the very bulk and astounding munificence of this fabrication completely overshadow the tiny swaddled figure in the manager whose birth we celebrate at Christmas.

"Young children, whose unformulated motto in life is 'What's in it for me?" can scarcely overlook that, according to the information they have received, it is the jolly old elf rather than the Babe who delivers the tangible goods."

"A greedy child is never appeased. A spoiled child appreciates nothing. An overindulged child is convinced that the major figure of Christmas is not Christ, but himself."

A movement to "put Christ back into Christmas" failed, he said, "because we failed to take Santa Claus out of Christmas."

U.S. Catholic said a prepublication survey showed 57 per cent of readers checked disagreed with Mahoney that Santa teaches children to be greedy. Sixty per cent of those checked said Santa should be retained as a myth, and 80 per cent said they had not been harmed by believing in Santa.

"I feel Mr. Mahoney is cruel in denying his children the excitement, anticipation and joy of Santa Claus," wrote Mrs. Donald Green off Denver, Colo.

"My brothers and sisters and I believed in Santa Claus until we were 7 or 8 years of age. "Sure we were disappointed when we ultimately learned the truth; but isn't that what life's all about? Happiness punctuated with disappointment."

San Rafael, air quality yesterday: Oxidants, clean air. Nitrogen, clean air. Carbon monoxide, clean air. Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, significant air pollution. Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

San Francisco Bay Area: Showers tonight; decreasing clouds tomorrow; high tomorrow mid 50s to lower 60s; low tonight in the 40s and low 50s; gale warning with southerly winds 25 to 45 m.p.h. and high gusts shifting west to northwest late today, then decreasing to 15 to 30 m.p.h. tonight and tomorrow.

Sierra Nevada: Showers tonight and tomorrow; snow level lowering to 6,000 or 7,000 feet in the north tonight and tomorrow, but quite high in the south; increasing winds becoming strong and gusty through tomorrow.

Napa and Sonoma Valleys: Showers likely tonight; decreasing clouds with slight chance of a shower tomorrow; low tonight and high tomorrow at Santa Rosa 47 and 60; southerly winds becoming west to northwesterly and decreasing tonight and tomorrow.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

The Sooner Asthma Controlled The Fewer The Recurrences

Bronchial asthma, which often starts in childhood, is usually provoked by a stimulus, such as exercise, an allergen that is inhaled, a respiratory infection or an emotional disturbance. The cause must be found and eliminated because the sooner the condition is brought under control, the fewer the recurrences and the less chance of complications.

Many a physician has been called in the middle of the night to control a severe attack of wheezing. The scene is typical. His patient is sitting up with hunched shoulders, using every muscle in his chest wall in an effort to get air. Bronchial spasms cause him to breathe rapidly and cough intermittently. These symptoms are most troublesome during expiration and the wheezing can be heard throughout the house.

THESE CHILDREN are best treated in a hospital, even though this plan has many drawbacks. Not only is it costly, but the child often protests because he is afraid. Sky-high medical costs are involved when asthma is recurrent, prolonged or requires special respiratory equipment.

The wheezing often can be obviated with an injection of epinephrine, aminophylline or hydrocortisone.

Chile Signs Pact For Rail Coaches

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Chile has signed a contract with the Fiat-Concord firm of Argentina for purchase of 15 new railway coaches at a total price of $2 million.

The purchase is being made with part of a $100 million credit extended to Chile by the Argentine Central Bank.

'Godfather' Most Watched TV Show Of Last Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The first segment of "The Godfather," televised by NBC last Saturday night, was easily last week's most-watched television program, according to A.C. Nielsen ratings figures.

But the 1972 box office hit, seen in more than 25 million homes, according to Nielsen estimates made public this week, still didn't draw as many viewers as expected, NBC officials said.

It failed to exceed the ratings for ABC's Oct. 27 showing of "The Poseidon Adventure," the season's highest-rated theatrical movie on television. That broadcast was seen in an estimated 27 million homes.

NBC broadcast the second segment of "The Godfather" on Monday, but national Nielsen ratings on it won't be available until next week.

NBC paid a record $10 million for the right to show the movie once on TV, according to the film's maker, Paramount Pictures.

According to Nielsen ratings for the week of Nov. 11-17, the most-watched evening programs were:

"The Godfather," part one (NBC); "All in the Family" (CBS); "Stanford and Son" and "Chico and the Man" both (NBC); "M-A-S-H" and "The Waltons" both (CBS); "The World of Disney" (NBC); "Little House on the Prairie" and "Dean Martin Roast" (NBC); "Cannon" and "Rhoda" both (CBS); "Rockford Files" (NBC); "NFL Monday Night Football (ABC); "Maude" and "Kojak" both (CBS); "Emergency" (NBC); "The Rookies" (ABC) and "Gunsmoke" (CBS).

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

Unusual on television tonight:

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 8 p.m. — Before going "over the river and through the woods" to Charlie Brown's grandmother's condominium for a traditional turkey dinner, the Peanuts gang celebrates America's oldest holiday in a rather unorthodox fashion on "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving," Emmy Award-winning animated special.

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 9:30 p.m. — "The Ambassador," first in a mini-series of four 90-minute drama specials is based on the life of Benjamin Franklin, colonial America's most distinguished statesman. Eddie Albert stars as Franklin at the age of 71 when appointed by several of the colonies to represent American interests in France during the revolutionary war.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — "JFK — A Time to Remember," an affectionate and revealing recollection of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the boy, the man, and the President, will be aired as a "Wide World of Entertainment" special, on the eve of the anniversary of his assassination 11 years ago.

Papan Seeks Assembly Leader Job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Louis Papan, D-Daly City, a lieutenant of Speaker Leo McCarthy, yesterday declared his candidacy for a top leadership position in the Assembly.

He sent letters to all members of the Assembly announcing himself as a candidate to succeed Assemblyman Carlos Bee, D-Hayward, as speaker pro tem, who usually is the chief presiding officer of the assembly.

Bee said yesterday he will not seek re-election to the post he held for 13 of the past 16 years. He was appointed chairman of the obscure intergovernmental relations committee.

A McCarthy spokesman said the speaker "won't do anything on assuming a public position of support" for Papan until members of the assembly had been contacted by Papan.

Papan received wide attention last March when be and Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, got into an angry scrap and Meade was hospitalized for several days.

Meade was a strong supporter of Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, who opposed McCarthy for the speakership.

Sharp Drop In Sugar Price Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the Agriculture Department's sugar division said yesterday retail sugar prices eventually could decline to 20 cents per pound.

Arthur B. Calcagnini said currently record prices of about 60 cents a pound should be turned down eventually by a combination of reduced consumer demand and increases in production expected to begin next year here and abroad.

He stressed, however, that in discussing a possible price as low as 20 cents he was referring "to a long-term time frame that could extend well beyond mid-1975."

"We still face potential problems and high prices in the near future," Calcagnini added in comments he said were intended to clarify accounts of his remarks on sugar prices Tuesday at Atlantic City New Jersey.

"But ultimately the economics of supply and demand in the marketplace will work toward price levels considerably lower than at present."

Calcagnini said he was not predicting an eventual 20-cent price, but did regard it as a "realistic ultimate possible price level."

Profits Seen In Textiles

NEW YORK (AP) — Anticipated record sales and profits for 1974 will give a powerful boost to modernization of the U.S. textile industry, Textile World magazine reports.

Thus far in 1974, sales look as though they will eclipse last year's record and go to a high of $33.8 billion — helped by inflation & with profits rising above last year's record $827 million.

CBS Radio Plans To Air Studies Of U.S. Humor

BY JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past two months, Tenold R. Sunde has been toiling on 30 separate studies of American humor. And soon, he and the CBS Radio network will let listeners in on the gags.

Sunde is the producer of a project called "A Sense of American Humor," which CBS Radio will air the weekend after this in 30 segments, ranging in length from four to nine minutes. The series is hosted by Roger Mudd.

It starts off by asking Steve Allen, Phyllis Diller, Jonathan Winters, Bill Cosby, Jean Shepherd, Carol Burnett and Stan Freberg what they feel makes Americans laugh and how it helps us.

Subsequent segments go into various laughter branches — the humor of cartoonists, of newspapers, of vaudeville and vaudeville and burlesque, of radio, television and burlesque, of radio, television and Hollywood, of music, of ethnic and dialect jokes and so on.

There also are segments on great comediennes and comedians, on satire, on American political humor, and even silent humor, the last a possible first for radio.

Producer Sunde, who said he acted as sort of a surrogate for host Mudd in gathering interviews for the series (Mudd being tied up on the Washington newsbeat), said he got the assignment last summer.

He said he spent a month planning it. Then, after CBS approved what he proposed to do, he grabbed a tape recorder and spent most of September on the road, interviewing more than six humor experts.

They ranged from such well-known citizens as Sid Caesar and Woody Allen to the not-so-well-known Dr. Walter Blair, a University of Chicago scholar in the field of early American humor.

October was spent culling more material from books and articles and pulling recorded material from the CBS archives.

"Now, it's just a question of weeding this down," said Sunde, who was in the process of weeding and writing when interviewed.

Catholics Want Improved Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — With its own schools hard-pressed to survive, the Roman Catholic church has decided to put greater efforts into increasing the quality of public school education.

This task must be pursued "with greater priority than in the past," say new strategy guidelines of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The document outlines a drive to exert an "effective concern for all educational institutions serving American society," public schools as well as church schools.

It says Catholics in cooperation with all citizens have a responsibility to "provide enlightened, albeit critical support for public education" to improve its content and moral tone.

Elaborating later at a news conference yesterday, Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, newly-elected president of the bishops' conference, said the church has become increasingly concerned with public education "because the well-being of society depands on it."

He said that doesn't mean any shift away from sustaining church schools, but means stepping up work to improve public schools where he said teaching of moral values is gravely lacking.

"We must proceed on both fronts," he said. "That has been my philosophy for a long time. Certainly the fact that more than half the Catholic children go to public schools is a factor. But beyond that is our obligation to the well-being of the whole society."

The bishops yesterday also approved a resolution hailing progress in efforts for Christian unity and saying new world conditions make that cause even more urgent.

House Defers Action On Pair Of Potential Vote Challenges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Administration Committee took no action today on potential challenges of the seating of two men whose 1974 House victories are subject to allegations on irregularities.

By a 21-0 vote, the committee deferred any action and judgment in the case of Congressmen-elect George Hanson, an Idaho Republican who defeated incumbent Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, in the primary.

Hanson has been subject to allegations of illegal campaign contributions.

Committee chairman Rep. Wayne Hayes, D-Ohio, said any decision on a possible challenge of Hanson's seating was deferred pending the receipt of information from the Justice Department, which is currently investigating the charges.

He said Justice Department lawyers have "told us we will get that information within a week."

In the case of Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., who has been accused of alleged vote counting irregularities, the committee unanimously asked that the Virginia courts, "preserve the evidence," he said.

He explained this will allow the courts to hold on to the ballots cast in Wampler's race, "figuring that nobody can be hurt from that period." Virginia Democrats earlier had asked the courts to impound the ballots cast in Wampler's election.

Hayes said the seating of a Congressman from Wampler's district will depend on "who the state of Virginia certifies" and the result of any potential election challenge.

"The House leadership announced Thursday newly elected House members will be formally seated on January 3, 1975, unless their election is challenged by the House Administration Committee.

San Rafael Man Arrested

San Rafael police yesterday arrested a 21-year-old San Rafael man on suspicion of burglary following a report that a home on Eucalyptus Lane was being burglarized.

David Lee McMillin of 250 Smith Ranch Road was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police Capt. Henry W. Ingwersen said officers found McMillin talking on the telephone in the home of William F. O'Bayley, 11 Eucalyptus Lane, and said a front door had been kicked in.

MOONSHINER'S LAMENT

Inflation Doing What Revenue Men Couldn't

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH CAROLINA (AP) — "The moon ain't shing so bright these days," said the man called Sam. He laughed, and tried to hold his enormous belly in place.

Sam is a moonshiner by trade, and that's how he began his personal impressions of the nation's inflationary economy.

He is also out of work.

Truth is, the spiraling costs of production — the cost of sugar, largely — and what Sam calls "a dying market" are sending moonshine operations down the drain. "I'm ruined," Sam moaned. "I think this business today would break a banker."

He should know. For 30-odd years, this man has engaged in the moonshine trade. He has made mistakes, paid fines, served time in jail.

Some of his expensive stills have been found by agents and destroyed. He relocated them and started up again.

"But that was when there was money to be had," Sam said. "Like I told you, the market is almost gone and a man just can't afford to build a factory no more."

A couple of years back, a plant cost him about $70 to set up. "That same rig today would cost a man over $1,200," he said.

With that still, Sam made nearly 600 gallons of moonshine whisky twice a week. He sold it from the site at $4 a gallon.

Supplies for that much whisky cost more than $2,600 on today's wholesale market. But few moonshiners are able to come by wholesale prices, so the cost is well above that figure — and rising.

"A man would have to get more than $7 or $8 a gallon to make a decent profit," Sam said.

And buyers are vanishing.

Crews Clean Up Novato Oil Spill

Police said the spill was reported at 10:17 p.m. but the source was undetermined and there was no witness to it.

A Strange Ending To Strange Seas on

What a strange season for the 49ers. Quarterbacks are being shuffled around like the cards of a bridge game. When Steve Spurrier dislocated the shoulder on his throwing side who could have imagined the juggling act it would cause coach Dick Nolan to perform.

Joe Reed was the first to get the chance to take Spurrier's place and he showed his tonsils are more suited for singing than his arm is for passing footballs in the NFL. He has since been shipped off to Detroit for a trial as wide receiver.

Next to get a trial was left-hander Dennis Morrison. He also failed to move the club and like Reed, was off target on far too many passes. He was given back his seat on the bench.

There was still one rookie listed on the team roster, a young man out of University of Wichita, Willis Thomas Owen. When Morrison and Reed couldn't get anything started against the Rams last month in Los Angeles, there was nobody to hand the ball to but Owen.

"Get in there kid, and do a job," Nolan said, or words to that effect.

Well, Tom (his friends don't call him Willis) went in there and did a job. He woke up the slumbering offense and the 49ers started scoring touchdowns, a season rarity.

JUST ABOUT the time Owen was discovered, the 49ers picked up Norman Snead, a guy who has been passing footballs around the league for 14 years, in a trade with the New York Giants. He was going to be the old pro to take over the quarterback job until Spurrier could get back on his feet.

Snead was given the starting job against the Dallas Cowboys a couple of weeks ago but when he banged up an already banged up knee Owen was again given the ball and Nolan said, "Get in there kid, and do a job."

Owen was impressive against the Cowboys but the team still lost, 20-14. His brightest moment was to come the following week when he led a 34-0 mauling of the Chicago Bears. He completed 15 of 26 passes for 316 yards and two touchdowns.

GOING INTO Sunday's game against the Atlanta Falcons at Candlestick, the 49ers found themselves with too many quarterbacks. Spurrier's injury has healed and Snead's knee is not causing any limps, so they are both ready to play. The No. 4 quarterback on the roster, Morrison, already had his chance and failed so he was the expendable one. He was put on waivers along with running back Doug Cunningham and defensive back Alvin Randolph. (For details on cuts, see 49er story on page 43.)

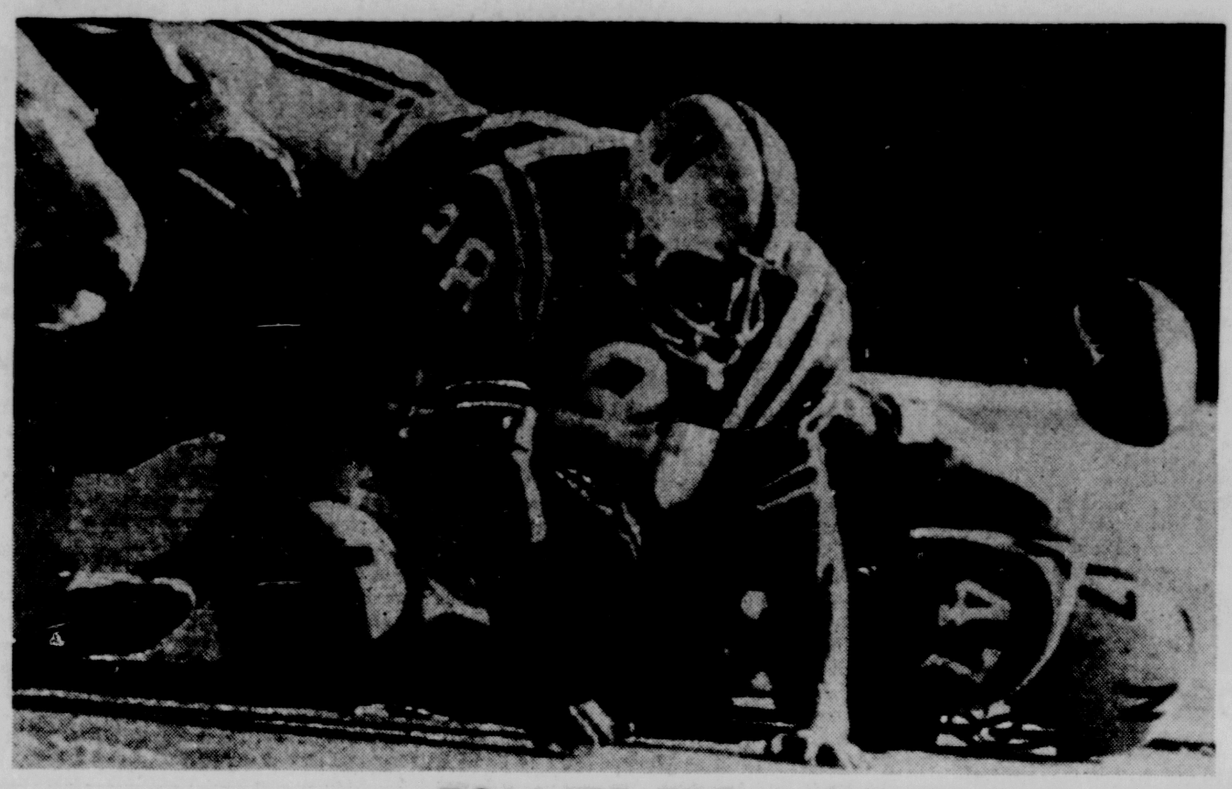
Although both Spurrier and Snead are healthy, Nolan found it impossible not to give Owen the starting position for Sunday's game, off his showing against the Bears.

The quarterback situation has been just one of Nolan's headaches this year. There were the injuries to the defensive backs and to the guards. There have been mid-year tryouts by free agents. Yes, it has been a strange year.

But the really strange thing would be for the 49ers to finish the season with a 7-7 record, a season in which they set a team record of seven straight losses. Because of the way the schedule falls, this is not an impossibility.

THE 49ERS (3-7) have already played the teams headed for the playoffs. They played tough against Oakland, Los Angeles and Dallas. In front of them are Atlanta, Cleveland, Green Bay and New Orleans. Of that group, Green Bay at 5-5 is the only team with any remote hope of reaching the playoffs. The 49ers have already played against the class teams of the league.

A 7-7 season? It would be the capper to a very strange year.



FOLLIES FROM FUMBLING FOOTBALLS

Stoneham Considering Moving Giants

ij Sports

Thursday, November 21, 1974 Independent-Journal, 41

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Horace Stoneham has his financial house all straightened out, so much so that he and his Giants can live in San Francisco at least a couple of more years on their own and there will be no need for fellow National League owners to pass the hat around.

While the NL insists it will never give up its territorial rights in the Bay Area to the American League even if it has to subsidize the Giants, Stoneham, a proud man who would never accept charity, insists he will vacate for greener pastures if he can't make it on his own.

"I'm going to give it one more year and then I'll have to start considering a move," Stoneham said yesterday on a hurried visit home from Arizona. "I've had four offers from eastern cities to move and some of the minority stockholders in the club have indicated they'd go along with a move if that's what I want.

"Moving the Giants is not in my plans. I'm confident we'll get over this rough spot and be around San Francisco for many, many years. Still, when you have received the kind of support we did in 1974 you have to start thinking of alternatives."

The Giants fell out of the running in the NL West by early June this past season and wound up with a total attendance of barely over 500,000. It was the lowest in the majors during a year in which baseball enjoyed a banner season.

With a reduced player payroll and one of the better radio-tv contracts in the majors, Stoneham didn't take much of a red ink bath in 1974 but it was a losing year all the way around, nevertheless.

Most of the money from the early San Francisco glory years of the 1960s is gone but Stoneham picked up around $5 million recently from a land development venture at Casa Grande, Ariz. That's expected to keep the club afloat in San Francisco for at least two years.

"During that time we expect to improve on the field and have a pennant winner," Stoneham said. "There is nothing like a winner to bring out the fans. This is my goal and one I will do everything humanly possible to achieve. I firmly believe winning and attendance go hand in hand, especially in an area such as San Francisco where people have so many things to pick from."

If things don't turn out the way Stoneham has envisioned, then he will consider some of the offers he has been getting lately. The only thing that really bothers him about giving up in San Francisco is leaving the area to Charlie Finley and his Oakland A's.

Stoneham said flatly he can't see how two teams can live in the area and make money. One or the other is bound to suffer financially. Since Stoneham and the Giants were here first, he feels Finley should move. "Right now our concern is with the Giants," Stoneham said. "I think if we give the fans a good team to watch they will support us. As for Charlie and his club, what can I say. I'm not interested in moving but he sounds

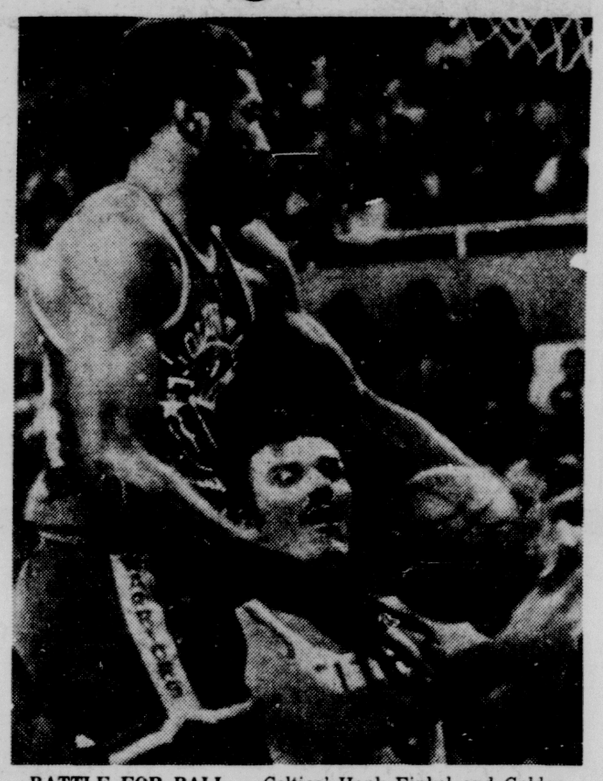
Young Warriors Have 'Come Long Way'



BATTLE FOR BALL — Celtics' Hank Finkel and Golden State Warriors' Clifford Ray fought for the ball during second quarter of National Basketball Association play last night in Boston. (UPI Telephoto)

Defense Sparkles In NBA

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Defense is supposed to mark the Boston Celtics' brand of basketball but Golden State Coach Al Attles said his Warriors also can play that kind of game.

The Warriors jumped to a 12-4 lead and never let the Celtics in front last night to defeat Boston, playing again without injured Dave Cowens, 120-115.

"We played defense the whole game and this is the way this team has played all year," Attles said. "When we started the season, we just wanted to be competitive but we've won more than we've lost and we've come a long way for a young team."

"Let's give Golden State the credit," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said. "They played a hell of a ball game. It's very tough trying to work on a guy like Barry. He's a hell of a ballplayer and can hurt you in a lot of ways."

The Celtics tied the score several times but were unable to pull ahead.

Golden State opened a 101-87 bulge, their biggest of the night, early in the final period. But the Celtics rallied and outscored Golden State 16-2 over a four-minute stretch to tie the score at 103. Then Keith Wilkes broke a 107 tie with a pair of free throws with two minutes to play and added a basket seconds later to stifle the Celtics.

But the Warriors took their usual last-gasp victory to run their record to 12-5 and hold a 2½-game Pacific Division lead on Seattle, which also prevailed last night.

John Havlicek was high scorer for Boston with 23 points.

"If you can win games like this one, it's a big help to a team this young," Attles said. "You have to give the guys credit for playing a good defense after the Boston team had tied the score in the last period. I've always said if you can play good defense in the fourth quarter you've got a chance to win any game. We almost lost it during Boston's hot streak when we took some bad shots, but we settled down after that."

Suns 114, Pistons 106

Knicks 105, 76ers 95

Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe combined for 57 points as New York rolled to its fourth straight victory. Frazier scored 30 points and Monroe added 27 as the Knicks opened up a 21-point lead in the final period and coasted home.

Braves 115, Bullets 104

SuperSonics 99, Jazz 95

Spencer Haywood, Archie Clark and Jimmy Fox each had 18 points to lead Seattle to a come-from-behind win. Butch van Breda Kolff, in his first game as coach of the Jazz, saw the New Orleans clicking with a 79-66 lead after three quarters.

TOP OF THE BAY BOWL TOMORROW

Novato Pins Hopes On Moroski's Passing

The Novato Hornets, armed with an all-league passing attack, will put the honor of the Marin County Athletic League on the line tomorrow night against Hogan in the third annual Top of the Bay Bowl.

The football game, between the champions of the MCAL and the North Bay League, will be played at Corbus Field in Vallejo. Kickoff is at 8 o'clock.

The Spartans may or may not be the best team to face Novato this season, but they're certainly one of the biggest. Novato offensive coach Marlin Olsen is confident, however, that his team can block effectively and protect quarterback Mike Moroski.

"They're very big, and they use two or three different types of defenses," says Olsen. "The problem for the blockers will be to pick up the stunts and everything. But they've done it all year, and I don't see any reason why they won't do it this game."

Moroski completed 56 percent of his passes this year in leading the Hornets to a 5-0-1 record in the MCAL. He did most of his throwing to wide receiver Steve Hoog, who caught 29 passes, and tight end Mike Leach, who caught 11. All three were first team all-MCAL picks, Hoog also making it as a defensive back.

Defensive tackle Fred Conte and middle linebacker Rick Holshevnikoff also made the first team for Novato, and offensive guard Rob Douglass, running back Mark Reagan and defensive back Jeff Mertel received honorable mention.

Hogan has eight players who made first team, all-NBL, and among them are three who come in at over 200 pounds. Middle linebacker-fullback Bill Nunes, the heart of the team, is 215, offensive tackle Dale Phillips is also 215, and offensive guard Rex Pettigrew is 205.

Other Spartan all-leagers are running back Joe Smith, running back-linebacker Steve Azevedo, guard Rex Pettigrew, tackle Theodes Collier and place kicker Derwin Boyd.

Smith, who led the league in scoring, and Azevedo, who gained 224 yards in his last two games, combine with Nunes to give Hogan a rushing attack that is its principal weapon.

The Spartans have a pair of quarterbacks, senior Ken Staggs and sophomore Armand Chiono. The latter called signals most of the year, but Staggs came back to throw a pair of touchdown bombs in a 41-7 win over Santa Rosa last week.

Moroski also had a pair of TD tosses in his last game, but Terra Linda shut him off in the second half and came back to tie at 18-18.

"We didn't play that bad in the second half, except for those turnovers," says Olsen. "You can't turn the ball over five times and win."

Terra Linda was able to put pressure on Moroski, and Hogan, with the best defense in the NBL, could do the same. But first-year coach Mike Koontz admits that Moroski is "one of the best in the Bay Area," and he says, "any time you get an outstanding passer and outstanding receivers, they're going to raise hell with everybody."

One thing that could give Hogan a real advantage is a muddy field. "It'll certainly be in their favor if it rains," says Novato head coach Al Scott. "They're quite a bit bigger than we are."

ABOUT 65,000 FOR BIG GAME

BERKELEY (UPI) — About 65,000 persons are expected to turn out Saturday for the 77th Big Game between Stanford and California.

With California having a chance for its best season in 23 years, the campus supply of tickets for Saturday's game is already gone.

"That big crowd," said running back Howard Strickland, "will just be great for us. We've played before big crowds this year, but this time they'll be rooting for us."

Reminded that a huge group of Stanford fans also would attend, Strickland said they won't have a good time.

Meanwhile, Strickland's running mate, junior Chuck Muncie, denied reports he would quit after this season to turn pro with the Canadian Football League.

Don't Bet Against Bruins This Year

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Now that Bill Walton is gone, they are getting ready to bury John Wooden and UCLA, but don't bet against the Bruins, even if the Pacific 8 Conference basketball race this winter turns into a free-for-all.

All around the Pac-8 you hear how this team and that has improved, that this is the year everyone has been waiting for, especially Bob Boyd and his perennial bridesmaid University of Southern Cal team, but the simple fact is this:

UCLA may have gone back a peg with the departure of Walton but everyone else, including the cross-town Trojans, is still far behind.

Remember, they were getting ready to dethrone UCLA when Lew Alcindor departed. So all Wooden did was bring Walton into the picture and the Bruins rolled merrily along.

Ralph Drollinger is not Bill Walton, but then who is? Still, he'll be in the pivot when UCLA opens the new season, and the supporting cast will be in about the same class—better than most but not spectacular.

Walton isn't the only man missing from last year's champions. The other key graduate is Keith Wilkes, who seems to have made the pro transition better than Walton and in many people's mind was a bigger contributor than the big redhead.

Dave Myers and Richard Washington will be the Bruin forwards with Andre McCarter and Pete Trgovich at guard. Marques Johnson, recovering from hepatitis, could be the key to the Bruins' success. He is ticketed for one of the forward jobs with Washington shifting to his more natural position, center, as backup to Drollinger.

Wooden admits it's not one of his best teams going in, but he feels it can develop.

"There seemed to be some uncertainty about our club in Walton's first year," Wooden said, "and if you'll recall at the time I said I thought it could develop into a strong group. I have that same feeling to a degree about this year's team."

In the minds of most observers, Stanford, tall and deep at most positions, USC, of course, and Washington, look like the strongest contenders but Washington State, Oregon State, Oregon and California aren't far behind.

"There are eight good teams going in," says Cal Coach Dick Edwards. "UCLA should be the favorite but there aren't any bad teams in the Pac 8."

Six returning lettermen, including 7-0 center Rich Kelley, make Stanford a strong contender, while USC has 10 returning lettermen, including Gus Williams, who needs a little more consistency to rank as a possible All-America.

The Huskies will be a factor if the race is wide open. In 6-11 James Edwards, 6-10 Lare Hansen and 6-10 transfer Larry Jackson, Washington has as much height as anyone.

Dick Harter and his Oregon Ducks will stick with their cutand-slash defense which has infuriated rivals and delighted the locals. Guard Ron Lee, whom Harter thinks is the second best in the country behind All-America David Thompson of North Carolina State, is the key Duck.

Oregon State is a puzzle and will remain one until Ralph Miller figures out who plays where, although the team has quickness no matter how it lines up. Six returning lettermen are the team's depth.

George Raveling is remaking Washington State with transfers and freshmen, but can always fall back on lettermen, including 6-11 soph Steve Puiodkas, while California is taking the same path with three transfers joining guard Rickie Hawthorne and forward Doug Vilotti in the lineup.

In the West Coast Athletic Conference most think Nevada-Las Vegas, now that Jerry Tarkanian has had a year to get his feet wet, will win the conference title, but no one should overlook Seattle and All-America candidate Frank Oleynick.

Tarkanian is banking on five sophs, all of whom had playing time in a 20-6 season a year ago, plus a couple of freshmen he recruited himself.

In the Pacific Coast Athletic Association there are no favorites, so San Diego State is as good a pick going in as any, although the Aztecs were 7-19 a year ago. Steve Copp, a 6-7 forward, who missed half of last season, and 6-8 soph Will Connelly are the key players for Coach Dick Davis.

Long Beach State lost its coach and all its stars from a 24-2 team: 6-8 center-forward Chad Meyer makes Pacific a contender; San Jose State has a veteran team but no clear-cut leader; Fresno State needs to find a scoring leader to replace Charles Bailey, and Fullerton State is making its league debut and needs time to adjust.

Women's Tennis Group May Boycott Tourneys

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — The Women's Tennis Association, threatening to quit Wimbledon and Forest Hills in an equal pay dispute, will play six indoor tournaments Feb. 15-April 5 for $525,000 in total prizes.

"It will let the public know about women tennis players," said Billie Jean King, the WTA president, when the Columbia Broadcasting System announced yesterday that it will televise the tour events.

"The women's game has become just as popular with viewers as men's tennis," said Robert Wussler, vice president of CBS Television Network Sports. He cited the long rallies that mark women's play.

The series ends with the $150,000 WTA Championship in Los Angeles, featuring the world's top 16 women. Tournaments worth $75,000 each will be held in Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Houston and Philadelphia.

WTA Executive Director Jerry Diamond said the 96-member group would boycott Wimbledon — and Forest Hills, if necessary — unless both men and women were allowed to compete for the same prize money.

MARV HUBBARD

Raiders' Fullback Has Made Believers Out Of His Critics

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Raiders fullback Marv Hubbard has made believers out of a lot of people since he was cut from two National Football League teams in his rookie year.

The 6-foot-1, 235 pounder is most often called on by the Raiders to get tough yardage up the middle. And he usually succeeds, dragging a number of tacklers with him. But back in 1968, the Raiders had little use for their 11th-round draft choice from Colgate.

"I wasn't surprised that the Raiders cut me in 1968, they had a lot of good backs at the time," recalled Hubbard. "I was picked up by Denver and lasted only three weeks.

"I thought I had it made with the Broncos after runs of 40, 28 and six yards for TDs in a big scrimmage. But one of the linebackers clobbered me in a dummy scrimmage and I told him off. The line coach got into it and they cut me, apparently for my attitude."

Hubbard spent 1968 in the Atlantic Coast Minor League where he won the rushing title with 899 yards. He tried out with the Raiders again in 1969 and made the club. He has been a regular for four years now and has played in three Pro Bowls.

Hubbard's best year was 1972 when he gained 1,100 yards. He hasn't played as much this year because of a sore back, but still leads the club and ranks seventh in the league with 711 yards in 150 carries.

His career average is 4.9 yards per carry, compared to 4.7 yards for Miami's Larry Csonka, a popular all-pro selection. And despite a butterfingers reputation, Hubbard caught 59 passes in the three previous seasons to Csonka's 25.

The "bad hands" reputation is because of my first rookie scrimmage against Dallas under the lights in the Coliseum," said Hubbard. "Four passes were thrown to me and I didn't touch any of them. But they were all catchable if I hadn't been bothered by the lights.

"One sportswriter wrote that I had bad hands and that's been passed along over the years. It just isn't true. I usually catch more passes than any of the other backs."

No Waltz When Playing Paultz

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Julius Erving usually gets all the attention around the New York Nets, and deservedly so, but Billy Paultz, one of the most underrated players in basketball, keeps coming up with the steady effort that helps wins ballgames.

Paultz expected to play against Marvin Barnes, rookie center of the Spirits of St. Louis, last night but Barnes, apparently upset about his contract, abandoned the team just before the game.

Paultz took advantage of the situation to score 28 points, grab 12 rebounds and throw four assists and lead the Nets to a 109-104 come-from-behind victory. Erving added 27 for New York, which trailed St. Louis by six points, 99-93, with 4:40 left in the game.

The Spirits played inspired basketball without Barnes and, after trailing by as many 16 points early in the game, moved ahead with aggressive defense and fine ball-handling by Fred Lewis and Steve Jones.

But in the final four minutes, Paultz took over. He banked a jump shot to cut the deficit to 99-95, hit two free throws 50 seconds later after St. Louis failed to score and, following a three-point play by Erving that gave New York the lead again, hit the last two baskets of the game to ice the victory.

In other American Basketball Association action, Denver beat Indiana 117-106, San Antonio downed Memphis 102-96 and San Diego routed Virginia 142-111.

Nuggets 117 Pacers 106

Spurs 102 Sounds 96

James Silas had 25 points and Swen Nater had 22 and 22 rebounds to lead San Antonio.

Q's 142 Squires 111

Second-year guard Dwight Lamar scored 29 points and had 15 assists — one short of a club record — to lead San Diego.

FOR SEALS

String Is On Line Tonight

BOSTON (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, with 18 road losses in a row over a two-season span, figure to make it 19 tonight against the tough Bruins.

Boston has not performed up to pre-season predictions with an 8-5-5 record, but still won 5-0 the last time the Division 4 rivals clashed here.

Added to the Seals' woes is the absence of defenseman Mike Christie, who suffered possible torn ligaments in his right knee two nights ago in a 6-4 loss at Washington. He returned to Oakland yesterday for a checkup with doctors.

However, veteran Jim Neilson, who did not suit up for the game with the Capitals because of a twisted knee incurred Sunday in New York, will return on defense tonight.

To fill in for Christie, the Seals yesterday recalled first year pro Tom Price from Salt Lake City. Price, 20, was a fourth-round pick in last summer's amateur draft and played well in practice camp.

Meanwhile, reports persisted that Marshall Johnston's job as head coach was in jeopardy. Team officials said his status would be discussed when the team returns home following its National Hockey League game against Minnesota on Saturday.

MAJOR ROSTER SHAKEUP

49ers Waive Morrison, Cunningham, Randolph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers have cut two veterans and a rookie quarterback who started two games this season.

In a major shakeup yesterday, the 49ers waived eight-year running back Doug Cunningham, who was immediately claimed by Washington, and safety Alvin Randolph, signed out of retirement earlier this season when injuries decimated the secondary.

They also gave southpaw Dennis Morrison his walking papers.

Morrison, 13th draft pick two seasons ago out of Kansas State, spent last year on the taxi squad but started against Detroit and Los Angeles. He became expendable with the emergence of Tom Owen, the acquisition of Norm Snead from the New York Giants and the recovery of Steve Spurrier from shoulder surgery.

"We had four quarterbacks and we only needed three," Coach Dick Nolan said. "Steve is well now and could see some action behind Owen against Atlanta Sunday."

Cunningham, sixth round choice out of Mississippi in 1967, gained 1,498 yards rushing and 1,145 more as a receiver during a National Football League career hampered by injuries. He injured his back in pre-season play and was recuperating. But Washington is also having injury problems with its running backs and could use Cunningham as a back-up if and when it lands in the playoffs.

His release leaves the 49ers with veteran Larry Schreiber and five rookie running backs.

"Goober (Cunningham) put in some fine years for us, but he had the back injury and with five good young backs it would have been awfully difficult for him," said Nolan.

MICHIGAN-OHIO STATE

2 Coaches Agree: Game Is 'Tossup'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bo Schembechler of Michigan and Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State have finally agreed on something. Saturday's showdown between the two Rose bowl hopefuls is a "tossup."

Hayes, says he is "delighted" that his Buckeyes are rated an eight-point favorite by Las Vegas oddsmakers.

Sitting in his office after a two-hour practice yesterday Hayes said the points don't mean anything.

"...You and I both know that it's going to be a tossup out there."

Schembechler concurred.

"There's no such thing as an underdog in this game," he said after his No. 2-ranked Wolverines went through practice.

Schembechler says the Ohio State offense is "better than they were a year ago" when the two powers played to a 10-10 tie and the Buckeyes got the Rose Bowl nod.

But Schembechler gave the okay to his star quarterback Dennis Franklin for the contest this weekend. Franklin is expected to be decently healthy after re-injuring an ankle in last week's win over Purdue.

Hayes says his No. 3-ranked Buckeyes are also in shape for the game. Hayes says the tension will be there again this year.

"And both teams will be tight in the first quarter again this year. The alternative would be worse, to be loose would be worse," Hayes said.

Tongue-Lashing Is No Help For Leafs

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Even a tongue-lashing from their owner failed to awaken the Toronto Maple Leafs and Coach Red Kelly's job could be in the balance any day now.

Harold Ballard, Leafs' president, blasted Kelly and his players prior to last night's game with the Pittsburgh Penguins, saying they'd "put on a stinking exhibition" so far this year and that Kelly is "too nice a guy."

The Leafs promptly responded by losing 8-5 to Pittsburgh last night despite a three-goal hat trick by captain Dave Keon, one of Ballard's main targets of criticism.

Syl Apps, Denis Owchar and Pierre Larouche all scored two goals apiece for Pittsburgh as the Leafs dropped to 5-9-3 for the season. Keon, blasted by Ballard for "lacking leadership", scored a pair of goals early in the game and then added a penalty shot goal with five seconds left. Adding further insult to injury for Ballard, ex-Leaf Rick Kehoe scored what proved to be the game-winner at 16:53 of the second frame.

Kings 3, Canadiens 3

Guy Lafleur's second goal of the game with 10:36 remaining earned Montreal a tie with Los Angeles in their battle for first place in Division III.

Rangers 5, Red Wings 4

Sabres 7, Capitals 3

Islanders 4, Black Hawsk 4

Flames 1, Scouts 0

Nordiques 4, Oilers 2

Cougars 6, Racers 4

THE SKI SCENE

You Can Get Money's Worth

By CHARLIE COANE

I don't think many people will argue that skiing is one of the more inexpensive sports around, but if you look at the sport from certain points of view it may be a downright bargain. Well, not quite.

First, let's not include into our financial thinking the cost of equipment, transportation and housing — which just about brings us to the cost of a lift ticket: it's $7 to $10 at most California resorts. When you compare that cost with other forms of entertainment — especially on a cost-per-hour basis — it fares pretty well. A pro football game (such as one involving the "explosive" 49ers) will set you back $8.50 for about 2½ hours of entertainment; a movie is about $3 for 1½ hours; golf green fees vary to astronomical sums; private tennis court rates are also pretty steep, too. Suddenly, a $10 tab for eight hours of skiing doesn't seem too bad. And it's a wonder the rates aren't higher.

Ski areas like everything else have experienced sky-rocketing costs. Building and equipment maintenance, personnel, insurance, fuel for lift operation and heat, new equipment and updating old, and on and on. And there are few businesses that depend so much upon the weather. If it doesn't snow enough — every ski resort has a big problem. And even the threat of unionization is a reality.

All of these things are nice to know, but they won't help you save any money. If you're determined to ski there are several things you can do to cut a few costs. Get some advice and shop around for your equipment. Used skis and boots are fine, especially for beginners. Real bargains are available at swaps and shops prior to ski season. A group cabin or condominium can save lots of housing costs — if you plan to ski a lot. A place like that can enable you to eat meals in instead of out and that saves money, too. Car pools or a bus beats going it alone.

Lift ticket costs? If you're going to ski all the time, buy a season pass. Some resorts cost more than others. If you're not going to use all the lifts and slopes offered by a $10 lift ticket resort, then try an area with a $7 or $8 ticket. Midweek rates are generally less than weekends and holidays. Many areas offer "combination rates" including accommodations and meals. These can be pretty good bargains.

If you're a real red hot, be there when the lifts open and stop when they close. You can even eat lunch on a chairlift. You'll sure get your money's worth that way, but you'll have to be in shape. Many areas offer half-day skiing mornings and afternoons. So if you don't want to ski all day, you don't have to pay for it.

as if he wants to leave. If that's his desire, I say good luck. I think I can outwait him if it comes to that."

Finley and the A's have 13 years left on a 20-year lease with the Oakland Coliseum while Stoneham and the Giants have 22 years left on their orriginal 35-year contract with the City of San Francisco.

Stoneham said he feels both contracts can be broken if the rental fee for the life of the contracts is paid.

"Every offer I've had so far to move," said the 72-year-old Giants owner, "includes the indemnification and my rental agreement is $125,000 minimum yearly."

One of the areas covertly pursuing the Giants is New Jersey where a huge sports complex is going up in the meadow lands across the Hudson River from Manhattan. The commission already has the New York football Giants and is intent on gaining a baseball tenant as well.

One report has the Minnesota Twins moving to Seattle, Wash., which has been promised a team by 1976, and the Giants going to the Twin Cities, where they once operated successful minor league teams.

Troubled WFL Playoffs Tonight

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The debt-riddled World Football League, vowing that team members will get some of the gate receipts to make up for back pay, begins its three-part playoffs tonight amid lingering bitterness.

The Philadelphia Bell, 9-11, faces the Florida Blazers, 14-6, at Orlando, Fla., in a nationally televised game. And the Hawaiians, 9-11, play the Southern California Sun, 13-7, at Anaheim.

"We have tremendous dissension on the team," said quarterback Bob Davis about Florida, winner of the WFL's Eastern Division title. "All this was caused originally by the money problems."

The WFL and the players union jointly announced yesterday that 70 per cent of the gate receipts from each of the first two playoff games will be divided equally by the participating athletes.

The Blazers, who have not been paid for 12 weeks, and the Sun team members, who have not received last week's pay checks, decided that they would join the scramble to reach the Dec. 5 World Bowl contest.

In the WFL semi-finals next week, the Florida-Philadelphia winner plays the Southmen, 17-3, in Memphis and the Southern California-Hawaiians winner meets the Americans, 15-5, in Birmingham.

"This business about the playoffs broke our concentration," said Jack Pardee, the Florida coach. "I just hope we can get it back."

It was a reference to the WFL playoff schedule — completed after a confusing flurry of internal bickering and false announcements — that pitted Florida against the Bell, a team with a losing record.

"Now it's coming down to the pride factor," said Davis. "I was ready to hang it up when I heard we were playing Philadelphia."

The Blazer offense is led by Tommy Reamon, the top WFL rusher with 1,576 yards and 11 touchdowns. Florida's defense tops the league with averages of just 248 total yards allowed per game and just 14 points.

The key to Philadelphia's attack is King Corcoran, who has passed for 31 touchdowns and nearly 3,000 yards. But Corcoran, who has hit on 280 of 545 passes, has thrown a league high of 24 interceptions.

Southern California, meanwhile, is worried about several injured players including quarterback Tony Adams and receiver Dave Williams. But only runner James McAlister is definitely going to miss the game.

"The Hawaiians think they are the best team in the SFL right now and they could well be," said Tom Fears, coach of Southern California, the Western Division champion.

Coach Mike Giddings of the Hawaiians said he will depend on quarterback Randy Johnson and his offense to control the game.

"If we turn the ball over to their offense, they will score a lot of points," said Giddings about Southern California.

Mt. Tam Lands Seven Players On Stars Team

Mount Tamalpais School, which rolled undefeated to the Bay Counties League soccer title, had seven players named to the all-league team Tuesday night.

Senior halfback Eric Chilton, senior forward Niel King and junior forwards Ned Pinger and George Ai were honored for the second straight year. Senior halfback Bruce Stephens, sophomore halfback Thad King and goalie Jim Tufts, a junior, also were named from Mt. Tam.

Final Standings — Mount Tamalpais, 8-0; Lick Wilmerding (San Francisco), 6-2; Marin Academy, 3-5; College Prep (Oakland), 3-5; Athenian (Danville), 0-8.

It Will Cost 25 Cents More To See Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers, citing "rising costs of operations," announced yesterday ticket prices would increase 25 cents across the board next year.

It was the second 25-cent ticket price boost in as many years.

Ticket Manager Dick Hackett said the club's goal was to sell 3,500 season tickets for the 1975 season, about 1,000 more than were sold for 1974.

Brewer President Allan (Bud) Selig was optimistic.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

The Choke Stroke

By LEE TREVINO

Frank Beard has three shots he can depend on when the heat's on — a little draw, a low squibbler down the fairway, and a high soft approach. That's a great assortment of pressure shots.

Sometimes you're in situations where you have to hit a shot you can count on. It's got to be as sure as a Texas Ranger.

When collars get tight, and one swing means the difference in winning all the cheese or just getting caught in the trap, it's safer to hit the ball harder than you normally would.

Gary Player agrees with me that the most dangerous shot under pressure is a let-up, or finesse. Those babies take nerves that you can't buy in Macy's basement, amigo.

Hit a good, full shot in tense situations. If you're playing for the Sioux Falls Sand Greens Championship and it's riding on a punch 8-iron to the last hole, hit a 9-iron — hard!

Swing close to 100 per cent full when the pressure's on. Hit the shot you have confidence in. If I were firing to the last hole with the National Open riding on it, I'd hit a hard cut shot. And hope the next two putts would be easy.

Cyclo-Cross Not For Faint-Hearted

Cyclo-cross, the bicycling equivalent of the steeplechase, will be presented Dec. 1 in Mill Valley as part of the West Coast Open Cyclo-Cross Championships.

The cyclo-cross, a combination of bicycle riding, cross country running and mud slinging, will be accompanied by a bicycle moto-cross for younger riders. Cyclo-cross starts at 10 a.m., moto-cross at 11:30. Racing will be held regardless of the weather.

In the main event, competitors pedal around a cross country course which includes hills, tricky descents and mud. The terrain is such that, at times, the riders will be forced to dismount and run with their bikes.

The distance will be 10 miles over a half-mile circuit. Bicyclists will battle for more than one hour for top honors. Dan Nall is a previous cyclo-cross winner expected to race.

The Cyclo-Cross Championships are promoted by Marc Horwitz of Mill Valley and Velo-Club Tamalpais. The racing is sanctioned by the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Admission is free.

To get to the races from Highway 101, persons should take Seminary Drive exit and turn right past Sabella's Restaurant to the Shelter Bay condominiums. Follow the signs from there.

Denver Fighter Is Winner By Decision

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — With the aid of an eighth-round knockdown, Ike Shipman of Denver scored a unanimous 10-round decision over David Arellano of San Diego last night.

Shipman, 145, used a straight left to the head to drop his opponent in the eighth. Arellano weighed 145. Shipman improved his record to 9-0, while Arellano is now 30-9.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Get Legal View On Joint Assets

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. When two individuals own assets jointly, does it matter whether the names of the co-owners are joined by the word "and" or the word "or"? — J.F.

A. In general, there is no difference in substance or interpretation whether the names of co-owners' jointly owned assets are linked by the conjunction "and" or the conjunction "or", provided that the linked names are followed by a clarifying phrase such as "as joint owners" or "as joint owners with right of survivorship". With these qualifying words, the jointly owned property will pass to the surviving co-owner outside of will and trust arrangements insofar as title is concerned. However, tax treatment is usually dependent upon the percentage of each co-owner's contribution to the acquisition cost of the property and/or asset involved.

Since the advantages and disadvantages of joint ownership vary with the nature of the property involved, the state of domicile, etc., and there are exceptions to the very general treatment outlined above, I strongly urge you to consult your own attorney on this matter.

I own 2000 shares of T. Rowe Price Growth Fund and 2500 of Putnam Growth. I have held them 10 years so have capital gains on them. Should I merely keep holding or should I cash them in? Also, I have 11 shares of Empire Life Insurance. Where is the price quoted — I never see it listed? — R.B.

A. Both funds enjoy excellent reputations for conservative management, high-quality portfolios and growth records well above average over the last decade. There is no denying the slide in net asset value since January, 1973, but a glance at any of the market averages would clearly indicate why these funds have suffered. Both funds have participated amply in the recent upsurge in the stock market, with net asset values up 21 per cent in each instance. Unless you are pressed for additional income, I would not disturb either position.

Your life insurance holding is a Canadian company listed on the Ontario and Toronto exchanges and quoted in the Canadian press. Recently, the shares traded in the 7-8 range.

FRIENDLY INDIANS

Pilgrims and Indians invaded the Security Pacific National Bank office at 1242 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael this week, but it turned out to be an "inside job." Bank employees donned feathers, moccasins and paint as part of a statewide Thanksgiving celebration by Security Pacific. Customer Jay Makin (left) of San Rafael was startled at first but relaxed when he found Indian Maidens Sharon Rogers and Mary Hericourt with plenty of wampum. The celebration included a week-long turkey givewway contest for lucky customers.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Wise Use Of Money Important To Businesses In Lean Times

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen long ago found that one way of surviving lean times is to use somebody's else's money, mainly that of a supplier. Just delay the payment a month or so and you benefit from an interest-free loan.

Some of the best names in American industry have become slow payers when pinched. Some people claim Uncle Sam does the same thing. And based on relatively high delinquency figures on loans, individuals are aware of the practice.

The art or science of conserving and using money wisely during a combined inflation-recession-tight money period is far more complex than using other people's funds, however, as is indicated by an advisory to clients this month by Coopers & Lybrand, an accounting firm.

The firm lists three goals that cash-conscious companies should seek these days: acceleration of cash receipts, the accumulation and wise investment of cash for growth and yield, and a delay in cash payouts.

In addition, it advised:

Reconsider the effectiveness and rate of cash discounts to induce early payment.

Tighten up on errors in billing which slow collections.

Use the supplier's inventory instead of your own. Buy only what you need immediately, if that is feasible.

Review tax options that will permit you to defer tax payouts; that is, through possible changes in inventory accounting and depreciation schedules.

Review insurance coverage, including the timing of premium payments and the possible availability of loans.

Provide employees in executive and employee compensation plans with noncash, deferred benefits, instead of immediate cash payouts.

AT&T Falls In Opening Of Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shares of American Telephone & Telegraph fell 2⅝ to 43 in a delayed opening today on the New York Stock Exchange in reaction to the government's antitrust suit against the country's largest publicly held corporation.

The AT&T opening came around noon with the market generally mixed in moderately active trading.

Declines led advances, 550 to 498, among the 1,481 issues crossing the tape.

AT&T opening came on a block of 450,000 shares. The delay reflected an influx of orders. Wall Street was shocked when the Justice Department charged the AT&T with monopolizing telecommunications service and equipment. Litigation in the case will take years to resolve.

The market moved lower initially, then began to rebound. Since prices have skidded in the past week, some issues may have been attractive at this time.

There still remained considerable concern about the prolonged nationwide coal strike by the United Mine Workers, the nation's deepening recession, and growing tensions in the Middle East.

Inflation also worried Wall Street. The Labor Department reported its consumer price index climbed 0.9 per cent in October. Another recent government report showed wholesale prices rose 2.3 per cent.

A $200,000 Loss For Taxpayers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California taxpayers are losing at least $200,000 a year because of the state lands commission's failure to collect lease payments from all trespassers on public lands, the state auditor general says.

In a report issues yesterday, Auditor General Harvey Rose said the 754 documented cases of unlawful use of state land include unauthorized land fills at Donner and Clear lakes and the operation of a marina at Lake Tahoe for 21 years without a lease.

Rose said it would be difficult to determine a total cost to the state because appraisals have not been made on the recorded cases. But he said 90 per cent of the recorded incidents date back three years or more and could have cost more than $600,000 in lost revenue.

"We concluded that the inadequate procedures of the state lands commission to either effect binding leases with trespassers on public lands or to eject such trespassers has resulted in effective control," Rose said.

He said this has directly resulted in the $200,000 annual loss, based on estimates of the state lands division which administers the commission's activities.

By state law, when the lands division becomes aware of an unauthorized use of public lands it requests the trespasser file a lease application. However, Rose said that if the application is not filed there is "generally very limited followup to effect binding leases."

Despite the lands commission's authorization under the Public Resources Code to evict trespassers from public lands through court action, Rose said 669 of the apparent violations dated back more than three years.

The commission is made up of the lieutenant governor, state controller and director of finance.

Rose agreed in the report with the lands division that the backlog of trespass cases may be due in part to an insufficient number of persons in the agency assigned to the program. But he said the commission is authorized to use its own legal staff to bring action against trespassers but has failed to do so.

He recommended the commission assign existing personnel or request additional staff if necessary to dispose of the 754 trespass cases and any others subsequently discovered.

Edward N. Gladish, executive secretary of the Lands Commission, did not dispute the findings of much of the report. But he said many of the cases centered on disputes over boundary lines, and without firm boundaries many cases cannot be taken into litigation.

In addition, he said the commission staff is trying to "maximize the use of our limited resources" by working on what are considered the highest priority items.

Nuclear Steelmaking Is Possible In Future

BERKELEY (UPI) — A process using nuclear energy to make steel may be developed within 15 years and it will be cleaner than the current method, according to the director of research for Bethlehem Steel Corp.

Dr. Donald J. Blickwede told the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers yesterday that most concepts for applying atomic power to steelmaking were based on using the nuclear energy to generate electricity that is used to melt the sponge iron and refine it into steel in an electric furnace.

Blickwede said the steel industry was focusing on the possible use of nuclear energy because of soaring costs and uncertain energy supplies. Nuclear energy, he added, would supplement the use of fossil fuels such as coal, oil and natural gas and thus would extend existing energy reserves.

If nuclear steelmaking goes on line, Blickwede said, the nuclear reactor would be set up as a public utility. It would sell heat and electricity to a steel plant instead of each steel company owning its own nuclear reactor.

"The steelmaking part of this nuclear process is not much different than what we've got now except that it might be a little cleaner," the Bethlehem Steel vice president told the association.

He explained that there were not the environmental problems that exist with coke ovens and that there were no effluents in the air or water from direct reduction plants.

Quest Gallery Plans Display

Redwood sculptures of sea life by Peter Bishop Allen of Stinson Beach, the wild bird carvings by his brother Howard Wheatley Allen and the metal sculptures by Christopher Bell will be on display Nov. 27 through Dec. 4 at the Quest gallery in Sausalito.

A preview showing attended by the artists will be held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Nov. 26 in the gallery.

Allen's whales and other marine mammals have been widely exhibited and sold to private collectors. His brother's birds have been commissioned as gifts to Japanese royalty and widely shown. Bell uses the Steinbeck inspiration of his hometown of Monterey for many of his sculptures.

Brezhnev Delayed By Snowstorm

MOSCOW (UPI) — A heavy snowstorm in Vladivostok forced Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev to make an unscheduled stop today in the Far East city of Khabarovsk, a Soviet source said.

Brezhnev left Moscow last night en route to Vladivostok for a weekend summit meeting with President Ford. But the storm caused him to land instead at Khabarovsk.

Four Vessels Tugged Through Suez

CAIRO (UPI) — With an assist from tugs, four Egyptian vessels yesterday completed the first commercial navigation through the Suez Canal since it was closed by Arab-Israeli fighting seven and a half years ago.

The four ships, which left Port Said in the north five days ago, docked in Suez harbor at the southern end of the 100-mile waterway to pick up Moslem pilgrims for holy places in Saudi Arabia.

The Suez Canal authority has kept the first transit since the June 1967 war under wraps without giving a reason. Diplomatic sources said the Egyptian government wanted to avoid publicity because of its stated position that the canal will not be reopened to normal shipping until there has been a further Israeli withdrawal in Sinai.

Israeli positions now are 15 to 20 miles east of the canal as a result of the 1973 October war. But Egypt maintains the Israelis have to pull back farther to safeguard the route against a quick attack.

Suez city officials said the passenger ships Syria, Misr and El Sudan and the freighter As Wan Star entered the harbor at 1 p.m.

Except for crews totaling 519 men, the ships were empty, the officials said, and had been towed by tugs all the way from Port Said to avoid possible hazards as clearance of sunken wrecks is still under way and the canal badly needs dredging.

The passage took five days to complete but only 16 hours of actual navigation. The ships had to stop first at Ismailia and later in Lake Timsah further south to await removal of obstructions, the officials said.

The four ships, ranging from 3,000 to 6,000 tons, began traversing the canal from Port Said at dawn Saturday. About 4,600 pilgrims will board them at Suez today and tomorrow for the trip to Jeddah, Saudi Arabia.

Government sources said the ships had to be brought from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea in view of the large number of pilgrims, most of whom cannot afford air travel.

According to sources in the U.S. Navy, which is overseeing the removal of large sunken wrecks, the last major obstacle blocking passage will be removed by the middle of December. This will be followed by dredging operations which the Canal Authority has said may take several months to restore the canal to its pre-1967 depth.

Public Concert Slated Dec. 7

Four Marin musical groups will join forces to present a public Christmas concert, "Festival of Lessons and Carols," at Angelico Hall, Dominican College at 8 p.m. Dec. 7. Admission will be free.

Christmas poems and Bible selections will be read in addition to carols by the Dominican College chorus, Men of Marin, College of Marin Chamber Singers and San Domenico Singers.

Larkspur Police Promotes Combs

Thomas F. Combs of Larkspur has been promoted to the rank of sergeant in the Tiburon Police Department, according to Chief Maurice Lafferty.

Combs, 26, joined the department in February 1973 as a patrolman. He holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Santa Clara and has done graduate studies at the University of California at Irvine.

Famed Southern Hotel Facing Demolition Ball

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The old Heidelberg Hotel, host to thousands of GI's during World War II, and to a young senator named John F. Kennedy in 1957, soon may fall victim to the demolition ball unless someone can think of a use for it.

A 12-story, non-descript brick structure wedged into Jackson's business district, the Heidelberg closed its registration books last week, bowing to the modern hostelries that have sprung up within the city limits and beyond.

The Heidelberg was the first hotel in Mississippi to lower its color barriers, and was the site of countless senior proms, farm bureau conventions and political meetings.

During World War II thousands of soldiers found it an oasis from barracks life on the weekends, paying $3 a night for a room when they could get one, and catching whatever sleep possible in the lobby when they couldn't.

Wilkinson said his firm, Courtesy Inns, considered the possibility of renovating the hotel, but then realized it would take more than $2 million to put it back into shape.

The hotel was built in the 1920s, and for 33 of 50 years of existance, O.K. Nunnery served as bellman, desk clerk bell captain and assistant manager.

He recalled that when John F. Kennedy, the then-young senator who was later to become president, came to town in 1957 to address a meeting of young Democrats, he was concerned that his appearance before an all-white audience would damage his political career.
